Teacher Talks Tuesday

Sirhan Given Death

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan was formally sentenced to death in the California gas chamber for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy despite a letter pleading for clemency from the family of the slain senator.

In ordering Sirhan's death, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ignored the letter from Kennedy's brother, and denied defense motions for a new trial after a daylong hearing.

Apollo 10 Flawless

SPACE CENTER Houston — Apollo 10 whipped behind the moon last night and then flawlessly settled into a lunar orbit where the three pilots will spend the next 2½ days testing the machinery to land a man on the moon in July.

"Hats off the guys in the trench mission control," said Eugene Cernan. "I love them. Say 'thank you' big."

Con-Con Test Suit

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of the Constitutional Convention filed suit yesterday to test the constitutionality of the recently passed law for Con-Con.

A taxpayers suit filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court by Chicago Atty. James Otis asked the court to declare the law unconstitutional and issue injunctions against state officials to prevent them from preparing for delegate elections.

Delay Vigilante Bill

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to repeal the 1885 "vigilante" law had to be postponed in the Senate when it ran into surprising opposition from Republicans.

Several members, citing the "White Hats" group in Cairo, said there might be a need for the law, which permits citizens to form "companies" to deal with "horse thieves, incendiaries and other felons."

Hill Battle Defended

SAIGON — U.S. commanders have defended the controversial offensive for Hamburger Hill and ordered a fresh battalion of American paratroopers to hold the peak near Laos.

One commander said, "If we wanted to let the enemy stay on the hill, we would have had to call off the whole operation. And that would have invited the enemy to stockpile supplies for new offensives."

Defense of Thailand

BANGKOK — Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand said yesterday he believes the United States is committed by a 1962 treaty to help defend his country not only against open warfare but Communist guerrilla attacks.

His statement made at a news conference shortly after the close of the 14th annual ministerial meeting of SEATO, went beyond anything U.S. officials have been willing to acknowledge.

Parade Permit Ruling

CHICAGO — U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker said he will rule tomorrow on a suit filed by a group of north suburban Evanston Vietnam War protesters challenging the constitutionality of their city's parade permit granting procedures.

The North Shore Coalition against the War in Vietnam has received a permit from the Evanston City Council for a May 24 march, but the group is dissatisfied with the route granted for the parade.

Less Student Aid

CHAMPAIGN — The University of Illinois will not be able to provide financial help for as many undergraduate students as it had expected in the next school year, it was revealed.

A report read to the university's board of trustees said the school will be about $4.15 million short of anticipated revenues because of a cutback in federal aid, plus a shortage in the state guaranteed loan fund.

Negotiations between teachers and School Dist. 59 will resume Tuesday, as a result of a letter from Supt. Donald Thomas to leaders of both sides in the deadlocked talks.

It was learned yesterday that representatives of the Teachers Council and the board of education plan to meet behind closed doors at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the district administration center.

Thomas said the meeting will be on the basis of a letter he wrote to board member Richard Hess and teacher Harlan Michels, expressing concern about the deadlocked negotiations and suggesting possibilities for the basis of a settlement.

BARGAINING ended two weeks ago when teachers rejected a firm contract offer from the board of education. Shortly after the 406-1 vote against a contract offering base pay of $8,900 for 10 months, regular sessions ended.

An administration statement said that both sides agreed to meet again when a new proposal was ready for discussion.

On Saturday, the teachers said they were waiting for the board to make a fresh contract offer, and that they would be willing to wait "as long as necessary."

At stake are contracts for nearly 450 district teachers, and as of the moment none of the faculty have signed contracts to teach.

They are primarily demanding more money than is being offered, and an agreement on class sizes which the board refuses to negotiate.

ACCORDING TO Thomas, the Tuesday meeting is specifically geared around the ideas expressed in a May 16 letter, proposing life insurance policies paid for by the district, an additional salary step in the scale, and an increase of proposed extended services contract options.

"We are meeting to specifically discuss the contents of that letter," Thomas said. But the superintendent did not rule out the chances of renewed discussion in other areas, including the possibility of 12 month contracts at significantly higher pay.

In his May 16 letter, Thomas noted that if more revenue can be obtained, one of the first priorities could be to reduce student teacher ratio to 25 to 1 from the present 29 to 1, boosting extended service contracts to 50 per cent, and "the purchase of capital outlay items."

UNLESS THE Illinois General Assembly passes a state aid bill substantially higher than the proposed $500 level, additional revenue would be found only in an educational tax rate increase.

Even then, smaller classes would require more facilities, and district administrators are not ruling out a building bond issue to meet future growth needs of the district.

Student Power May Assist In Newsletter

After it appeared that Pres. Jack Pahl's proposed newsletter would be shelved indefinitely, comments by Trustee Richard McGrenera led to a further study that may involve a junior high school.

McGrenera, a proponent of the concept of a newsletter, said he'd be willing to personally chip in $5 or $10 monthly to help cover production costs, and Grove Junior High School faculty member Jerry Tvrdy volunteered manpower from that school's student council.

The issue, which had initial objection from Trustee Tom Uilmann and additional reluctance by Trustee George Coney, had been assigned to the personnel committee for study a week earlier.

TUESDAY NIGHT, Trustee Charles Zetek reported that while the idea was a good one and didn't appear to create political hazards, the proposed $2,000 cost wouldn't fit into the 1969-70 budget.

He recommended the matter be dropped at least temporarily.

Later in the evening, McGrenera began commenting on the idea, endorsing it strongly. He suggested that all board members contribute $5 or $10 monthly.

At this point, Tvrdy, who also serves on the village plan commission, told the board that his school's student council would be happy to help out with folding and stapling.

Keith Delays Retiring

Trustee Eugene Keith is beginning to shy away from the resignation he announced on April 15.

Yesterday he said he didn't anticipate leaving the village board "for at least another 60 days or so."

Keith, just returned from a Florida vacation, said he is delaying because of "problems facing the village that I can't talk about yet."

He also said he has legislation planned for introduction, possibly involving an air pollution dispute involving Chicago Magnet Wire Co. in Elk Grove Village.

"I PROBABLY won't bail out real quick," he said yesterday, while reiterating his intent to resign from the board.

"There are other, more important problems," he said, listing Chicago Magnet Wire, the budget and the proposed zoning ordinance. He said the village has "money and people" problems that aren't unique to Elk Grove Village which will demand the attention of the village board.

"There are a lot of things facing the village that I can't talk about yet. But if you keep your eyes open, they'll start showing up in a couple of weeks," Keith said.

He also said new factors have come into play which didn't exist when he announced he would resign from the board. The resignation statement came concurrently with his concession of victory to Pres. Jack Pahl in the municipal elections.

"I don't think political matters are important to anybody right now," he said.

Commenting on the proposed budget, Keith, who was a member of the budget

DIAGNOSING A CAR'S COMPLAINTS, four officers of Wheeling's Midnight Movers held a daytime session recently in preparation for the free national safety check on automobiles they will conduct June 8. Gary Polony, Mike McGowan and Ed Hawkinsen discuss the problems while Tony VerPlancke listens to the engine.

Pre-Beautiful People'

by ANNE SLAVICEK
Dressed in black jackets with an emblem of a ghost on wheels, motorcycle boots and exotic headgear, members of Wheeling's Midnight Movers begin to congregate in the early evening at the drive-in.

Anywhere from 20 to 40 of them stand around in small groups walking, smoking and arguing loudly.

To the casual observer they look like just another teengang — a group of the undesirable elements in a high school community who have banded together to give the town a bad name.

WHAT THEY ARE, however, is an organized club, with stringent rules, the backing of police and an intense sensitivity about their public image.

The Midnight Movers are so concerned about the image that they are sponsoring a free national safety check June 8 to introduce themselves to local residents. They will check cars for safety features required by the state and put stickers on cars that pass the test.

The club, which started seven weeks ago, is admittedly made up of some of the less desirable members of the community.

At least 15 of the club's 47 members are dropouts, although some attend night school. Most have had some contact with police in a variety of juvenile offenses.

The club members started their group to work on cars and to give them an organized activity. Although they have just begun to organize, they plan a trip to southern Wisconsin next weekend to visit several drag strips and hope to have dances, picnics and baseball games this summer.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most of all is a place to race cars, but members are willing to wait for that until they have gained trust and recognition from the community.

One member suggested that a street could be blocked off for a short time for drag races, but admitted that there might be a problem with the possibility of children around.

What they really would like is to borrow a runway at Palwaukee Airport to race their "grudge races" against each other, until they can get enough support to get a regular drag strip brought to town.

One member talked idealistically about having professional racers come to town and putting Wheeling on the map along with Rockford and U.S. 30 drag strips.

In the meantime, however, the young men have an uphill battle ahead of them.

The 47 members have decided the way to gain public recognition is to police the activities of their members to maintain their "image" and to plan activities which will benefit the community.

THEIR RULES are stringent — and enforced.

Two members who squealed their tires on the pavement, one while wearing his jacket and the other while with a group of club members, were fined $5 and were forced to give up their jackets for a week at a recent meeting.

For any violation a member is "stripped of his colors," articles with the club emblem, and fines are imposed if the viola-

Trustees Receive Budget Draft

by GEOFFREY MEHL

It is mostly unspectacular, in the opinion of Financial Director Donald Eppley, with no real problem areas and no real surprises.

Elk Grove Village's budget for the coming fiscal year is based on spending $1.6 million, an increase of 27.7 per cent.

Village trustees received the tentative document Tuesday night without comment from the Budget Committee. All that Chairman Ronald Chernick asked was that it be studied for a week.

BUT WHILE SPENDING may be up by $350,000, there will be little or no change in tax rates for village residents. Most of the additional revenue will come from a variety of sources, primarily surging sales taxes, building fees, and the added revenue from the village's bigger assessed valuation.

The new revenue primarily will be spent in four areas, Eppley said. They include a doubling of street repair programs, salary increases for employees, additional personnel, and two new pieces of fire equipment.

The largest income loss will be the lack of the controversial utility tax, which raised $145,150 during the last fiscal year and which was eliminated by the village board.

The largest single income boost will be $163,000 left over from the current year, which Eppley said was money that never was spent on street work and other areas.

Eppley stressed the financial stability of the village; nowhere in his revenue analysis did tax anticipation warrants — the short-term debts that plague school districts — show up.

"You have to remember that out of each tax dollar, we get 6 cents. So the 27.7 per cent increase is in actuality about 1.5 per cent of taxes — but even then that's not quite right because of increased revenue from other places.

"WE HAVE MORE MONEY because the pot's bigger than it was last year," he noted. The reference is to assessed valuation, which rose from $121 million to nearly $141 million. No end is in sight for increased value growth.

What it all means is that more people need more services, and more people are paying.

The largest budgeted items include salaries for police and fire departments, $274,743 and $364,310 respectively. Running close behind is the street repair program, which will accomplish in one year what was planned for two, Eppley said. A total of $221,700 is planned for that.

Next comes $113,000 for new fire equipment, followed by $100,030 for street department employee salaries. Most other expenses are scattered, and, Eppley said, "the usual stuff."

Last year, village board members debated the budget hotly, and wound up passing it on a 4-3 vote with the deciding ballot cast by President Jack Pahl.

This year, no serious dissent seems in the offing.

EUGENE KEITH, back from a vacation, said he doesn't expect to resign from the Elk Grove Village board "for another 60 days or so."

A Herald Editorial

Pick Neuhauser

Through a quirk of fate, the Dist. 59 board of education will lose one of its most recently elected board members next month. George Blanchard, elected last April, will leave the district because of a job transfer.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education should appoint Paul Neuhauser to Blanchard's unexpired term.

Neuhauser was a candidate for the board in the April elections. He was third in the field of candidates, losing the seat to Blanchard by a margin of 26 votes.

BY APPOINTING Neuhauser, other board members will be fulfilling the intent of the voters of the district who obviously saw in Neuhauser the qualities they desire in their elected representatives.

An investigator for the Treasury Department, Neuhauser would bring an inquisitive mind and a strong background in financial matters to the board.

Since the announcement of Blanchard's departure, parents in the school district and most recently a group of teachers have urged the board of education to appoint Neuhauser to the vacant seat.

We believe the case is clear, that the Dist. 59 Board of Education should appoint Neuhauser when Blanchard's formal resignation is submitted.

Move at Midnight

tion is serious.

Other rules of the club say that while wearing the colors or with any other club members, a Midnight Mover isn't allowed to speed, drive recklessly, patch his tires or race.

After two violations, the members are out of the club.

Police school liaison officer Ted Homeyer says the club is somewhat exclusive organization and a status symbol.

"SOME KIDS would give their left arm to belong," he says, adding that because membership is valued so highly by the high school group, the rules can be stringently enforced and the members will submit to the policing and fines.

The Midnight Movers, mostly from Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove, pay 50 cents a week in dues to the club and are governed by two spokesmen and a variety of lesser officers.

Current spokesmen, who direct the meetings and tell other members to "shut up" when they talk out of turn, are Ed

Hawkinson and Gary Polony. Cliff Forster is an alternate spokesman.

The Midnight Movers admit some of their members would do a lot more drag racing on village streets if it weren't for club rules.

"We're doing the town a public service by keeping some of these off the streets," one boy said last week. "We've got some of the worst kids and worst drivers in Wheeling," another admits.

The group members vary somewhat in appearance. Ranging in age from 18 to 20 with one 16-year-old mascot, some of the members are clean-cut looking while others are what most teens would term "grease."

SOME HAVE carefully lacquered pompadour haircuts resembling heroes of 1950's movies, and others have crewcuts.

Some sit on the backs of their chairs at meetings and yell their suggestions in a mixture of automotive terms and semi-vulgarity. Others stand when called on and logically explain their proposals.

However, all have a common interest in cars, racing, and club activities. And all are adamant that club members must live up to the rules of the organization.

Striving for a good image, the club is sponsoring a free safety check for all cars in the area June 8.

The Midnight Movers collected $56 for materials from merchants in the village and got permission to use the K-Mart's parking lot. The check will include examining cars for adequate lights, brakes, alignment and other safety features.

Cars passing the inspection, as outlined in information bought by the group from the Illinois secretary of state's office, will receive a national safety check sticker.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most is the support of the community and to belong to a famed organization of racing enthusiasts which they know only as the NEPA. Saying acceptance to that organization is limited to "beautiful people," they explain that it would give their club statewide recognition.

In the meantime, they are working on more activities for their members. As one spokesman reminded the group at a Sunday meeting when the arguments got out of hand, "Hey, come on you guys. This is a club, not a gang."

Suggest Ways To Cut Water Dept. Costs

A Hoffman Estates resident's suggestion outlining possible methods of reducing water department costs was referred to William Bolin, superintendent of public works, this week.

In a recent letter to village officials, Mrs. C. Meyer, 184 Ashley Road, offered the idea of annual meter reading as opposed to bi-monthly readings taken by water department employees.

She also suggested that water bills sent to residents every two months be revised to include a separate section in which the homeowner can record his present usage reading and return the information with his paid bill.

MRS. MEYER BELIEVES that such a course of action would greatly reduce operating costs, personnel, and free the homeowner from the nuisance of admitting village personnel to private residences many times throughout the year.

Bolin, who is presently attending a public works officials' convention in San Diego, has been asked to study the proposal on his return.

Trustees Balk At Serving On Saturdays

Most Hoffman Estates trustees appeared to disagree with Mrs. Virginia M. Hayter's request Monday that each member of the village board take a weekly turn at staffing special 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. office hours on Saturdays.

Although the village clerk's office is open during that period, Mrs. Hayter suggested that a trustee be present to talk with residents who may come in with complaints.

"I do not agree," Trustee Bruce Lind said. "People are allowed sufficient time for this type of discussion at our weekly Monday night board meetings."

"PERHAPS WE MIGHT look into this when we are in a position to cut our meetings back to twice a month, but right now we do conduct an open meeting and favor audience participation. I, for one, would like to have Saturday morning to mow my lawn," Lind said.

Although no other trustee appeared to share Mrs. Hayter's enthusiasm for the Saturday project, Pres. Frederick E. Downey told her the board would take her proposal under advisement.

Battles 'Gas Station Patio'

Elk Grove Village's Board of Trustees isn't a good friend of gasoline stations unless they're on outlying fringe in strictly commercial areas.

Thus, when Trustee George Coney learned that the Clark Oil Co. had purchased the northeast corner of Devon Ave. and Turner Ave., he had bitter complaints to present at the board's Tuesday meeting.

"Houses behind it will have a gas station for a patio," he said, pointing out that a check of plans puts the station within 45 feet of homes.

HE SAID HE HAD checked into area zoning provisions, and found that somehow the corner hadn't been as locked up as he would like.

Resigns From Youth Group

Rev. Martin Cusack of Schaumburg has submitted his resignation from the Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth.

Father Cusack's resignation was accepted "with regrets" at Tuesday's COY meeting.

In a letter sent to the township youth committee, Father Cusack stated that "my parish commitments have grown to such a degree that I can no longer devote the time necessary to participate in the Committee on Youth." Father Cusack is associate pastor of St. Marcelline's parish in Schaumburg.

OTHER MEMBERS of the Committee on Youth are: William Ohlson, chairman, Ronald Persche, Charles Hanlon, John Harkness, Daniel Stowe, John Plum, and John Karstrom.

The Committee on Youth was created by the township board of auditors to develop programs to prevent and combat juvenile delinquency. It is made up of local citizens who live in the township.

TREES, SHRUBS and evergreens have been disappearing from the former National Nursery in Schaumburg because area residents think they're free for the taking. Schaumburg Patrolman

William Heidt explains to residents that the nursery stock cannot be removed and persons taking it are subject to theft charges.

Misinformed People Attack Nursery

Like the famous gold rush of the 1800s, herds of people from surrounding villages have been digging up the nursery stock behind what used to be National Nursery on Golf Road, east of Highland in Schaumburg.

"Hundreds of persons have been misinformed that the stock was free for the taking," said Martin Conroy, Schaumburg police chief. "They have been coming for the last few days to the rear of the old nursery where the former owner still lives. The area is behind his house."

The people were arriving in cars, pickup trucks, and other vehicles. Then, with shovels in one hand and a flashlight in the other, they attack the field, digging up evergreens, trees, shrubs and bushes.

One officer said, "The minute I chase them away some more of them come. They're going through people's yards and everything."

"FROM NOW ON, all subjects will be apprehended and charged with theft," Conroy said.

"The owners of the property, which is in the name of the Schaumburg Land Trust, have advised us that they will sign complaints against these people, and they want to prosecute them also."

"Since this first began, the number of people coming out to the area has grown and grown. They're just like ants. They are causing traffic problems on Golf Road."

"We've issued orders on our public address system telling these people to get out. We will lock anyone up if they don't get out."

Conroy said half of the items being taken won't grow again. "They do it only because it's something for nothing," he said.

The people are coming from Hanover, Schaumburg, Streamwood and other towns.

A Wildlife Pond?

A Walden Pond in Hoffman Estates? Well, maybe!

Concerned residents of Aloca Lane would like to preserve a small pond at the rear of several lots on their street, they advised the village board this week.

According to David J. Baird, 299 Aloca Lane, a spokesman for the group, the pond is fed by two springs and serves as a scenic wildlife preserve in summer and a skating pond for neighborhood children during the winter.

The pond is located on unit 2 of Intercontinental Development Corp. land under construction for an apartment complex.

IF THE CITIZENS group cannot influence the builder to avoid the small pond, they may try to raise the money among themselves to buy it, Baird said.

Another member of the group, Mrs. Robert L. Wilhelm, explained that she had earlier talked with Dan Murphy, village building inspector, and had been advised by him that the builder had definite plans scheduled for filling in the pond.

Village officials agreed to investigate the matter with representatives of the building firm and encouraged the residents to follow suit.

Level Scavenger Cheat Charge

Two companies in Elk Grove Village's industrial park were accused of cheating on the village scavenger ordinance by five firms holding franchises in the village.

Appearing before the village board Tuesday night, the five claimed that United Delco-Remy Corp. and the Rauland Manufacturing Co. were contracting with other scavengers independently. They contended it was a violation of village ordinances.

Elk Grove Village licenses five scavengers to pick up and haul away "garbage," a rule which does not apply to the removal of salvageable material. That would include paper, lumber, scrap metal and chemicals.

THE VILLAGE'S FIVE licensed firms, which each pay the municipality $500, said they would not object to independent contracts with other area scavengers for salvage material, but they did object to their picking up other rubbish which was hauled to a dump and not salvaged in any way.

Their argument was that they pay $500 annually for the license, and if others operate in the village, they should pay, too.

After rambling discussion on definitions of "garbage," "refuse," "trash," "rubbish," and all the other terminology which describes what residents and businessmen put into garbage cans, bins and crates, it was suggested that the ordinance be rewritten to make the intent of village licenses.

When Village Atty. Edward Hofert questioned the scavengers as to specific violations, no evidence that would be admissible in court could be found. Further investigation was promised, however, and Hofert warned the village board to expect the prospects of litigation on the matter.

Harper To Respond to Suit

Harper Junior College trustees tonight may give some indication of how they plan to answer the suit filed against them this week by two teachers not being rehired next year.

College Atty. Frank Hines has declined to comment on the case pending today's 8 p.m. college board meeting at the Harper campus site at Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

He said he expects to make a recommendation to the board tonight.

Dies While Driving

A Hoffman Estates man Tuesday died of an apparent heart attack while he was driving, causing his car to swerve out of control and hit a tree at 321 Washington in Hoffman Estates.

W. E. Cartwright, 106 Paige Drive, was pronounced dead at St. Alexius Hospital in Elk Grove.

THE SUIT was filed in federal district court Monday for Edward M. Kalish of Mount Prospect and Dr. Betty Enbysk of Schaumburg. Harper teachers turned down last month on their request for the college to call a public hearing and make known the reasons for their not being rehired.

The suit alleges that "the true reason for their non-retention was the fact that the plaintiffs had chosen to exercise their freedoms of speech and assembly as duly elected members of the faculty senate of the College."

If the teachers win, the case could set precedent for requiring colleges to show cause for not rehiring all teachers — including those without tenure and a right to a continuing contract. The law now says an institution can drop a non-tenured teacher at the end of a contract year without giving its reasons for doing so. The National Education Association is reportedly interested in the case because of that possibility.

THE COLLEGE board also faces a long agenda that includes discussion of a grievance policy proposed by the faculty senate and originally suggested by Kalish, approval of college policy on student conduct and guest speakers, and appointment of new faculty for next year.

The board will be asked to approve hiring of a new assistant director of admissions to replace A. Harris Moeller of Barrington, who is leaving to take a new position with the College of Lake County.

Pres. Robert Lahti will also recommend appointment of a dean of guidance to re-

Delay College Bill Hearing

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday bogged down in partisan debate over a docket of money bills and failed to get to State Rep. Eugene Chapman's bill to purchase land for a state senior college in Northwest Cook County.

Arlington Heights' former village president John G. Woods stood for 4½ hours waiting to testify — and then went home without getting the mike.

Mrs. Chapman, Arlington Heights Democratic state representative who is chief sponsor of the bill, says Woods has promised to come down again if a sure date for the bill's hearing can be determined.

She said the bill may be heard today or it may come up next week if the appropriations committee deadline is extended.

All appropriations were to have been heard by the appropriations committee by last week. The deadline has been extended once by House vote.

State Rep. Eugene Schickman, R-Arlington Heights, the sole area state representative on the House appropriations committee, is less optimistic about the bill getting a hearing by that committee than is Mrs. Chapman.

"Bills getting to this committee just this week run a risk," he said.

OUR "BOY OF THE WEEK"

As announced last Friday over WEXI 92.7 FM, Arlington Heights Mount Prospect Federal Savings and Loan Association saluted Steven Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Snyder, 518 Candora Mount Prospect as "Boy of the Week."

Young Steven, a sophomore at Prospect High School, recently won the Illinois High School chess championship for freshmen and sophomore students, playing seven rounds in the tournament held at Evergreen Park High School. Twenty-nine junior varsity teams competed in this tournament from the Chicago area, Rockford and Joliet.

We salute Steven Snyder as one who in three years mastered an exacting hobby with mathematics and logic background. We salute him, too, as an honor student and a young man who hopes to become a doctor and who plans a pre-medical education when he finishes high school. He is representative of the many teen-agers who plan, work and compete — a credit to our outstanding youth of today.

Listen again this Friday night at 7:15 to WEXI, 92.7 FM, for another designation as "Man of the Week."

WE INVITE YOUR NOMINATIONS AND YOUR SAVINGS AT AN INSTITUTION THAT CARES ABOUT THE COMMUNITY AND THE MEN AND WOMEN WHO HELP TO MAKE IT A BETTER PLACE IN WHICH TO LIVE.

The Way We See It

Disgusting Episode

Something is wrong with the attitude of public and private welfare agencies. That is the conclusion we can draw from the case of a Northwest suburban woman recently reported by the Herald.

The woman was separated from her husband. Under terms of their divorce settlement, she was granted custody of their five children, title to their home and support money.

Before the final divorce decree was filed, her husband quit his job. The lawyer demanded payment of a stiff fee before he would file the final decree. When she couldn't pay, the attorney demanded she agree to a lien on her home, her only major asset, and she refused.

As the woman sought legal help, her money began to run low. She managed to get a $20 weekly allowance for herself and each child for two weeks through the township. But she didn't fit the standard definition of poverty because she technically owned property.

Her plight grew more serious, and she was forced to lean heavily on the help of neighbors and friends.

Her case is not common, but it is tragic. And it was avoidable.

Reporter Gerry DeZonna learned, "The welfare agencies seemed to be hanging themselves on legal technicalities and bureaucratic red tape. They had their rules and their investigations, too. They were limited by law only to do so much.

"The bank that held the mortgage on the house threatened to foreclose. The payments were due. She inquired about a loan on the mortgage but the bank needed both her husband's signature and hers."

Agencies capable of providing legal advice wouldn't do so because she already "had a lawyer."

The whole episode is disgusting.

Instead of conspiring to make this woman destitute, we think public and private agencies would have better served their objective if they had helped her keep from becoming destitute.

Eye on Arlington

Put Sign Thrusters in Law

by JOAN KLUSMANN

On Monday village trustees will discuss the individuals and organizations which will be exempted from Arlington Heights' new open housing law.

Village Atty. Jack Siegel drafted amendments to the current ordinance at the request of Village Pres. John Walsh, who wishes to bring the local law in line with federal standards.

THE 1968 FEDERAL civil rights bill states that local review boards can retain the right for investigation of complaints only if local open housing ordinances are as strict or stricter than the federal law.

Amending the ordinance will assure that Arlington Heights can continue to make initial judgments on discrimination complaints.

Walsh's prompt action is commendable. Not until January will the current village ordinance be out of step with federal laws. Getting an early start allows time for detailed consideration of the bill's implications and a thrashing out of opinions.

The present local law restricts Realtors but not homeowners; the amendments also cover individuals who retain a real estate broker but not persons who thrust their own sign in the lawn, and wrap up the sale themselves.

SEIGEL'S AMENDMENTS, which follow the federal law, went to the legal committee of the board last week. After studying the proposed changes, differing opinions on "exemptions" provisions prompted the committee to refer this section of the document to the full board for discussion and guidance. The remainder of the changes received committee endorsement.

Most likely there will be no disagreement among trustees on the right of religious organizations to give preference to members of their own denominations when arranging admissions to nursing homes and similar facilities.

Discussion will focus on the right of an individual homeowner to discriminate when he sells his home without the services of a Realtor.

These sign-thrusting residents, while escaping the clauses of the Civil Rights Act, are covered in another way. A statute originally enacted in 1866 as part of the first post-Reconstruction civil rights law was upheld by the United States Supreme Court in June 1968 and is now being implemented in the Chicago metropolitan area.

THE LAW READS simply: "All citizens of the United States shall have the same right, in every state and territory, as is enjoyed by white citizens thereof to inherit, purchase, lease, sell, hold and convey real and personal property."

Of course, most residents selling their own homes do so to save the broker's fee and not to discriminate. But those who do refuse to show their homes to blacks are included under the 100-year old statute.

There are attorneys in the metropolitan area who will take on such cases without fee to the plaintiff. They may seek injunctive relief and keep the property in question off the market until disposition of the case.

Since the Supreme Court ruling exists and persons discriminated against do have recourse in the courts, one trustee argued last week that it was not necessary at this time to include individual sellers in the new local law.

ADDITIONAL arguments were that those who will go to any length to discriminate may have the right to do so on an individual basis and that the character of the community precluded sufficient moral support for inclusion of individuals in the local law.

However, the coin can be turned. The village wants to keep local control of any complaints concerning open housing and the amendments as now written slice off a segment of the Arlington Heights population.

Morally, exempting homeowners who do not go through a Realtor is a bit like telling a child to behave and respect others when he is in your company but that in your absence he can do what he wants.

Since all individuals are covered by the Supreme Court decision, inclusion of all in the local law will not really cast any additional restrictions regarding racial discrimination.

WHILE THE exemptions as written will indeed bring the village into line with federal law, trustees should explore the issues in depth before final decision is made. Whatever they decide, the updating of the local ordinance is desirable.

Between the Lines

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

We expect state and national public office holders to make their income and its source public. But what about local officials and candidates for local office?

Would it be serving the public interest to require local office holders to reveal their income? Would local presidents and board members be willing to do this? Would information of candidates' incomes make any difference in an election outcome?

I THINK IT would be a good idea for a number of reasons. It would be beneficial for both the local office holder or seeker and for voters.

It's already mandatory that salaries paid public job holders be made public. Asking or requiring them to reveal their private source of income would be carrying it one step further.

Some will consider this an invasion of privacy, but I don't agree. We all read last week that President Nixon is worth about $600,000; we expect to have such information made public about the President and other top ranking officials.

It seems logical to ask local officials for the same kind of information. Some would argue that you can't equate the President of the United States and the mayor or school board president in a small Northwest suburb.

After all, they argue, the Nixons, Percys and Ogilvies hold office full time, while most municipal officials are only part time officeholders.

This is true, but anyone seeking public office, whether for United States senator, governor or as remote as a township school trustee, is asking for the public's trust.

WHY SHOULD voters entrust their tax dollars and their community's welfare to candidates unwilling to disclose their worth? If a candidate is running to better his community, he should be willing to do this.

A person running for office is putting himself in the public spotlight. He expects to have his motives for seeking office questioned. And if he's elected, he expects to have his policies and procedures questioned. The second and third time around, candidates always run on their records.

Running for office and holding office, is a personal choice. It puts that individual in a position of losing some of his privacy, but by choice.

Once a year, every taxing body is required to publish a financial statement showing where tax dollars have been spent. That same statement should also include the source and income of that body's governing board.

SUCH INFORMATION would eliminate rumors about local office holders receiving kickbacks from local businessmen and local developers. It would help squelch conflict of interest charges. And this board member as much as the public.

The Miami Beach Sun started a policy this spring of not endorsing any local candidate who would not reveal such information. Their reasoning is this: "Public respect for public officials has hit the bottom. Cynicism, sarcasm, disrespect and the idea that 'they're all alike anyhow' has become rampant."

It's true. These are the comments many, many voters make about elected office holders. The public very often feels its interest is being sold every time a developer is granted apartment zoning or another gas station is allowed. Many voters are sure that board members are receiving something, namely dollars, for complying with developers.

The Northwest suburban area has been fortunate to have as many capable public officials as it has. There have also been very few scandals connected with local office holders.

REQUIRING that personal finances be made public once a year would be a step toward keeping it that way.

Officeholders should not only be willing to comply with the request, they should also be enacting policies and ordinances to see that their successors do the same.

Sorry-You Don't Fit the Pattern

The City Beat

Nail Down Our Borders

by ED MURNANE

Some of the biggest problems facing rapidly developing suburban areas such as this are the frequent border conflicts between communities.

When 10 or 15 different communities are growing at about the same rate and community leaders have their sights on expansion and further growth, there are bound to be conflicts.

Within the past few years, there have been struggles between several towns in this area. Palatine and Rolling Meadows have squabbled over land, and so have Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights.

ARLINGTON Heights also has been in land battles with Buffalo Grove, very recently. Rolling Meadows is sitting next to a chunk of nice residential land it would like to get, but so would Schaumburg.

And as Schaumburg has grown in several directions, that village has had potential arguments with Roselle, Hanover Park, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village, in addition to Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

Elk Grove, similarly, has had disputes with Itasca on its southern end, in addition to the potential battles with its neighbors to the north.

These disputes have been an accepted part of the history of suburbs, here and elsewhere. Civic leaders are concerned with the wellbeing of their community first, frequently at the expense of neighbors and frequently at the risk of losing the friendship of those neighbors.

There really hasn't been any good solution to the problem.

UNTIL NOW.

Just last week, it was revealed that an art instructor at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale had found the answer to any number of municipal problems.

His solution is so obvious that it would have bitten our noses had it been a snake.

Ed Murnane

The art teacher wanted to make sure that Carbondale did not leave the face of the earth so he nailed it down. That's right, at each of the four main highway entrances to the city, he drove nails into the ground. He also asked the mayor and city council to notify him of any boundary changes so he could move the nails.

The possibilities this method of border-establishing presents are limitless.

Why, this same instructor wrote to President Nixon and offered to drive nails into the ground along the U. S. Canada border to make sure that this country doesn't get too far to the left or right of Canada.

The President hadn't responded yet, but he most certainly will. The Carbondale officials paid the art teacher $1 for the rights to the nails, so permanently establishing the U. S. Canada border should be worth at least $10 or $12.

The Fence Post

Charges Meet Was Rigged

I read with interest and concern Mrs. R. D. Robertson's letter of Wednesday May, 14, in which she castigated the Concerned Parents Committee for the conduct of their meeting on Family Living and Sex Education at Kilmer School a week earlier.

The meeting was chaotic to be sure, but not by design. It was our wish to present our position and view films for the first time like many others. However, the 12th hour newsletter distributed by the school superintendent to the homes via the students apparently prompted the disruptive "truth squad" to prevent our position from being heard. Vociferous interruptions, clandestine tape recordings and arrogant commandeering of the microphone by school personnel were the techniques employed by some of those to whom the children are to be entrusted for compulsory family living and sex education.

BY CONTRAST, the board of the C.P.C. was guilty only of attempting to present their views at a meeting called for and arranged by them. The C.P.C. did not want nor seek this type of confrontation.

Mrs. Robertson expresses her sorrow for our children. We do not pity our children; we love them, care for them, provide for them, and educate them. We delegate some of their education to the schools, some to the churches, some to the community, and some we retain in the home. We wish that Mrs. Robertson's ill-founded pity would be directed toward appropriate and applicable missionary needs.

The issue is not a matter of whether or not our children should be taught "the facts of life" or a "healthful attitude toward sex." The issue is: what is the appropriate role of the parent, church, school and community? Is repetitive and recurring classroom instruction from age 5 through age 18, with unspecified moral codes, sex education . . . or sex saturation?

Sincerely,
Joan Eunson

Buffalo Grove Couple United Heights Club Gives Awards

Two Buffalo Grove families were united in the April 26 marriage of Maureen Ann Caslin and John F. Stumbaugh. Their families are the Raymond Caslins, 349 Rosewood Ave., and the John Stumbaugh of 339 Raupp Blvd.

The couple exchanged vows at 4 in the afternoon in St. Mary's Church with Father Robert Melcher of St. Stephen's Church, Des Plaines, officiating. Father Melcher is a cousin of the bride.

A sister and brother of the bride and the same for the groom took part in the afternoon ceremony. The bride's brother, Michael Caslin, was best man and the groom's sister, Marilyn Stumbaugh, was maid of honor.

Also in the wedding party were Nancy Caslin, Peggy Fricano of Des Plaines and Sue O'Donnell of Buffalo Grove, all as bridesmaids; and Wayne Fricano, Richard Stumbaugh and Tom Leontes of Des Plaines, all as ushers.

The girls were attired in yellow chiffon over taffeta with a natural waistline banded in satin and featuring a large bow at the back. Pleated chiffon ruffles trimmed the sleeves and neckline of the gowns. They wore matching bow head-pieces and carried orange roses.

As the bride was given in marriage by her father, she wore a white satin gown with re-embroidered Alencon lace accenting the empire bodice. The gown had a stand-up collar, long sleeves and a full circle train, the skirt and train embellished with the same lace motif as the bodice.

Her headpiece was a Juliet cap of satin and lace to hold her bouffant veil in place. She carried a cascade of white roses with stephanotis.

AFTER THE RITES, there was a reception for 150 guests at Chevy Chase Country Club. There, the bride's mother received in a peacock blue chiffon gown with a jeweled necklace. She wore matching accessories and had an orchid wristlet for accent.

The groom's mother wore a gold lame ensemble with lace trim, matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

The newlyweds spent a honeymoon at Lake Lawn Lodge, in Delavan, Wis., and are making their home in Arlington Heights. The bride works in Wheeling and the groom in Lincolnwood. He is a graduate of Wheeling High School.

Mrs. John Stumbaugh

A check for $15,000 to the Prospect Heights Library Board headed the list of accomplishments of the Prospect Heights Woman's Club at its final meeting of the year, held last Tuesday at Old Orchard Country Club.

President Mrs. John Soderberg presented the check, earned from various ways and means projects, to Mrs. Robert Lusk, library board chairman, with the hope that it will help purchase land for a library building. At present the library is renting space in the local shopping center.

The meeting also provided awards to several of the club members and to high school students.

AWARDS WENT TO four committee chairmen who have given outstanding service to the club. Mrs. Robert Kent, in charge of membership, was honored for introducing the Friendship Table, which is a table maintained at meetings for members who attend without a partner. Mrs. Edward Sakach, ways and means chairman, was cited for producing an ad book at the club's recent fashion show.

Mrs. Douglas Lytle, bulletin chairman, won an award for her excellent communication with members and for information she added to the bulletin sent out each month. Mrs. Carl Holm, publicity chairman, was cited for complete news coverage of club events.

Seven scholarships went to Prospect Heights students, the awards made by Mrs. Donald Bowker, safety and education chairman. Recipients were David Denley, Terry Golembiewski, Bonnie Allie, Linda Letche, Marie Klein, Bonnie Bowker and Britt Magnuson.

DAVID DENLEY, 101 Wolf Road, earned a $200 Wheeling High School scholarship to attend the University of Chicago and major in chemistry. A $265 library scholarship went to Terry Golembiewski, 11 N. Wheeling Road, a senior at Sacred Heart of Mary High School who will enter Rosary College. This is the remainder of a sum given the club in a Shell Oil contest several years ago.

Two $75 art awards for a week at Allerton Park of the University of Illinois went to Bonnie Allie, 2 S. Park Drive, a Hersey High student, and to Linda Letche, 1005 Wildwood, a Wheeling High student.

Two music awards for a week at a university this summer went to Marie Klein, 202 N. Park Drive, and Bonnie Bowker, 118 N. Parkway. Marie attends Wheeling High, plays flute in the symphony band and will enter Eastern Illinois University in fall. Bonnie, a Hersey High student, is a singer and recently played the female lead of Marian the Librarian in the Music Man production at Hersey High School.

A CONSERVATION scholarship went to Britt Magnuson, 101 Elaine Circle West, a student at Wheeling High, who will attend Southern Illinois University for a week this summer.

Two of these students entertained after the luncheon meeting. Bonnie Bowker sang folk songs with her guitar, and Marie Klein played selections on her flute.

Three new officers were installed by Mrs. Frank Krempel, recording secretary of 7th District IFWC. Mrs. Donald Bennett became treasurer; Mrs. Donald McGowan, first vice president; and Mrs. Todd Olson, corresponding secretary.

Among the committee chairmen are Mrs. Phillip Glaser, ways and means with Mrs. Arthur Bochenek her assistant; Mrs. E. Sakach, public relations; Mrs. J. McGowan, program; Mrs. J. Jackson, publicity; Mrs. D. Lytle, library; Mrs. Fred Olds, bulletin; Mrs. Donald Schmidt, hospitality; and Mrs. D. Bowker, safety and education.

State Honors Go to Arlington Club

Arlington Heights Woman's Club received recognition at the recent 74th annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs at the Sherman House, Chicago. Eight state awards, earned in competition with over 1,000 federated clubs, were presented to the Arlington club at the IFWC Chairman's Awards Breakfast May 8.

Chairman Mrs. Robert Novak accepted the club's first place award for the largest monetary contribution to Lincoln Lodge, Boys Town of Illinois. Mrs. Edwin Getting, 7th District Lincoln Lodge chairman, received an award for the best district report.

First place for service in Indian affairs was earned by Mrs. Joseph Koenen, chairman, and Mrs. William Stark, 7th District chairman, received an award for best district report.

AN AWARD WAS given for outstanding achievement in work for the Illinois Cottage of Park Ridge School for Girls under guidance of Mrs. Carl Gebauer.

The club was recognized for best all-around citizenship activity and for outstanding achievement in legislation. Both awards were accepted by Mrs. Ralph Lidke, president, in the absence of Mrs. Irving Crystal, chairman.

First place in international affairs was earned for the largest monetary contribution to the Latin American Student Exchange Fund. Mrs. Samuel Wit is chairman.

In an afternoon session at the convention, Mrs. Stephen Jurco, past president of the Arlington club and now international affairs chairman of the Illinois Federation, reported on the Latin American student exchange project. Linde Callpack of Mount Pulaski and Kathy Lee Beecher of Monmouth were introduced as winners of these travel awards. After a 2-week training seminar in Putney, Vt., the girls will spend 52 days in Brazil.

Theme for this year's convention was a patriotic one: "Our American Way — Peace, Home, Friendship." The keynote address on "Speak Up for America," was given by Dr. Kenneth McFarland, former superintendent of Topeka, Kan., schools and now a professional lecturer. He stressed that equality in the American system never meant equality of achievement, but that every individual has the right to put his foot on the first rung of the ladder and go as far as his ability will take him. It is not happiness that is guaranteed, according to Dr. McFarland, but the pursuit of happiness.

Juniors Go Italiana

The May banquet of the Arlington Heights Junior Women's Club, "Banchetto Di Maggio Fieta Italiana," was held last night Wednesday at Corrado's Restaurant, Rand Road. The dinner meeting was highlighted by installation of officers.

Entertainment for the evening was by the Vocales, a singing group from Forest View High School. Mrs. John Noerenberg was Mistress of Ceremonies.

Banquet Chairman, Mrs. William Hardt, was assisted by Mrs. Raymond Becker, invitations; Mrs. Dennis Parry, reservations; Mrs. Miller, decorations; Mrs. Barwell Salmon, cookbook.

Scholarship Presentations Highlight May Banquet

Presentation of two $500 scholarships and announcement of plans for a Helping Hand program at Hanover Highland School were highlights of the annual May banquet for Hanover Park Woman's Club. The scholarship winners, Ellen Bartlett and Richard Lillianstrom, along with Mrs. Ben Carnes, immediate past president of 7th District Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, were guests of honor at the banquet which was held recently in Indian Lakes Country Club.

To Mrs. Alan Wade went the "Miss Chips" award for highest monetary support of the club's ways and means projects, and to Mrs. Robert Rieker went the award for highest number of hours given to volunteer work.

FINAL REPORTS for the year, given

Change Concerts To Thursday Eve

"Concert For A Summer Night," the summer open air park concert series of the Palatine Village Band, will be presented on Thursdays at 8 P.M. this season, June 12 to Aug. 14 inclusive. This is the 11th year for this series which in the past has been given on Friday nights. In response to numerous requests from the park audiences the change will be made for this year to test listeners' preferences. For this year's summer series, musical director Dr. John R. Shoemaker promises many surprises including new soloists and guest conductors.

THE BAND is sponsored by the Village of Palatine and the Palatine Park District, and the summer series has been presented from the bandstand in Palatine Community Park, Palatine Road and Northwest Hwy. A new bandstand may be available this year, and concerts may be scheduled for the new golf course area if this proves suitable for the comfort of the audience.

Other appearances of the Band during the summer will be: the United Air Lines-Universal Studios "Disneyland" at O'Hare Airport, May 25; Palatine Memorial Day Services, May 30; the Roselle "Rose Day" Parade, June 8; the Elk Grove 11th Annual "Peony Pageant," June 22, the Palatine 4th of July Parade; and the Elgin Wing Park "Music Under The Stars" concert series on Aug. 21.

DEAN ROWE (center) who plays Felix in Des Plaines Theatre Guild's production of "The Odd Couple," will haul out the photos of his ex-wife and family again this Friday and Saturday

Screen 13th District Candidates

Democrat candidates for 13th District congressman will undergo screening Monday by the eight Democratic committeemen of the district.

The committeemen, acting as a screening committee, have urged any person interested in the office to contact his township committeeman.

The preliminary screening will be at 8 p.m. in the Glenview Country House, 1516 Waukegan Road, Glenview.

Through a press release, committeemen state they look forward to the special 13th District election "as an opportunity to elect a Democratic congressman for the first time." They also state the election will be based on issues and not clouded by candidacies for other high offices.

LOCAL DEMOCRAT committeemen are Chester Chesney in Elk Grove Township, James McCabe in Wheeling Township, Ed Degan in Schaumburg Township and Pete Gerling in Palatine Township.

Committeemen ask that candidates send a biographical resume in advance of the May 28 meeting to the Democratic 13th Congressional District Committee, 4332 W. Oakton St., Skokie.

Cong. Donald Rumsfeld is expected to vacate his 13th District seat soon to become director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie then must take the next step in declaring the office vacant and setting a date for a special election.

The 13th District has traditionally been a Republican stronghold, and two Republicans have already announced candidacy — former Metropolitan Sanitary District Trustee Gerald Marks of Wilmette and former Ogilvie Press Secretary Joseph Mathewson of Winnetka.

Breather's Over

The 3rd District Citizens for a Constitutional Convention will reorganize Saturday after a five-month "breather" while the legislature sets out con-con legislation.

The citizens committee will meet at 3 p.m. in the School Dist. 21 administration center, Wheeling. Its last meeting was Dec. 10 when nine members voted to keep the organization active until the referendum on a new Illinois constitution.

Members also switched the organization's goal from winning a "yes" vote on a call for a constitutional convention to ensuring meaningful changes in the state's 1870 constitution.

They decided to keep the committee's efforts geared to public education and not take positions on issues.

ORIGINAL by-laws called for the committee to dissolve two months after the Nov. 5 con-con vote.

Kenneth Gill, School Dist. 21 superintendent and chairman of the citizens committee, and Mrs. George Schroeder, League of Women Voters, were appointed a by-laws committee to redraw the group's purpose and expiration date.

Members decided Dec. 10 not to meet again until after the legislature adopted a bill setting procedures for holding a convention. A bill outlining delegate election procedures and the convening of delegates was signed into law May 7 by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

SATURDAY'S meeting of the 3rd District citizens committee is expected to bring adoption of new by-laws, election of officers and determination of direction of the group's activity.

Gill said last week he is not interested in running for con-con delegate but is willing to retain chairmanship of the citizens committee.

Loss to Wheeling, High School Basketball

'Hard to Leave...I Welcome The Challenge'

by KEITH REINHARD

Wheeling suffered one of its biggest losses this week.

And it didn't come on the playing field. Tuesday the announcement was made that Mike Owens, Wheeling's only head basketball coach, won't be barking at referees, shrugging off poorly executed plays and building another championship contender in the Mid-Suburban league next winter.

He has been named assistant varsity coach at Northwestern University.

NU's GAIN IS not just Wheeling's loss. It's a loss to high school basketball in general. By the same token, Owens' fiery competitive nature and his thorough basketball savvy can't help but intensify the Northwestern cage program.

Owens himself sees the shift as somewhat of a gamble on their part and a challenge for him. "They have to be taking a chance of sorts in going not only with a non-college coach but a non-Northwestern one to boot."

At the same time the former Bradley great is looking forward to the new assignment and feels he can make a contribution to the university's cage system. "I welcome the challenge," he says.

His new boss will be Brad Snyder, a product of NU who assumed the head hardwood slot there at the tailend of last season, replacing Larry Glass.

"I'M IMPRESSED with Brad Snyder," Owens observed. "He has some good ideas about the game and a real desire to produce some winning basketball teams.

"I think too that our ideas on how to win are pretty similar," Owens added. "I can't conceive of any problem in readjusting to his style of coaching."

The fiery redhead from Peoria did note a problem he encountered in accepting the new position however: "The toughest part of the decision was having to leave the basketball program at Wheeling, all the work that's gone into it, the coaches who have helped mold it, and the kids moving through it now and all the potential they represent."

OWENS CAME TO Wheeling in 1964 and built up a championship team from scratch. While the paint was still drying at the brand new school, a seniorless band suffered through a 1-19 inaugural campaign, the following year that was improved to 5-16 and in just his third year at the helm, Wheeling was playing winning basketball.

In 1967-68 the first group to go completely through the Owens cage program won a share of the circuit crown and finished with a 17-5 mark all told. This past season the Wildcats were 19-6 overall including both an MSL and a regional title.

"It's hard to leave all this, when you're beginning to see some dividends and you feel there is more coming. And it's hard to tell kids who will be back next year who have worked hard for you and believe in you, that you're sort of abandoning them."

"MY WIFE JUDY was especially disappointed when I first told her of my decision to leave. She's suffered through those lean times with me and her first thoughts were about me giving it all up now that the program was looking successful."

"But she wants to go along with the challenge now too. And all the encouragement I've received from friends make it that much easier to abide by my decision."

Wheeling or Northwestern, there is one problem Owens won't be called upon to encounter.

His youngsters have been raised to be Wildcat fans.

They merely transfer their allegiance to a collegiate variety now.

Walkin' the Sidelines

by PAUL LOGAN

DECISION TIME is here for many young men who will be graduating in a few weeks with college being the next step. But some college-bound preps are still not sure what college they are bound for.

For you who have average or above grades and a desire to excel in college sports, Harper Community College could be what you've been looking for.

Harper's $15 million dollar campus will be throwing open its new doors this fall to students in the Paddock area. And Harper coaches are hopeful that some of the area's fine student-athletes will choose to wear the maroon and gold.

Bob Nolan is especially interested because he is head coach of two sports at Harper — cross country and track. But he's somewhat disturbed because he's found that there's some misunderstanding about Harper which exists in the minds of some of the area coaches and students. He explains:

"I talked to a coach and asked him if his boy was thinking of enrolling in Harper was his stint in the Marine Corp as a sergeant. During that time he played for the service in both football and baseball and added, "It was nice to be able to stay close to sports and I got some valuable experience."

Following marriage and graduation from the University of Illinois, Nolan was hired by his former coach, Dr. Sheldon Fordham, who is now director of athletics.

In 1961 he became head cross country coach and a year later took on the track duties, also. During the next eight and seven years, respectively, he rolled up impressive records against stiff opposition — .683 winning percentage with the harriers (53-26-1) and a .615 mark with the thinclads (44-20-1).

His track team also copped the eight-team Gateway Conference (Illinois and Wisconsin schools) four out of the five years they were associated with it.

He would like to see this same domination in the Northern Illinois Junior College League. And he thinks this can be accomplished because "it's a good area for track," he exclaimed after witnessing the recent district meet at Forest View.

"There's plenty of good talent this year. I'm hoping that Harper can be an extension of the good job that is being done on the high school level."

"I'm optimistic that next year the two sports I'm connected with will have better seasons," he said confidently.

Nolan listed such things as summer workouts, returning lettermen, after school practicing, spectator interest and larger numbers trying out that couldn't be because of job conflicts.

"The important thing is that I just hope the students would take a good look at what Harper has to offer," he pointed out. "They should investigate further. . . even contact me. I'd certainly welcome the opportunity to talk to anyone."

One has to be impressed with Bob Nolan. He's a straight shooter. He's been a highly respected college coach and a winner as the record shows. He's out to make the Hawk track and cross country teams a power in the league, the state and the nation as well.

All he needs are some dedicated young men who are in search of a good education as well as a desire to excel in athletics. So all of you fit this above average mold and are searching your souls as to where you want to begin your education, don't forget what this Harper coach said.

His number is in the telephone directory.

per next year. But his comment was "Oh no! He's got good grades and he's an 'A' student."

People have the impression that just because Harper College is a two-year institution it's easier and not much of a challenge, according to Nolan. But this is just not the case. If anything, the accent at Harper — like at any other reputable school — is first on academics and then on athletics.

"I don't like to hear them (athletes) saying, 'I'm going to Harper because of its good track team.' I would like to hear them say, 'They've got a good school.'"

Other things Nolan thought the student-athlete should consider were:

1) the new campus facilities which are equal or better than any in the state;

2) the smallness of the college which might more address itself to the needs of some students;

3) the fine counseling service for those who are not quite sure of what direction they want to take academically; and

4) the economic standpoint — living at home for one or two years would save the individual a sizable amount that could be used later at a four-year institution.

"Then, athletically, we've got the programs (basketball, baseball, cross country, golf, tennis, track and wrestling) for them," he said. "They get the chance to participate in conference and regional play and then go on to national competition. I don't see any Harper athlete being held back . . . the opportunity is there for them."

A shining example of how a Harper athlete can go all the way to the top is an Arlington Heights product, Bill Von Boeckmann. Recently he helped his team win the Region IV championship and a berth in the national finals next month in Florida.

"It's certainly nice, in fact almost surprising or amazing to accomplish this in the first year," said Nolan of Coach Roy Kearns' team. "It's nice to have a guy (Von Boeckmann) like that when you're starting a program."

Nolan's two teams lacked such seasoned individuals during the 1968-69 seasons in cross country and track. And this lack of experience and leadership hurt the teams' chances of finishing as winners.

The Hawk harriers compiled a 4-6 mark (400 percentage) this spring and the thinclads racked up a 4-5 record (444). Both of these totals might have been adequate for some coaches who are initiating a new athletic program, but not for Nolan. He's been a winner all of his life and he wants to keep it that way.

After prepping at St. George High School in Evanston, he headed for the University of Illinois Undergraduate Division located at Navy Pier — later to become the Chicago Circle Campus in the mid-1960s.

Nolan found spirited competition from the four-year schools that took on his Navy Pier team but the two-year school was a winner because of some inspired coaching.

"We had a pretty good group of dedicated coaches which impressed me," he recalled.

Another thing that influenced his career

Lt. Douglas Vaughan Dies From Wounds in Viet Nam

Lt. JG Douglas Vaughan died Tuesday of wounds received in an ambush on a river patrol at Quang Nai Coastal Group 16, South Vietnam.

Lt. Vaughan, who graduated from Prospect High School in 1962 and the United States Naval Academy, was wounded April 22 and has been at the Third Army Hospital, Saigon.

He was awarded the Bronze Star for Valor and the Purple Heart.

Lt. Vaughan, who participated in football, wrestling, and cross country at Prospect and captained the Knight wrestling team, served three tours of duty after graduating from Annapolis.

He served on the Destroyer Radford before the tour which took him to South Vietnam as an adviser to a river patrol.

STRAINING FOR that extra distance in state long jump qualifying Friday afternoon is Arlington's Sam Wit. The Cardinal entry failed to reach the finals in the event won by Alton's Oscar Wallace with an Illinois record of 24.6 1/4.

Cougars Fall to Hersey in Tennis

Hersey from sweeping by Conant in conference tennis action on the Huskie courts.

The meet, originally slated at Conant, was captured by Hersey 4-1.

Mike McLean edged Cougar Nick Kron at first singles, 6-2, 6-3 while Milt Chen was recording a 6-3, 6-2 win over Roger O'Keefe of Conant at second singles and Huskie Rick Leadley was working to a 4-6, 6-1, 6-2 decision over Jim Fortman in the third singles battle.

Stein Ohrstrom and Tom Ruprecht turned back Mike Bierma and Ric Reif of the Cougars in the first doubles clash 6-1,

On Second - Earl Webb

Earl Webb of the Boston Red Sox set a one-season record with 67 doubles during the 1931 season.

6-1. Mark Stevens and Tom Lefebvre averted the shutdown by stopping Huskies Bill Hutton and Mike Dunne in the second doubles bout 6-3, 6-3.

Hersey freshman netmen toppled the visitors by an identical 4-1 score.

Walter's Wild Inning

Walter Johnson of the Washington Senators set a record when he threw four wild pitches in one inning in a game on Sept. 21, 1914.

Liked Those Three-Baggers

Sam Crawford, who spent 19 years in the major leagues with Cincinnati and Detroit holds the lifetime record for triples with 312.

'Cats Score Three In Eighth for Win

BY KEITH REINHARD

Some things may be cheaper by the dozen.

Not conference baseball victories though.

After breezing past most of their first 11 loop foes, Wheeling was nearly upended by a visiting Arlington squad playing the host role Tuesday. Four straight hits in the eighth inning eventually allowed the Wildcats to savor a 6-4 conquest in the seasaw battle.

MARTY CRAIN sat on the borderline between hero and goat until slapping a single through the box in the eighth stanza to drive home what proved to be the winning run. Up until that time the chief mar on his nifty four-hit pitching performance was his own throwing miscue enabling the Cards to forge a 3-3 deadlock earlier in the game.

Crain also learned that his jinx inning isn't the seventh but the last. He finally doused Arlington's overtime rally, though, in time to post his fifth conference triumph without a defeat this spring.

Wheeling cracked the scoreboard first, on back-to-back singles by Jack Bastable and Dino Sheridan allowing Don Wright, who had reached on an error, to score.

IN THE BOTTOM of the opening inning, the Cardinals came right back with two runs. Jim Baumgartner reached on a bad throw, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Jim Kolari's base hit, and Kolari moved around and in on another wild pitch and another error.

The 'Cats got both of these runs back in the top of the third. Don Wright singled up the middle to lead off and scampered all the way to third while Bastable beat out an infield single.

Bastable advanced to second on a ground out and he and Wright both managed to dash home on Cary Salm's bunt single.

KOLARI WORKED Crain for a free pass to open the bottom of the third and one out later would have probably been caught up in a double play had Crain's throw to second on Jim Bokelmann's grounder been on target. Kolari made it to third instead and sauntered across with the tying run when Gary Anderson laced a single up the middle.

Crain and Arlington twirler Bokelmann made a pitcher's duel out of the game through the rest of regulation play. In the seventh with one out and runners on first and second Bastable came to bat right-handed after singling three straight times as a lefty. The first pitch to him went astray, the runners advanced and Bastable was purposely passed.

One of three double plays pulled off by Arlington then got Bokelmann out of that bases-loaded jam.

IN THE EIGHTH though Dan Hull reached on an error, Scott Day singled and Bob Fitzgerald blasted a double against the fence to score Hull. Crain then ripped off his single, chasing in Day and chasing Bokelmann off the mound.

Anderson came in to pitch and Gary Schweitzer greeted him with a single to push home Fitzgerald.

In the bottom of the eighth Bokelmann walked, stole second, moved to third on Anderson's hit and scored when Dave Armstrong drilled a hit to left.

A fielder's choice then snuffed out the rally and the Wildcats had a dozen conference wins and a 16-1 overall record.

Knights Slip By Cougar Nine, 2-1

Ron Dolejs hurtled six innings of shutout ball and Randy Cordova barely escaped from a seventh-inning rally as Prospect defeated Conant 2-1 in a Mid-Suburban League baseball game on the loser's field.

Dolejs went six frames allowed only two hits before being lifted for a pinch hitter as Prospect led 2-0.

Mike Wulbecker led off the fourth inning with a single, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on an error to give the Knights a 1-0 lead.

Prospect scored its second run in the seventh inning as Dave Somers reached first on an error, went to second on a sacrifice went to third on an error and scored on a sacrifice.

Conant had an opportunity to at least tie the game in the seventh inning but the Cougars fell short.

John Furio walked to open the seventh and Bill Donovan reached first when the catcher was called for interference. Fu-rio scored Conant's first run when John MacDonald reached base on an error.

Prospect catcher Jim Carroll picked off Donovan and later caught MacDonald in a rundown which killed the rally.

MacDonald, the losing pitcher, gave up only three hits.

Bills Could Reduce Hospital Costs

Legislation that could bring a substantial reduction in hospital bills is being shepherded through the Illinois House of Representatives by Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

They are aimed at reducing hospital construction costs which must be absorbed by hospital patients as part of their room charge.

The measures, House Bills 2492-3-4, are on a third reading, the passage stage, in their circuit through the House legislative channels.

THE HOUSE EXECUTIVE committee, which includes State Rep. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, gave the bills a "do pass" after hearing testimony by Northwest Community Hospital administrator Malcolm MacCuen for the Illinois Hospital Association, which supports the bills.

MacCuen told the House executive committee that approval of the bills could cut in half the mortgage charges built onto a hospital patient's daily bill.

The bills would do this by making bonds sold for non profit hospital construction projects tax free, as are municipal bonds, and by making it possible for the state to sell the bonds through the Illinois Building Authority.

MacCuen TOLD THE Herald this would reduce hospital construction costs — costs that must be passed on to the patient — in two ways:

— It would mean the bonds would sell at a lower interest rate. In the current market, he said, tax-free bonds draw an interest rate 20 per cent lower than bonds whose income is taxable.

— It would make it possible for the bond payments to be spread over a longer period of time, as much as 25 years compared to the 10 to 15 years "at best" a bonding house is willing to consider on taxable bonds in today's tight money market.

He said a 325-bed hospital, larger than Northwest but smaller than Lutheran General, with a $5 million debt that must be paid off in 10 years, must charge $9 per day per patient for debt service, assuming the hospital averages 100,000 patient days annually.

THAT SAME HOSPITAL, MacCuen told the Herald, could reduce the per-patient-day charge for debt service, the amount the hospital applies to its bond repayment fund, down to $4.50 if the institution could finance its construction with tax-free bonds paid off over a 25-year period.

Though MacCuen didn't say so, the savings for patients at Northwest Community might be even greater.

Northwest Community has 223 beds, and MacCuen said that hospitals smaller than his 325-bed example must charge more per day per patient to cover the same debt cost while a larger hospital could charge less per day per patient.

Unsightly Kitchen Cabinets?

Don't Paint! Don't Paste-over!

CABINETPAK® Laminated Panels offer complete kitchen restyling at a fraction of the cost of replacement cabinets and their installation. And results are permanent with maintenance-free FORMICA®. And the kitchen is not torn-up and torn-out for weeks at a time.

Present cabinets, wood or metal, are left in position and act as a framework for the new panels. Quickly and easily, CABINETPAK® Laminated Panels can be attached. Other exposed cabinet areas are then covered with a specially developed pressure-sensitive Formica® Laminate... and just like that... a "new" kitchen is born.

Nixon Names Burger

WASHINGTON — President Nixon nominated Warren E. Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States last night. Burger is judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The nomination to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren is subject to Senate confirmation. The new Chief Justice would take office when the court convenes its new term next October.

Sirhan Given Death

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan was formally sentenced to death in the California gas chamber for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy despite a letter pleading for clemency from the family of the slain senator.

In ordering Sirhan's death, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ignored the letter from Kennedy's brother, and denied defense motions for a new trial after a day-long hearing.

Apollo 10 Flawless

SPACE CENTER Houston — Apollo 10 whipped behind the moon last night and then flawlessly settled into a lunar orbit where the three pilots will spend the next 2 days testing the machinery to land a man on the moon in July.

Hats off the guys in the trench mission control, said Eugene Cernan. I love them. Say thank you big.

Con-Con Test Suit

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of the Constitutional Convention filed suit yesterday to test the constitutionality of the recently passed law for Con-Con.

A taxpayers suit filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court by Chicago Atty. James O'Neil asked the court to declare the law unconstitutional and issue injunctions against state officials to prevent them from preparing for delegate elections.

Delay Vigilante Bill

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to repeal the 1965 vigilante law had to be postponed in the Senate when it ran into surprising opposition from Republicans.

Several members, citing the White Hats' group in Cairo, said there might be a need for the law which permits citizens to form companies to deal with horse thieves, incendiaries and other felons.

Hill Battle Defended

SALT LAKE CITY — U.S. commanders have defended the controversial offensive for Hamburger Hill and ordered a fresh battalion of American paratroopers to hold the peak near Laos.

One commander said: "If we wanted to let the enemy stay on the hill, we would have had to call off the whole operation. And that would have invited the enemy to stockpile supplies for new offensives."

Defense of Thailand

BANGKOK — Foreign Minister Thanat Khuman of Thailand said yesterday he believed the United States is committed by a 1954 treaty to help defend his country not only against open warfare but Communist-led guerrilla attacks.

His statement made at a news conference shortly after the close of the 14th annual ministerial meeting of SEATO went beyond anything U.S. officials have been willing to acknowledge.

Parade Permit Ruling

CHICAGO — U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker said he will rule tomorrow on a suit filed by a group of north suburban Evanston Vietnam War protesters challenging the constitutionality of their city's parade permit granting procedure.

The North Shore Coalition against the War in Vietnam has received a permit from the Evanston City Council for a May 24 march, but the group is dissatisfied with the route granted for the parade.

TREES, SHRUBS and evergreens have been disappearing from the former National Nursery in Schaumburg because area residents think they're free for the taking. Schaumburg Patrolman

William Heidt explains to residents that the nursery stock cannot be removed and persons taking it are subject to theft charges.

Misinformed People Attack Nursery

Like the famous gold rush of the 1800s, hordes of people from surrounding villages have been digging up the nursery stock behind what used to be National Nursery on Golf Road, east of Highland in Schaumburg.

Hundreds of persons have been misinformed that the stock was free for the taking, said Martin Conroy, Schaumburg police chief. "They have been coming for the last few days to the rear of the old nursery where the former owner still lives. The area is behind his house."

The people were arriving in cars, pickup trucks, and other vehicles. Then, with shovels in one hand and a flashlight in the other, they attack the field, digging up evergreens, trees, shrubs and bushes.

One officer said, "The minute I chase them away some more of them come. They're going through people's yards and everything."

"FROM NOW ON, all subjects will be apprehended and charged with theft," Conroy said.

"The owners of the property, which is in the name of the Schaumburg Land Trust, have advised us that they will sign complaints against these people, and they want to prosecute them also.

"Since this first began, the number of people coming out to the area has grown and grown. They're just like ants. They are causing traffic problems on Golf Road."

"We've issued orders on our public address system telling these people to get out. We will lock anyone up if they don't get out."

Conroy said half of the items being taken won't grow again. "They do it only because it's something for nothing," he said.

The people are coming from Hanover, Schaumburg, Streamwood and other towns.

Hear Mathewson

Joseph Mathewson, Republican candidate for the 13th district Congressional seat being vacated by Donald Rumsfeld, will address the Timbercrest Homeowners Association 8 p.m. Friday in Schaumburg's Great Hall.

Rumsfeld was recently appointed by President Nixon to head the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Mathewson formerly served as press secretary for Gov. Richard Ogilvie. He left WBBM-TV last July to join the Ogilvie campaign and was named press secretary following Ogilvie's election.

IN ANNOUNCING his candidacy May 14, Mathewson pledged his support to the Nixon Administration, declaring "it has already buoyed up the nation with new ideas and new hope for our most pressing problems, at home and abroad." Mathewson resides in Winnetka.

Mathewson, 35, was a reporter with The Wall Street Journal for six years, in Chicago, New York and Washington. In the capital he covered Congress and the Supreme Court. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Dartmouth College, he did postgraduate work at a branch of John Hopkins University in Italy.

"My background provides me with the broad base of knowledge and understanding needed by every member of Congress, and particularly by the member who has the high honor and privilege of representing the 13th district of Illinois," the candidate stated.

GOVERNOR OGILVIE has not yet announced dates for the special primary and general election in which the 13th district congressional vacancy will be filled. However, the special primary is expected to be held in October.

Ogilvie has indicated that he will not endorse any particular candidate in the GOP race.

Mutual benefits for local residents and Schaumburg Township teenagers are being obtained through the summer employment program of the township Committee on Youth (COY).

The summer employment program is designed to provide summer jobs for 11 through 16-year-olds.

Forty teens have registered for summer jobs to date, according to COY community worker John Mikonowicz of the Illinois Youth Commission. This total includes 24 boys and 16 girls. Fifteen have been placed in jobs so far.

Jobs available include lawn care, general maintenance, painting, assistance to mothers, babysitting and tutoring for interested members of the community.

"MANY OF THE KIDS don't get serious about getting a summer job until school is out," Mikonowicz said.

Last year 150 teens signed up for summer work through COY.

Mikonowicz said the youth committee keeps a listing of odd jobs available throughout the year, but summer is the busiest time for the program.

"Burger King in Hoffman Estates has hired several of our youths and they've been a very fine employer in handling teens," Mikonowicz noted.

An important facet of the summer employment program, Mikonowicz said, is the exposure of the teenager to a job application form, often for the first time. "We emphasize work as an 'in' thing," he said.

"We need more jobs for both boys and girls," the COY worker said.

"ANY TEEN INTERESTED in obtaining summer employment should register at the Committee on Youth Office, Golf-Rose Plaza, Hoffman Estates," said youth worker Barry Schoenbrod of the township youth committee.

Schoenbrod said COY wants to place as many teens in jobs as possible.

"We want to provide summer jobs in order to give the teenagers something to do and help them to earn spending money," Schoenbrod said.

The rate of payment for summer jobs, usually on an hourly basis, is determined by the summer applicant and the homeowner with a job he wants done. Schoenbrod explained.

Local homeowners interested in helping to provide employment for the teen corps may call the office of the Committee on Youth 894-5242 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. daily. Staff workers of the township youth committee then match jobs available with youths seeking summer work.

"RESIDENTS PLANNING their vacations can arrange to have their lawns taken care of by our job applicants," Mikonowicz said.

"A summer job can be of real value to teens in providing work experience as well as helping them to earn money," said Dist. 54 Business Services Director Marvin Lapicola.

Dist. 54 hires about six teens each summer for summer maintenance work. They are paid between $1.75 and $2.25 per hour. Mainly, these summer employees are college students home on vacation or recent high school graduates.

"We prefer the 17 through 20-year-old youth," Lapicola said. The summer employees are assigned to work crews for lawn care and maintenance work in the district. They work a 40-hour week.

The Schaumburg Township Public Library has nine teens employed as "pages" or library assistants during the summer as a continuation of a year-round program. All are high school pupils. They are paid from $1 to $1.50 an hour, depending on experience.

"THE PAGES ARE RATED during the year and their summer hours are based on this rating," said Librarian Michael Madden. "The one with the highest rating gets the most hours of work."

The pages shelf books, arrange magazines, make posters, or assist in office work, Madden said.

Find Stolen Auto

Schaumburg police found a stolen auto early Wednesday at Rodenburg Road 300 feet south of Route 19, with a suitcase, garment bag, trench coat, and portable typewriter missing from the car.

The auto, owned by Michael McCarthy, 1328 Comcord Lane, Roselle, was found with a dead battery and the keys in the ignition.

McCarthy told police the suitcase contained one week's supply of clothes and the garment bag had one suit and three pair of slacks in it.

Plan To Take Hard Line With Mrs. Vogelei

The village of Hoffman Estates will take a hard line with Mrs. Ida Vogelei, owner of a 10-acre tract of land at Higgins and Jones Road which has been leased to Hoffman Kosner Corp. for use as a lumber yard for the past five years.

At the suggestion of Village Atty. Edward C. Hofert, trustees directed Building Inspector Dan Murphy to undertake a complete investigation of the buildings and report back to the board next week.

Presently Mrs. Vogelei is in violation of a special use permit granted for use by the builder more than five years ago. The land has now reverted back to its original B-3 zoning and Mrs. Vogelei refuses to let representatives of the building firm enter her property to remove the buildings.

SHE CONTENDS that the company must first replace between two and three feet of fill removed from portions of the land and restore the property to its former condition.

After a tour of the land with Mrs. Vogelei last weekend, Village Pres. Frederick E. Downey and several of the trustees reported their findings.

"I think it's unfair that people who purchase homes in Schaumburg's Churchhill subdivision should have to overlook this unkempt property," Downey said, noting that he did not feel after inspection that the village would be able to utilize any of the temporary buildings.

Restoration has been estimated at about $35,000 and Hofert suggested the builder be asked to place that amount in escrow for Mrs. Vogelei. He maintains that after this has been done and she has been confronted with the situation concerning violations, if Mrs. Vogelei is still unwilling to comply she then should be prosecuted.

"NO ONE IS ABOVE the law," Hofert said.

Only Mrs. Virginia Hayter, board member and chairman of the municipal complex committee, appeared to disagree with Hofert's idea. When brought to a voice vote on the inspection, Mrs. Hayter did not respond either negatively or affirmatively.

She had earlier expressed preference for a softer line with Mrs. Vogelei since the property had at one time been suggested as a possible site for an administrative complex for the village.

Mrs. Hayter told the board that Mrs. Vogelei wants an offer on the land from the village and that if they pursue the hard line "this shuts the door forever" on the land.

"THE WHOLE VILLAGE cannot stop just because this woman wants something a certain way," Trustee Edward Hennessey commented.

An adjacent 10 acres also owned by Mrs. Vogelei is now under negotiation for purchase by the park district. The matter has been pending since late last summer because Mrs. Vogelei prefers to act as her own legal counsel.

Rev. Cusack Resigns From Youth Group

Rev. Martin Cusack of Schaumburg has submitted his resignation from the Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth.

Father Cusack's resignation was accepted "with regrets" at Tuesday's COY meeting.

In a letter sent to the township youth committee, Father Cusack stated that "my parish commitments have grown to such a degree that I can no longer devote the time necessary to participate in the Committee on Youth." Father Cusack is associate pastor of St. Marcelline's parish in Schaumburg.

OTHER MEMBERS of the Committee on Youth are: William Ohlson, chairman, Ronald Persche, Charles Hanlon, John Harkness, Daniel Stowe, John Plum, and John Karstrom.

The Committee on Youth was created by the township board of auditors to develop programs to prevent and combat juvenile delinquency. It is made up of local citizens who live in the township.

Summer Garbage Schedule Told

The summer garbage pickup program in Hanover Park will go into effect June 2. There will be pickups twice weekly by the Glen Ridge Disposal Service for village residents.

The summer schedule of garbage pickups is: All homes west of Barrington Road, Mondays and Thursdays; Longmeadows north and south sections, Tuesday and Friday; and Hanover Highlands, Wednesday and Saturday.

This schedule will remain in effect through August.

Trustees Balk At Serving On Saturdays

Most Hoffman Estates trustees appeared to disagree with Mrs. Virginia M. Hayter's request Monday that each member of the village board take a weekly turn at staffing special 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. office hours on Saturdays.

Although the village clerk's office is open during that period, Mrs. Hayter suggested that a trustee be present to talk with residents who may come in with complaints.

"I do not agree," Trustee Bruce Lind said. "People are allowed sufficient time for this type of discussion at our weekly Monday night board meetings."

"PERHAPS WE MIGHT look into this when we are in a position to cut our meetings back to twice a month, but right now we do conduct an open meeting and favor audience participation. I, for one, would like to have Saturday morning to mow my lawn," Lind said.

Although no other trustee appeared to share Mrs. Hayter's enthusiasm for the Saturday project, Pres. Frederick E. Downey told her the board would take her proposal under advisement.

Trustees Grind Out Budget

Meeting as a committee-of-the-whole this week, Hoffman Estates trustees began their annual work toward grinding out a budget.

With Trustee William Cowin serving as finance committee chairman, the group has started an in depth study of financial needs for the coming year.

With May 1 established as the beginning of the fiscal year, village officials are somewhat hard pressed to prepare the budget for adoption within a 60 day period.

PRELIMINARY FIGURES indicated that the police department budget could be increased by approximately 50 percent, Pres. Frederick E. Downey told the Herald Wednesday.

Downey also said that presently he is unable to even estimate the amount of the total budget on completion.

The committee will continue to meet regularly within the next few weeks in order to meet the early July deadline, he indicated.

Ostermann Added To Police Force

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy announced Tuesday that William J. Ostermann, 25, 511 N. Hickory, Arlington Heights, has been added to the force as an officer.

Ostermann was a former policeman for two years in Mount Prospect. He is an ex-marine and has a wife, Susan and one child. He begins duty in Schaumburg June 1.

Ostermann is a graduate of Arlington Heights High School and is currently attending the LaSalle extension of the University of Chicago where he is studying law and criminal law.

He is the son of Arlington Heights lieutenant Joseph E. Ostermann.

Orlick New Hickory Hills Police Chief

Hoffman Estates first police chief, Mark Orlick, was named police chief for Hickory Hills this week by Thomas Watson, mayor of the south suburban community.

Orlick, 61, of 1529 Scott St., Chicago Heights, recently resigned from the administrative section of Cook County highway department.

AFTER HIS RESIGNATION from Hoffman Estates Police Department nearly five years ago, Orlick served as Chicago Heights police chief.

He was succeeded locally by Chief John J. O'Connell.

jacket and the other while with a group of club members, were fined $5 and were forced to give up their jackets for a week at a recent meeting.

For any violation a member is "stripped of his colors," articles with the club emblem, and fines are imposed if the violation is serious.

Other rules of the club say that while wearing the colors or with any other club members, a Midnight Mover isn't allowed to speed, drive recklessly, patch his tires or race.

After two violations, the members are out of the club.

Police school liaison officer Ted Homeyer says the club is somewhat exclusive organization and a status symbol.

"SOME KIDS would give their left arm to belong," he says, adding that because membership is valued so highly by the high school group, the rules can be stringent's enforced and the members will submit to the policing and fines.

The Midnight Movers, mostly from Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove, pay 50 cents a week in dues to the club and are governed by two spokesmen and a variety of lesser officers.

Current spokesmen, who direct the meetings and tell other members to "shut up" when they talk out of turn, are Ed Haskinson and Gary Polony. Cliff Forastor is an alternate spokesman.

The Midnight Movers admit some of their members would do a lot more drag racing on village streets if it weren't for club rules.

"We're doing the town a public service by keeping some of these off the streets," one boy said last week. "We've got some of the worst kids and worst drivers in Wheeling," another admits.

The group members vary somewhat in appearance. Ranging in age from 18 to 20 with one 18-year-old mascot, some of the members are clean-cut looking while others are what most teens would term "tough."

SOME HAVE carefully lacquered pompadour haircuts resembling heroes of 1950's movies, and others have crewcuts.

Some sit on the backs of their chairs at meetings and yell their suggestions in a mixture of automotive terms and semi-vulgarity. Others stand when called on and loudly explain their proposals.

However, all have a common interest in cars, racing and club activities. And all are adamant that club members must live up to the rules of the organization.

Striving for a good image, the club is sponsoring a free safety check for all cars in the area June 8.

The Midnight Movers collected $56 for materials from merchants in the village and got permission to use the K-Mart's parking lot. The check will include examining cars for adequate lights, brakes, alignment and other safety features.

Cars passing the inspection, as outlined in information bought by the group from the Illinois secretary of state's office, will receive a national safety check sticker.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most is the support of the community and to belong to a famed organization of racing enthusiasts which they know only as the NEPA. Saying acceptance to that organization is limited to "beautiful people," they explain that it would give their club statewide recognition.

In the meantime, they are working on more activities for their members. As one spokesman reminded the group at a Sunday meeting when the arguments get out of hand, "Hey, come on you guys. This is a club, not a gang."

Two Honored At Women's Club Banquet

John Koeppe, Glenn Oakes, and Lloyd Peterson were given "president's awards" Tuesday night at a banquet sponsored by the Wheeling Women's Club.

The three received the awards for service to the community. This was the second time the awards were given. The last set was awarded four years ago.

The three men were surprised with their awards at the banquet.

KOEPPE, who is currently a village trustee, is active in the historical society and is chairman of the village celebration of its 75th anniversary, the Diamond Jubilee this August.

Peterson is past president of the school board and community council and is currently heading the American Field Service program for foreign students at Wheeling High School.

Oakes is president of the high school's scholarship foundation, and is also active in the Historical Society.

TREES, SHRUBS and evergreens have been disappearing from the former National Nursery in Schaumburg because area residents think they're free for the taking. Schaumburg Patrolman

William Heidt explains to residents that the nursery stock cannot be removed and persons taking it are subject to theft charges.

Park District Draws Vote

Buffalo Grove residents will vote in September on forming a new autonomous park district to handle recreation for the village. A petition signed by 100 residents in favor of forming a park district was submitted to Village Atty. Richard Raysa Monday at the board meeting.

Raysa will file the petition for the residents and attempt to get an election date of Sept. 20 set for the voting, he told a group of park commissioners Monday.

Five names of area residents to serve on a board to run the new park district will also be submitted at the time of the election, but no candidates have announced as yet.

FORMS FOR ANY person interested in being a commissioner of the district will be available from the village attorney.

Park commissioners plan to advance a rugged campaign for a "yes" vote to create the district. Fact sheets explaining the advantages of allowing recreation to be run by a tax levying body and plans for expanded programs will be a part of the campaign, they said.

One section of the village, the area of approximately 90 homes in the Cambridge subdivision presently within the Wheeling Park District, would not be included in the new district.

Accept Motorola Bid

The Wheeling Village Board Monday night passed a resolution to accept a $26,000 bid from the Motorola Communications and Electronics Inc. to install a communications control center in the Wheeling Police Department.

The action was taken after Village Trustee Jay Bird urged board members to accept the Motorola bid.

THE BIDDING WAS unfortunately handled by the village manager and the procedure made the whole situation suspect. The Motorola bid is perfectly proper as far as I'm concerned, and I urge you to accept it," Bird said.

Originally, the board had granted a 30-day extension to the General Electric Co. to prepare their proposal for the system, which resulted in what Bird described as a "mess" of a bid by Motorola against the village of Wheeling for holding up the bid award.

Misinformed People Attack Nursery

Like the famous gold rush of the 1800s, hordes of people from surrounding villages have been digging up the nursery stock behind what used to be National Nursery on Golf Road, east of Highland in Schaumburg.

"Hundreds of persons have been misinformed that the stock was free for the taking," said Martin Conroy, Schaumburg police chief. "They have been coming for the last few days to the rear of the old nursery where the former owner still lives. The area is behind his house."

The people were arriving in cars, pickup trucks, and other vehicles. Then, with shovels in one hand and a flashlight in the other, they attack the field, digging up evergreens, trees, shrubs and bushes.

One officer said, "The minute I chase them away some more of them come. They're going through people's yards and everything."

"FROM NOW ON, all subjects will be apprehended and charged with theft," Conroy said.

"The owners of the property, which is in the name of the Schaumburg Land Trust, have advised us that they will sign complaints against these people, and they want to prosecute them also."

"Since this first began, the number of people coming out to the area has grown and grown. They're just like ants. They are causing traffic problems on Golf Road.

"We've issued orders on our public address system telling these people to get out. We will lock anyone up if they don't get out."

Conroy said half of the items being taken won't grow again. "They do it only because it's something for nothing," he said.

The people are coming from Hanover, Schaumburg, Streamwood and other towns.

Twirling Corps Seeks Co-Sponsors

Co-sponsors are being sought by 22 little girls in the Buffalo Grove Twirling Parade Corps for help in starting a drum corps, and to help with bus arrangements.

The girls, who started their twirling activities a year ago, are sponsored by the village and park district. Taught by Mrs.

Audrey McWhorter as part of a park commission program, the girls are chosen from tryouts from beginner classes.

VARYING IN AGE from 8 to 13, the corps has placed second at the Elmhurst national Baton Twirling Association Contest in March, and the Kenosha national Baton Twirling Association contest.

On May 10 they received the first place trophy at the Wheaton national Baton Twirling Association contest.

Upcoming events include participation in a Glenview Parade on Memorial Day and competition June 5 at the State Park District Contest at Olympia Fields.

AWARD WINNING baton twirlers Sue Johnson, Pam Lambert, Bonnie Lahti, Diane Johnson, and Debbie Rasmussen are looking for a sponsor to help pay their costs.

The group is currently sponsored by the village and park commission of Buffalo Grove.

Teen Queens Have Tea

A tea for applicants in the Buffalo Grove "Miss Teen Queen" contest will be held June 1, at the home of Katharine Varchnas, 190 Cherrywood, Buffalo Grove.

The tea will begin at 2 p.m. Applications for the contest must be submitted by June 2.

Nixon Names Burger

WASHINGTON — President Nixon nominated Warren E. Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States last night. Burger is judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The nomination to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren is subject to Senate confirmation. The new Chief Justice would take office when the court convenes its new term next October.

Sirhan Given Death

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan was formally sentenced to death in the California gas chamber for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy despite a letter pleading for clemency from the family of the slain senator.

In ordering Sirhan's death, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ignored the letter from Kennedy's brother, and denied defense motions for a new trial after a daylong hearing.

Apollo 10 Flawless

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 10 whipped behind the moon last night and then flawlessly settled into a lunar orbit where the three pilots will spend the next 2 1/2 days testing the machinery to land a man on the moon in July.

"Hats off the guys in the trench mission control," said Eugene Cernan. "I love them. Say 'Thank you big'."

Con-Con Test Suit

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of the Constitutional Convention filed suit yesterday to test the constitutionality of the recently passed law for Con-Con.

A taxpayers suit filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court by Chicago Attorney James Otis asked the court to declare the law unconstitutional and issue injunctions against state officials to prevent them from preparing for delegate elections.

Delay Vigilante Bill

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to repeal the "vigilante" law had to be postponed in the Senate when it ran into surprising opposition from Republicans.

Several members, citing the "White Hats" group in Cairo, said there might be a need for the law, which permits citizens to form "companies" to deal with "horse thieves, incendiaries and other felons."

Hill Battle Defended

SAIGON — U.S. commanders have defended the controversial offensive for Hamburger Hill and ordered a fresh battalion of American paratroopers to hold the peak near Laos.

One commander said, "If we wanted to let the enemy stay on the hill, we would have had to call off the whole operation and that would have invited the enemy to stockpile supplies for new offensives."

Defense of Thailand

BANGKOK — Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand said yesterday he believes the United States is committed by a 1954 treaty to help defend his country not only against open warfare but Communist-led guerrilla attacks.

His statement made at a news conference shortly after the close of the 14th annual ministerial meeting of SEATO, went beyond anything U.S. officials have been willing to acknowledge.

Parade Permit Ruling

CHICAGO — U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker said he will rule tomorrow on a suit filed by a group of north suburban Evanston Vietnam War protesters challenging the constitutionality of their city's parade permit granting procedures.

The North Shore Coalition against the War in Vietnam has received a permit from the Evanston City Council for a May 21 march, but the group is dissatisfied with the route granted for the parade.

by MARY DRESSER

A letter from the Wheeling Chapter of the Cook County Police Association requesting a meeting with Village Pres. Ted Scanlon surfaced yesterday amid conflicting stories.

The letter, dated May 6, and signed by Gene Wolf, president of the Wheeling Chapter of the Cook County Police Association, requested a meeting date "prior to May 16 to discuss future working conditions."

Wolf wants to negotiate with elected representatives of the village of Wheeling "in all aspects of their employment." SCANLON TOLD the Herald yesterday that "it was an error that it was sent to me."

Scanlon says he turned the letter over to trustee Bill Hart, head of the Police and Fire Committee.

Hart, when contacted by the Herald said Scanlon neither gave him the letter nor said anything about it.

"I have never failed to sit down with the policemen and listen to them," Scanlon said. "But they must go through the Police and Fire Committee."

Scanlon says the police "don't have a gripe. They get more than they deserve."

The police have never been denied a request as yet, Scanlon insists.

WHEELING POLICE have been watching the negotiations between Skokie police and their village board closely since Skokie police recently threatened to strike.

"What men are doing in Skokie is of no value," Scanlon told the Herald. "I talked to John Flood, president of the Cook County Police Association. I told him to sit with people inside. You catch more flies with sugar than vinegar."

It does no good for policemen to come out and threaten, Scanlon insists.

"If they do this it means they are unhappy and they can look for a job elsewhere."

APPARENTLY THIS is what Wheeling police do, according to a statement made by John Drezen who became the third Wheeling officer to resign from the force this spring.

Drezen, whose resignation became effective May 15, told the Herald he was leaving the force because of "apathy upstairs."

He pointed out that most of Wheeling's force is made up of younger men and those with six years experience like himself often leave.

"HAVE YOU EVER wondered why the force loses all of the older talent?" he asked.

Drezen said that he was going to work in private industry while looking for employment "in a more progressive police department."

He said his departure would be blamed on shopping for a job with higher pay by village officials and administrators, but that in actuality he was leaving because of "administrative apathy and the environmental conditions of the department."

Scanlon says there is a proposal for a substantial pay raise in the village budget now under consideration. He says he does not think the police department requested more men.

There is a request under consideration for one added man and an added chief for the Fire Department. Scanlon says he is pushing for three full-time men for the Fire Department and believes the board will grant this.

If 15 Bus, Board Hopes To Cut Class

The School Dist. 26 board voted Tuesday night to have three sessions of kindergarten at Indian Grove School unless 15 parents agree to have their children bused to kindergarten class at Park View School.

Winston Harwood, superintendent of Dist. 26, said a letter explaining the parents' option of voluntary busing would go out to all parents of kindergarten children registered at Indian Grove.

The board hopes at least 15 parents volunteer to have their children bused to Park View School, thus relieving the overcrowding in kindergarten enrollment at Indian Grove School.

Then remaining students could be accommodated in two sessions.

If parents fail to volunteer, three kindergarten sessions would be held in the one classroom available at Indian Grove. Under this plan, the first kindergarten session would run from 8:15 to 10:45, second session from 11 to 1:30, and third session from 1:45 to 4:15.

MARK YOUNG, 1713 Orchard Drive, Prospect Heights, was at the board meeting to present his objections to the three-session plan. A teacher, Young said he objected to the three-session plan because children would be going to school at odd hours and through the normal lunch period.

He said the three-session plan would mean that two teachers would have to share the same classroom.

The three-session plan, with the option to bus, had the support of Supt. Harwood. Hugh Stubbs was the only board member present who voted against the plan.

Pool Bond Holders Get Report

Community pool bond holders were brought up to date at a meeting held at Heritage Park Tuesday evening.

"We are here to explain to the bond holders what we have done since the last meeting," pool Treasurer George Passolt said.

Last summer the Wheeling Park District made an offer of $100,000 to get the ball rolling in beginning negotiations toward purchasing the pool. We formed a board and had an appraisal made on the pool by the Paragon Pool Co., Passolt said, "and their appraisal was between $155,000 and $165,000."

The park district asked for a second appraisal and also asked the Pool Corp. to clean up some of the $213,000 indebtedness of the pool.

The park district had a meeting with the bank which agreed to waive the interest, which amounted to $9,500 since the pool had not been making money.

The corporation was able to reduce the pool liabilities to $181,886, according to Passolt. "That's the figure we told the park we would like to receive," Passolt said.

The park came up with an appraisal of $150,000, with a figure of $64,000 to reno-

Dressed in black jackets with an emblem of a ghost on wheels, motorcycle boots and exotic headgear, members of Wheeling's Midnight Movers begin to congregate in the early evening at the driveway.

Anywhere from 20 to 40 of them stand around in small groups walking, smoking and arguing loudly.

To the casual observer they look like just another teengang — a group of the undesirable elements in a high school community who have banded together to give the town a bad name.

WHAT THEY ARE, however, is an organized club, with stringent rules, the backing of police and an intense sensitivity about their public image.

The Midnight Movers are so concerned about the image that they are sponsoring a free national safety check June 8 to introduce themselves to local residents. They will check cars for safety features required by the state and put stickers on cars that pass the test.

The club, which started seven weeks ago, is admittedly made up of some of the less desirable members of the community.

At least 15 of the club's 47 members are dropouts, although some attend night school. Most have had some contact with police in a variety of juvenile offenses.

The club members started their group to work on cars and to give them an organized activity. Although they have just begun to organize, they plan a trip to southern Wisconsin next weekend to visit several drag strips and hope to have dances, picnics and baseball games this summer.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most of all is a place to race cars, but members are willing to wait for that until they have gained trust and recognition from the community.

One member suggested that a street could be blocked off for a short time for drag races, but admitted that there might be a problem with the possibility of children around.

What they really would like is to borrow a runway at Palwaukee Airport to race their "grudge races" against each other, until they can get enough support to get a regular drag strip brought to town.

One member talked idealistically about having professional racers come to town and putting Wheeling on the map along with Rockford and U.S. 30 drag strips.

In the meantime, however, the young men have an uphill battle ahead of them.

The 47 members have decided the way to gain public recognition is to police the activities of their members to maintain their "image" and to plan activities which will benefit the community.

THEIR RULES are stringent — and enforced.

Lights Turned On

Traffic lights at the intersection of Rand Road and Thomas Street, long sought by students, parents and High School Dist. 214, were turned on today.

The temporary signals will control traffic until permanent equipment is installed. The order for the permanent signals was put through in April and present plans call for a late August or early September installation date.

State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said the state highway department notified him Tuesday morning that lights were ready to be turned on. Commonwealth Edison checked electrical fixtures in the afternoon and confirmed that the equipment was ready for use.

DIST. 214 ORIGINALLY asked the state to install the lights in time for opening of Hersey High School in September 1968. Funds had not been allotted in the highway budget, however, and action was delayed. In March of this year Hersey students, armed with petitions, knocked on doors requesting residents to join them in their demand for quick action.

Schlickman took the petitions to the office of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie who ordered the highway department to review their time schedule on the Rand-Thomas intersection.

Hersey principal Roland Goins delighted that the lights were now in place, said approximately 250 students would be affected next year by the presence of signals at the corner.

HERSEY IS THE center for Dist. 214's summer school program but Goins said many are driven to school for the summer session. The efforts and success of those who do walk will serve as a guideline to Goins in the fall. "It is a possibility that guards or some type of traffic designation may be needed in addition to the lights."

Last fall, Dist. 214 initiated a busing program for students west of Rand Road who attend the high school. All students are bused, no matter how close they live to Hersey, so they could avoid crossing Rand Road on foot.

Hear Mathewson

Joseph Mathewson, Republican candidate for the 13th district Congressional seat being vacated by Donald Rumsfeld, will address the Timbercrest Homeowners Association 8 p.m. Friday in Schaumburg's Great Hall.

Rumsfeld was recently appointed by President Nixon to head the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Mathewson formerly served as press secretary for Gov. Richard Ogilvie. He left WBBM-TV last July to join the Ogilvie campaign and was named press secretary following Ogilvie's election.

IN ANNOUNCING his candidacy May 14, Mathewson pledged his support to the Nixon Administration, declaring "it has already buoyed up the nation with new ideas and new hope for our most pressing problems, at home and abroad." Mathewson resides in Winnetka.

Mathewson, 35, was a reporter with The Wall Street Journal for six years, in Chicago, New York and Washington. In the capital he covered Congress and the Supreme Court. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Dartmouth College he did postgraduate work at a branch of John Hopkins University in Italy.

"My background provides me with the broad base of knowledge and understanding needed by every member of Congress, and particularly by the member who has the high honor and privilege of representing the 13th district of Illinois," the candidate stated.

GOVERNOR OGILVIE has not yet announced dates for the special primary and general election in which the 13th district congressional vacancy will be filled. However, the special primary is expected to be held in October.

Ogilvie has indicated that he will not endorse any particular candidate in the GOP race.

jacket and the other while with a group of club members, were fined $5 and were forced to give up their jackets for a week at a recent meeting.

For any violation a member is "stripped of his colors," articles with the club emblem, and fines are imposed if the violation is serious.

Other rules of the club say that while wearing the colors or with any other club members, a Midnight Mover isn't allowed to speed, drive recklessly, patch his tires or race.

After two violations, the members are out of the club.

Police school liaison officer Ted Homeyer says the club is somewhat exclusive organization and a status symbol.

"SOME KIDS would give their left arm to belong," he says, adding that because membership is valued so highly by the high school group, the rules can be stringently enforced and the members will submit to the policing and fines.

The Midnight Movers, mostly from Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove, pay 50 cents a week in dues to the club and are governed by two spokesmen and a variety of lesser officers.

Current spokesmen, who direct the meetings and tell other members to "shut up" when they talk out of turn, are Ed Hawkinson and Gary Polony. Cliff Forster is an alternate spokesman.

The Midnight Movers admit some of their members would do a lot more drag racing on village streets if it weren't for club rules.

"We're doing the town a public service by keeping some of these off the streets," one boy said last week. "We've got some of the worst kids and worst drivers in Wheeling," another admits.

The group members vary somewhat in appearance. Ranging in age from 18 to 20 with one 16-year-old mascot, some of the members are clean-cut looking while others are what most teens would term "grease."

SOME HAVE carefully lacquered pompadour haircuts resembling heroes of 1930's movies, and others have crewcuts.

Some sit on the backs of their chairs at meetings and yell their suggestions in a mixture of automotive terms and semi-vulgarity. Others stand when called on and logically explain their proposals.

However, all have a common interest in cars, racing, and club activities. And all are adamant that club members must live up to the rules of the organization.

Striving for a good image, the club is sponsoring a free safety check for all cars in the area June 8.

The Midnight Movers collected $56 for materials from merchants in the village and got permission to use the K-Mart's parking lot. The check will include examining cars for adequate lights, brakes, alignment and other safety features.

Cars passing the inspection, as outlined in information bought by the group from the Illinois secretary of state's office, will receive a national safety check sticker.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most is the support of the community and to belong to a famed organization of racing enthusiasts which they know only as the NEPA. Saying acceptance to that organization is limited to "beautiful people," they explain that it would give their club statewide recognition.

In the meantime, they are working on more activities for their members. As one spokesman reminded the group at a Sunday meeting when the arguments get out of hand, "Hey, come on you guys. This is a club, not a gang."

Two Honored At Women's Club Banquet

John Koepfen, Glenn Oakes, and Lloyd Peterson were given "president's awards" Tuesday night at a banquet sponsored by the Wheeling Women's Club.

The three received the awards for service to the community. This was the second time the awards were given. The last set was awarded four years ago.

The three men were surprised with their awards at the banquet.

KOEPFEN, who is currently a village trustee, is active in the historical society and is chairman of the village celebration of its 75th anniversary, the Diamond Jubilee this August.

Peterson is past president of the school board and community council and is currently heading the American Field Service program for foreign students at Wheeling High School.

Oakes is president of the high school's scholarship foundation, and is also active in the Historical Society.

Park District Draws Vote

Buffalo Grove residents will vote in September on forming a new autonomous park district to handle recreation for the village.

A petition signed by 100 residents in favor of forming a park district was submitted to Village Atty. Richard Raysa Monday at the board meeting.

Raysa will file the petition for the residents and attempt to get an election date of Sept. 20 set for the voting, he told a group of park commissioners Monday.

Five names of area residents to serve on a board to run the new park district will also be submitted at the time of the election, but no candidates have announced as yet.

FORMS FOR ANY person interested in being a commissioner of the district will be available from the village attorney.

Park commissioners plan to advance a rugged campaign for a "yes" vote to create the district. Fact sheets explaining the advantages of allowing recreation to be run by a tax levying body and plans for expanded programs will be a part of the campaign, they said.

One section of the village, the area of approximately 80 homes in the Cambridge subdivision presently within the Wheeling Park District, would not be included in the new district.

Accept Motorola Bid

The Wheeling Village Board Monday night passed a resolution to accept a $26,000 bid from the Motorola Communications and Electronics Inc. to install a communications control center in the Wheeling Police Department.

The action was taken after Village Trustee Ira Bird urged board members to accept the Motorola bid.

"THE BIDDING WAS unfortunately handled by the village manager and the procedure made the whole situation suspect. The Motorola bid is perfectly proper as far as I'm concerned, and I urge you to accept it," Bird said.

Originally, the board had granted a 30-day extension to the General Electric Co. to prepare their proposal for the system, which resulted in what Bird described as a threat of a suit by Motorola against the village of Wheeling for holding up the bid award.

Misinformed People Attack Nursery

Like the famous gold rush of the 1800s, hordes of people from surrounding villages have been digging up the nursery stock behind what used to be National Nursery on Golf Road, east of Highland in Schaumburg.

"Hundreds of persons have been misinformed that the stock was free for the taking," said Martin Conroy, Schaumburg police chief. "They have been coming for the last few days to the rear of the old nursery where the former owner still lives. The area is behind his house."

The people were arriving in cars, pickup trucks, and other vehicles. Then, with shovels in one hand and a flashlight in the other, they attack the field, digging up evergreens, trees, shrubs and bushes.

One officer said, "The minute I chase them away some more of them come. They're going through people's yards and everything."

"FROM NOW ON, all subjects will be apprehended and charged with theft," Conroy said.

"The owners of the property, which is in the name of the Schaumburg Land Trust, have advised us that they will sign complaints against these people, and they want to prosecute them also."

"Since this first began, the number of people coming out to the area has grown and grown. They're just like ants. They are causing traffic problems on Golf Road.

"We've issued orders on our public address system telling these people to get out. We will lock anyone up if they don't get out."

Conroy said half of the items being taken won't grow again. "They do it only because it's something for nothing," he said.

The people are coming from Hanover, Schaumburg, Streamwood and other towns.

Police Dispute Stirs

Nixon Names Burger

WASHINGTON — President Nixon nominated Warren E. Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States last night. Burger is judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The nomination to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren is subject to Senate confirmation. The new Chief Justice would take office when the court convenes its new term next October.

Sirhan Given Death

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan was formally sentenced to death in the California gas chamber for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy despite a letter pleading for clemency from the family of the slain senator.

In ordering Sirhan's death, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ignored the letter from Kennedy's brother, and denied defense motions for a new trial after a daylong hearing.

Apollo 10 Flawless

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 10 whipped behind the moon last night and then flawlessly settled into a lunar orbit where the three pilots will spend the next 24 days testing the machinery to land a man on the moon in July.

"Hats off to the guys in the trench mission control," said Eugene Cernan. "I love them. Say 'thank you big'."

Con-Con Test Suit

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of the Constitutional Convention filed suit yesterday to test the constitutionality of the recently passed law for Con-Con.

A taxpayers suit filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court by Chicago Atty. James Otis asked the court to declare the law unconstitutional and issue injunctions against state officials to prevent them from preparing for delegate elections.

Delay Vigilante Bill

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to repeal the 1935 "vigilante" law had to be postponed in the Senate when it ran into surprising opposition from Republicans.

Several members, citing the "White Hats" group in Cairo, said there might be a need for the law, which permits citizens to form "companies" to deal with "horse thieves, incendiaries and other felons."

Hill Battle Defended

SAIGON — U.S. commanders have defended the controversial offensive for Hamburger Hill and ordered a fresh battalion of American paratroopers to hold the peak near Laos.

One commander said, "If we wanted to let the enemy stand on the hill, we would have had to call off the whole operation. And that would have invited the enemy to stockpile supplies for new offensives."

Defense of Thailand

BANGKOK — Foreign Minister Thanet Khaman of Thailand said yesterday he believes the United States is committed by a 1962 treaty to help defend his country not only against open warfare but Communist-led guerrilla attacks.

His statement, made at a news conference shortly after the close of the 14th annual ministerial meeting of SEATO, went beyond anything U.S. officials have been willing to acknowledge.

Parade Permit Ruling

CHICAGO — U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker said he will rule tomorrow on a suit filed by a group of north suburban Evanston Vietnam War protesters challenging the constitutionality of their city's parade permit granting procedures.

The North Shore Coalition against the War in Vietnam has received a permit from the Evanston City Council for a May 21 march, but the group is dissatisfied with the route granted for the parade.

A letter from the Wheeling Chapter of the Cook County Police Association requesting a meeting with Village Pres. Ted Scanlon surfaced yesterday amid conflicting stories.

The letter, dated May 6, and signed by Gene Wolf, president of the Wheeling Chapter of the Cook County Police Association, requested a meeting date "prior to May 16 to discuss future working conditions."

One member talked idealistically about having professional racers come to town and putting Wheeling on the map along with Rockford and U.S. 30 drag strips.

In the meantime, however, the young men have an uphill battle ahead of them.

The 47 members have decided the way to gain public recognition is to police the activities of their members to maintain their "image" and to plan activities which will benefit the community.

THEIR RULES are stringent — and enforced.

Hear Mathewson

Joseph Mathewson, Republican candidate for the 13th district Congressional seat being vacated by Donald Rumsfeld, will address the Timbercrest Homeowners Association 8 p.m. Friday in Schaumburg's Great Hall.

Rumsfeld was recently appointed by President Nixon to head the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Mathewson formerly served as press secretary for Gov. Richard Ogilvie. He left WBBM-TV last July to join the Ogilvie campaign and was named press secretary following Ogilvie's election.

IN ANNOUNCING his candidacy May 14, Mathewson pledged his support to the Nixon Administration, declaring "it has already buoyed up the nation with new ideas and new hope for our most pressing problems, at home and abroad." Mathewson resides in Winnetka.

Mathewson, 35, was a reporter with The Wall Street Journal for six years, in Chicago, New York and Washington. In the capital he covered Congress and the Supreme Court. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Dartmouth College he did postgraduate work at a branch of John Hopkins University in Italy.

"My background provides me with the broad base of knowledge and understanding needed by every member of Congress, and particularly by the member who has the high honor and privilege of representing the 13th district of Illinois," the candidate stated.

GOVERNOR OGILVIE has not yet announced dates for the special primary and general election in which the 13th district congressional vacancy will be filled. However, the special primary is expected to be held in October.

Ogilvie has indicated that he will not endorse any particular candidate in the GOP race.

Lights Turned On

Traffic lights at the intersection of Rand Road and Thomas Street, long sought by students, parents and High School Dist. 214, were turned on today.

The temporary signals will control traffic until permanent equipment is installed. The order for the permanent signals was put through in April and present plans call for a late August or early September installation date.

State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said the state highway department notified him Tuesday morning that lights were ready to be turned on. Commonwealth Edison checked electrical fixtures in the afternoon and confirmed that the equipment was ready for use.

DIST. 214 ORIGINALLY asked the state to install the lights in time for opening of Hersey High School in September 1968. Funds had not been allotted in the high school budget, however, and action was delayed. In March of this year Hersey students, armed with petitions, knocked on doors requesting residents to join them in their demand for quick action.

Schlickman took the petitions to the office of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie who ordered the highway department to review their time schedule on the Rand-Thomas intersection.

Hersey principal Roland Goins placed that the lights were now in place, said approximately 250 students would be affected next year by the presence of signals at the corner.

HERSEY IS THE center for Dist. 214's summer school program but Goins said many are driven to school for the summer session. The efforts and success of those who do walk will serve as a guideline to Goins in the fall. "It is a possibility that guards or some type of traffic designation may be needed in addition to the lights." Last fall, Dist. 214 initiated a busing program for students west of Rand Road who attend the high school. All students are bused, no matter how close they live to Hersey, so they could avoid crossing Rand Road on foot.

and the other while with a group of club members, were fined $5 and were forced to give up their jackets for a week at a recent meeting.

For any violation a member is "stripped of his colors," articles with the club emblem, and fines are imposed if the violation is serious.

Other rules of the club say that while wearing the colors or with any other club members, a Midnight Mover isn't allowed to speed, drive recklessly, patch his tires or race.

After two violations, the members are out of the club.

Police school liaison officer Ted Homeyer says the club is somewhat exclusive organization and a status symbol.

"SOME KIDS would give their left arm to belong," he says, adding that because membership is valued so highly by the high school group, the rules can be strictly enforced and the members will submit to the policing and fines.

The Midnight Movers, mostly from Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove, pay 50 cents a week in dues to the club and are governed by two spokesmen and a variety of lesser officers.

Current spokesmen, who direct the meetings and tell other members to "shut up" when they talk out of turn, are Ed Hawkins and Gary Polony. Cliff Forster is an alternate spokesman.

The Midnight Movers admit some of their members would do a lot more drag racing on village streets if it weren't for club rules.

"We're doing the town a public service by keeping some of these off the streets," one boy said last week. "We've got some of the worst kids and worst drivers in Wheeling," another admits.

The group members vary somewhat in appearance. Ranging in age from 18 to 20 with one 16-year-old mascot, some of the members are clean-cut looking while others are what most teens would term "grease."

SOME HAVE carefully lacquered pompadour haircuts resembling heroes of 1950's movies, and others have crewcuts.

Some sit on the backs of their chairs at meetings and tell their suggestions in a mixture of automotive terms and semi-vulgarity. Others stand when called on and logically explain their proposals.

However, all have a common interest in cars, racing and club activities. And all are adamant that club members must live up to the rules of the organization.

Striving for a good image, the club is sponsoring a free safety check for all cars in the area June 8.

The Midnight Movers collected $56 for materials from merchants in the village and got permission to use the K-Mart's parking lot. The check will include examining cars for adequate lights, brakes, alignment and other safety features.

Cars passing the inspection, as outlined in information bought by the group from the Illinois secretary of state's office, will receive a national safety check sticker.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most is the support of the community and to belong to a famed organization of racing enthusiasts which they know only as the NEPA. Saying acceptance to that organization is limited to "beautiful people," they explain that it would give their club statewide recognition.

In the meantime, they are working on more activities for their members. As one spokesman reminded the group at a Sunday meeting when the arguments get out of hand, "Hey, come on you guys. This is a club, not a gang."

Two Honored At Women's Club Banquet

John Koeppe, Glenn Oakes, and Lloyd Peterson were given "president's awards" Tuesday night at a banquet sponsored by the Wheeling Women's Club.

The three received the awards for service to the community. This was the second time the awards were given. The last set was awarded four years ago.

The three men were surprised with their awards at the banquet.

KOEPPEN, who is currently a village trustee, is active in the historical society and is chairman of the village celebration of its 75th anniversary, the Diamond Jubilee this August.

Peterson is past president of the school board and community council and is currently heading the American Field Service program for foreign students at Wheeling High School.

Oakes is president of the high school's scholarship foundation, and is also active in the Historical Society.

TREES, SHRUBS and evergreens have been disappearing from the former National Nursery in Schaumburg because area residents think they're free for the taking. Schaumburg Patrolman William Heidt explains to residents that the nursery stock cannot be removed and persons taking it are subject to theft charges.

Park District Draws Vote

Buffalo Grove residents will vote in September on forming a new autonomous park district to handle recreation for the village.

Accept Motorola Bid

The Wheeling Village Board Monday night passed a resolution to accept a $26,000 bid from the Motorola Communications and Electronics Inc. to install a communications control center in the Wheeling Police Department.

The action was taken after Village Trustee Ira Bird urged board members to accept the Motorola bid.

"THE BIDDING WAS unfortunately handled by the village manager and the procedure made the whole situation suspect. The Motorola bid is perfectly proper as far as I'm concerned, and I urge you to accept it," Bird said.

Originally, the board had granted a 20-day extension to the General Electric Co. to prepare their proposal for the system, which resulted in what Bird described as a "group of a suit by Motorola against the village of Wheeling for holding up the bid award."

A petition signed by 100 residents in favor of forming a park district was submitted to Village Atty. Richard Raysa Monday at the board meeting.

Raysa will file the petition for the residents and attempt to get an election date of Sept. 20 set for the voting, he told a group of park commissioners Monday.

Five names of area residents to serve on a board to run the new park district will also be submitted at the time of the election, but no candidates have announced as yet.

FORMS FOR ANY person interested in being a commissioner of the district will be available from the village attorney.

Park commissioners plan to advance a rugged campaign for a "yes" vote to create the district. Fact sheets explaining the advantages of allowing recreation to be run by a tax levying body and plans for expanded programs will be a part of the campaign, they said.

One section of the village, the area of approximately 80 homes in the Cambridge subdivision presently within the Wheeling Park District, would not be included in the new district.

Misinformed People Attack Nursery

Like the famous gold rush of the 1800s, hordes of people from surrounding villages have been digging up the nursery stock behind what used to be National Nursery on Golf Road, east of Highland in Schaumburg.

"Hundreds of persons have been misinformed that the stock was free for the taking," said Martin Conroy, Schaumburg police chief. "They have been coming for the last few days to the rear of the old nursery where the former owner still lives. The area is behind his house."

The people were arriving in cars, pickup trucks, and other vehicles. Then, with shovels in one hand and a flashlight in the other, they attack the field, digging up evergreens, trees, shrubs and bushes.

One officer said, "The minute I chase them away some more of them come. They're going through people's yards and everything."

"FROM NOW ON, all subjects will be apprehended and charged with theft," Conroy said.

"The owners of the property, which is in the name of the Schaumburg Land Trust, have advised us that they will sign complaints against these people, and they want to prosecute them also."

"Since this first began, the number of people coming out to the area has grown and grown. They're just like ants. They are causing traffic problems on Golf Road.

"We've issued orders on our public address system telling these people to get out. We will lock anyone up if they don't get out."

Conroy said half of the items being taken won't grow again. "They do it only because it's something for nothing," he said.

The people are coming from Hanover, Schaumburg, Streamwood and other towns.

Twirling Corps Seeks Co-Sponsors

The girls are being sought by 22 little girls in the Buffalo Grove Twirling Parade Corps for help in starting a drum corps, and to help with their arrangements.

The girls who started their twirling activities a year ago, are sponsored by the village and park district. Taught by Mrs.

Andrey McWhorter as part of a park commission program, the girls are chosen from tryouts from beginner classes.

VARYING IN AGE from 8 to 13, the corps has placed second at the Elmhurst national Baton Twirling Association Contest in March, and the Kenosha national Baton Twirling Association contest.

On May 10 they received the first place trophy at the Wheaton national Baton Twirling Association contest.

Upcoming events include participation in a Glenview Parade on Memorial Day and competition June 5 at the State Park District Contest at Olympia Fields.

Teen Queens Have Tea

A tea for applicants in the Buffalo Grove "Miss Teen Queen" contest will be held June 1, at the home of Kathrine Varchas, 190 Cherrywood, Buffalo Grove.

The tea will begin at 2 p.m. Applications for the contest must be submitted by June 2.

College Bill Has 1 Sure Vote

The northwest suburbs have one sure vote when the House Appropriations Committee hears State Rep. Eugene Schlickman's bill calling for purchase of a state senior college site here.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, D-Arlington Heights, and the sole area legislator on the appropriations committee, told the Herald he will vote yes on the bill despite misgivings.

Schlickman said he strongly favors the northwest suburbs getting the next metropolitan area state college site.

He said his misgivings about the bill introduced by Mrs. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, are based on 1) The fact that the $3-million appropriation is not included in Gov. Richard Ogilvie's budget and 2) That Rockford also will get a site under the Chapman bill.

"I THINK OUR area can stand alone on this," said Schlickman. "I don't think this needs to be linked to Rockford."

Arlington Heights' former village president, John G. Woods, will speak in favor of the bill at this morning's committee session.

The appropriations committee was to have heard the bill yesterday, but Mrs. Chapman asked that it be postponed so Woods could testify.

Neither Schlickman nor his fellow 3rd District Republican state representative, David Regner of Mount Prospect, are co-sponsors of the senior college bill, House Bill 1046.

Mrs. Chapman did not ask either to put his name on the bill before she introduced it with State Rep. E. K. Giorgi, D-Rockford, as chief co-sponsor. Other cosponsors include four Rockford-area Republicans, several of them on the House Higher Education Committee which gave H B 1046 a "do pass" last week.

Band Plays Tomorrow

The beginning, cadet and concert bands at Holmes Junior High School in Wheeling will present their spring band concert at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the school gymnasium.

The concert band will play "Camelot," "Simple Gifts," "Hymn Tune," "Tenderly," and "High School Cadets March."

THE CONCERT is open to the public without charge.

Stan McMurry is director of the beginning and concert bands and Virgil Baumgartner directs the cadet band.

Harper To Respond to Suit

Harper Junior College trustees tonight may give some indication of how they plan to answer the suit filed against them this week by two teachers not being rehired next year.

College Atty. Frank Hines has declined to comment on the case pending today's 8 p.m. college board meeting at the Harper campus site at Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

He said he expects to make a recommendation to the board tonight.

THE SUIT WAS filed in federal district court Monday for Edward M. Kalish of Mount Prospect and Dr. Betty Enbysk of Schaumburg. Harper teachers turned down last month on their request for the college to call a public hearing and make known the reasons for their not being rehired.

The suit alleges that the true reason for their non-rehiring was the fact that the plaintiffs had chosen to exercise their freedoms of speech and assembly as duly elected members of the faculty senate of the College.

If the teachers win the case could set precedent for requiring colleges to show cause for not rehiring all teachers — including those without tenure and a right to a continuing contract. The law now says an institution can drop a nontenured teacher at the end of a contract year without giving its reasons for doing so. The National Education Association is reportedly interested in the case because of that possibility.

THE COLLEGE board also faces a long agenda that includes discussion of a grievance policy proposed by the faculty senate and originally suggested by Kalish, approval of college policy on student conduct and guest speakers, and appointment of new faculty for next year.

The board will be asked to approve hiring of a new assistant director of admissions to replace A. Harris Moeller of Barrington, who is leaving to take a new position with the College of Lake County.

Pres. Robert Lahti will also recommend appointment of a dean of guidance to replace Dr. Thomas Seward, director of guidance who resigned in protest over the Kalish-Enbysk case.

Zoners Oppose 'Farm'

Nixon Names Burger

WASHINGTON — President Nixon nominated Warren E. Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States last night. Burger is judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The nomination to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren is subject to Senate confirmation. The new Chief Justice would take office when the court convenes its new term next October.

Sirhan Given Death

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan was formally sentenced to death in the California gas chamber for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy despite a letter pleading for clemency from the family of the slain senator.

In ordering Sirhan's death, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ignored the letter from Kennedy's brother, and denied defense motions for a new trial after a daylong hearing.

Apollo 10 Flawless

SPACE CENTER Houston — Apollo 10 shipped behind the moon last night and then flawlessly set into a lunar orbit where the three pilots will spend the next 21 days testing the machine as they land a man on the moon in July.

Half off the guys in the French mission control," said Eugene Cernan, "I love them. Say 'Thank you, big'."

Con-Con Test Suit

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of the Constitutional Convention filed suit yesterday to test the constitutionality of the recently passed law for Con-Con.

A taxpayer suit filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court by Chicago Atty. Gen. Otis asked the court to declare the law unconstitutional and issue injunctions against state officials to prevent them from preparing for delegate elections.

Delay Vigilante Bill

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to repeal the "vigilante" law had to be postponed in the Senate when it ran into surprising opposition from Republicans.

Several members citing the "White Hat" group in Cairo said there might be a need for the law, which permits citizens to form "companies" to deal with "horse thieves, incendiaries and other felons."

Hill Battle Defended

SAMSON — U.S. commanders have defended the controversial offensive for Hamburger Hill and ordered a fresh battalion of American paratroopers to hold the peak near Laos.

One commander said, "If we wanted to, the enemy stay on the hill, we would have had to call off the whole operation and that would have invited the enemy to stockpile supplies for new offensives."

Defense of Thailand

BANGKOK — Foreign Minister Thanat Khaman of Thailand said yesterday he believes the United States is committed by a 1962 treaty to help defend his country not only against open warfare but Communist and guerrilla attacks.

His statement made at a news conference shortly after the close of the 14th annual ministerial meeting of SEATO, went beyond anything U.S. officials have been willing to acknowledge.

Parade Permit Ruling

CHICAGO — U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker said he will rule tomorrow on a suit filed by a group of north suburban Evanston Vietnam War protesters challenging the constitutionality of their city's parade permit granting procedure.

The North Shore Coalition against the War in Vietnam has received a permit from the Evanston City Council for a May 31 march, but the group is dissatisfied with the route granted for the parade.

Less Student Aid

CHAMPAIGN — The University of Illinois will not be able to provide financial help for as many undergraduate students as it had expected in the next school year, it was revealed.

A report sent to the university's board of trustees said the school will be about $15 million short of anticipated revenues because of a cutback in federal aid, plus a shortage in the state guaranteed loan fund.

The County Zoning Board of Appeals yesterday voted to recommend denial of special use zoning for Ridgeway Farm in Palatine Township.

Although board members agreed it was a good cause, they questioned the location, an 11-acre tract on Northwest Highway near Dundee Road.

Existing facilities on the farm owned by Ridgeway Hospital of Chicago would house pre-court and post hospital boys from 12 to 17-years-old.

"IT'S A WORTHWHILE purpose, but it doesn't mean much if it's not a worthwhile location," said Robert Marks, chairman of the county zoning board.

He added, "I feel the county board will give the case the same negative review we have."

However, a spokesman for Ridgeway Hospital, indicated a negative decision from the county board would be challenged.

"We're not going to throw in the sponge. Already we've invested a lot in that property and we want to see it put to good use," said Henry Distelhorst, director of public relations and development for the hospital.

He indicated court action in an effort to obtain the necessary zoning of the land was likely.

BRIEF CONSIDERATION of the request for special use zoning was given before the zoning board reached its decision yesterday.

Petitions objecting to the farm signed by 546 Palatine Township residents were cited. Official objections from Palatine and Inverness were also mentioned.

A zoning board member, Homer Fields said, "At the public hearing, the testimony of the petitioner was very vague. When he finished his case, I wasn't even sure what the basic purpose of the farm is."

Because of the objection from Inverness, it will take a three-fourths vote of the county board to approve rezoning.

Euclid Ave. Is Growing To the West

Completion of the Euclid Avenue extension from Route 53 to Plum Grove Road in Rolling Meadows and of the final part of the Euclid-Route 53 cloverleaf is set for early this fall, officials of the Cook County Highway Department said this week.

Work on the final portion of the project — the southbound entry ramp onto Route 53 from eastbound Euclid — moved into full swing this week.

The south entry ramp was only half finished when Route 53 was completed several years ago.

CONSTRUCTION ON THE entire Euclid-Route 53 project began late last summer. Total cost of the work, which is being done by Milburn Bros. Inc. of Des Plaines, is $669,162.20.

The work includes paving of the seven-tenths of a mile stretch with the construction of two 24-foot concrete pavements separated by a surmountable median strip (cars may pass over the strip).

Also included in the contract is the widening of existing pavement on Plum Grove Road and the channelization of traffic at the Euclid-Plum Grove Road intersection (which means there will be separate lanes for left-and right-turns and for through traffic).

The southbound ramp to Route 53 also includes installation of storm sewers, drainage structures, curbs and gutters.

The contract called for 153 working days. Completion is estimated for October, a highway department official said yesterday.

Improvement of Euclid had been on the Cook County Highway Department's program since 1963.

When it was announced, it disturbed developers of the Plum Grove Countryside subdivision of Rolling Meadows and city officials.

THE COUNTY'S PLANS were in direct conflict with the plan for a winding collector street and resulted in a change in the subdivision plan to include multi-family units instead of an entire subdivision of single-family homes.

Palatine officials have looked to the extension as a probable improvement in the Harper Junior College traffic situation on secondary streets. The college campus on Algonquin and Roselle roads will open this summer.

Euclid extended farther than Plum Grove Road will open up a development of the Palatine Industrial park farther west.

UP IN THE AIR but soon to be on the ground is the new administrative office of the Rolling Meadows Park District. The house and the garage (background at right) were formerly on property adjacent to city hall but were moved on Wednesday to a tentative location north of the shopping center on park district property west of Kimball Hill School.

Chicago Ridgeway Helps Kids

(This is the first in a series of stories relating to the proposed Ridgeway Farm in Palatine Township, even though the county zoning board yesterday voted to recommend denial of the necessary rezoning. Today's story deals with Ridgeway Hospital, a facility in Chicago, whose board of trustees is proposing the farm and is not to be confused with the program planned in the township.)

by MARTHA KOPER

Ridgeway Hospital in Chicago is not a typical institution for the care of the ill.

Almost nine years ago, it was established to treat patients with psychiatric problems, but it's not a typical psychiatric hospital.

Ranked among only a few of its kind, Ridgeway is primarily concerned with emotionally disturbed children and adults.

ALTHOUGH SEVERAL hospitals admit children to their beds, a structured program for their care is not incorporated in the daily routine. At Ridgeway almost everything revolves around the young people.

When the hospital, located at 520 W. Ridgeway, opened its doors in September 1962, there were 23 beds designated for young patients. Today, in the total 90-bed hospital, 73 are devoted to children and adolescents.

In another year or two, it probably will become exclusively a children's hospital, according to Henry Distelhorst, director of public relations and development.

The children come from all over. There's not just one social agency, or church or court which refers them. Sometimes, parents bring them because they know there's a problem they no longer can handle.

All of them are emotionally ill, with behavior and character problems. They are not mentally handicapped or retarded.

Their problems range from insomnia to schizophrenia. Treatments vary from barking to attentive listening.

THE STAFF IS structured to include psychiatrists, psychologists, occupational therapists, child care workers, recreation therapists and teachers and provides one employee for every 2.5 patients.

"It's not much of a trick to keep this place filled," said Distelhorst, who could provide statistics showing that of more than 50,000 young people in need of psychiatric help in the Chicago metropolitan area, only about 18,000 receive treatment.

Ridgeway is a non-profit, private institution headed by a 12-member board of trustees. Some money comes from state and county funds. But most of the cost of caring for a patient is paid by insurance.

"A company such as Blue Cross pays the full cost of care at Ridgeway up to 120 days," Distelhorst said.

The average stay of an adolescent patient during 1968 was 82 days.

WHEN A CHILD IS admitted to the hospital, the first step is diagnosis. Conversations with parents, teachers, case workers and whoever else has been involved with the child might be necessary before a decision is reached.

Then, treatment begins and the patient immediately is put into a 24-hour structured program designed to center on his particular problems.

The top floor of the three-story building provides a large and sunny recreation area for the young people. On a patient's visit to the top, he usually is encouraged to participate only in the games including ping pong, pool and table bowling.

A few days later, occupational therapy in the forms of baking, sewing, arts and crafts project, knitting, painting and dancing begins.

In addition, hospital officials believe it's important to provide patient activities outside the building. In the immediate vicinity is a large patio where outdoor meals are enjoyed on weekends during warm weather.

Field trips both educational and recreational are common too. During a week groups may visit a museum or a ball game or the farm in Palatine Township.

WHILE SOME individual treatment differs, all patients attend school. The need for an education program was readily apparent as soon as the hospital expanded facilities for children.

For the past 5½ years, classes taught by accredited teachers from the Chicago Board of Education have been offered at the hospital. On the staff are six classroom teachers, a physical education instructor and a principal.

It was because of the need to offer education that Ted Hunter went to Ridgeway. He's proposed as the director of Ridgeway Farm and held the idea in the beginning to create such a rehabilitation center.

Warmth...Stark Form at Trinity Lutheran

The recently completed chancel at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Rolling Meadows has won high praise for its design from congregation members, according to Pastor Carl F. Thrun.

Constructed of dark, weathered wood and a light copper, the chancel was designed by David Laughlin, of Miles

It is built on three levels and backed by a polygonal sacristy which complements the soaring lines of the church's high-peaked ceiling. It combines warm, traditional components with stark geometric forms to create an effect which is perhaps unique in the contemporary idiom, according to the designer.

The back wall, measuring 14 by 28 feet, is sheathed in random slabs of weathered cypress, pine and oak and stained a muted gray. A colored glass eternal light is set in a cove of antiqued copper rising near the left end of this wall.

AT THE CENTER of the chancel's highest level is a free-standing altar formed by a 12-foot slab of polished granite which "floats" over a base of white plaster embedded with white marble chips in a linear vertical pattern. A large cross of carved oak beams rises asymmetrically from the base of this wall.

Flanking the altar on the right, the pulpit repeats the altar's frieze of white marble patterns. At the left, a lower pedestal of matching design is flanked by three processional candles combining copper and ceramic. This pedestal holds the baptismal font, sculpted in weathered pine. A communion rail of antiqued pine and natural oak defines the perimeter of the lowest level, tying the various elements into a harmonious whole.

LAUGHLIN, ONE OF this area's best known artists, worked with the architectural firm of Cooley & Borre, Park Ridge, designer of the church building. William Rumsey was project architect for Cooley & Borre.

Now that the chancel is completed, Trinity Lutheran's continuing project is the making of a series of 30 banners and hangings for the sanctuary.

These are being hand-made by the Women's Committee of the church from designs created by Laughlin, who is acting as a consultant to the committee during the project.

A stitching and applique banner, measuring 3½ by 8 feet, will hang permanently over the entrance to the sanctuary. The other banners and hangings will be alternated throughout the year according to the season or service being celebrated.

PULPIT IN Trinity Lutheran Church has a framework of weathered wood and a top of hammered copper antiqued to a war patina. The church, on Meadows Drive in Rolling Meadows, was recently completed.

Trinity Sets 'Understanding'

Trinity Lutheran Church will hold an open house visitation on Sunday, June 1, between 2:30 and 4 p.m. at 3293 Meadows Drive.

Rev. Carl F. Thrun said Trinity Lutheran Church will follow a program pattern similar to that set by St. Colette Catholic Church, the first church visited last May.

Other Rolling Meadows churches to be visited in September, October and November are Meadows Baptist Community and Bethel Lutheran Church.

THE PURPOSE OF "Operation Understanding" is to increase an awareness of what people of various faiths believe and practice, and to foster friendship and understanding among people of different religious backgrounds.

The series has two goals: to give an understanding of other church beliefs, and to provide a means for people of different faiths to get acquainted.

Not designed to convert anyone, the series only provide the means for one to see why another believes as he does. The goal of "Operation Understanding" is social rather than educational, the clergyman said.

Other members of the Rolling Meadows Ministerial Fellowship are Pastor Michael Green, Pastor William Herman, Rev. Edward Simonsen and Rev. Eugene Faucher.

Members of all congregations and anyone else who is interested are invited to attend.

Girl Scouts Receive Church Marian Award

The Marian Award is the highest religious honor given to Girl Scouts and requires the completion of 40 projects.

Some of the projects include attendance at sacred concerts, living a "day of recollection" and volunteer work for the church and church-affiliated institutions.

In addition to their regular Girl Scout meetings, the girls have been meeting once a week for the last year to discuss Marian Award projects. They also were required to report on several books.

Palatine girls ranging from 12 to 15 who earned the award include Cindy Halady, Nancy Westhusing, Kathy Graveline, Linda Monaco, Mary Beth Miles, Mary LaBosco and Rene LaBoda.

Other holders of the Marian Award are Karen McShea, Patty Kincaid, Diana Anaid, Diana Anderson, Marilee Anderson, derson, Marilee Anderson and Kim Cunningham.

Bands Will Battle June 20

Preparations and plans for the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Association's "Battle of the Bands" and the "Roaring West Fest," were discussed during the association's meeting Tuesday.

"Battle of the Bands" will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, June 20 and the "Roaring West Fest" will occur Aug. 21, 22 and 23. Both events will take place in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center parking lot.

The association agreed to limit the entries to eight bands on a first-come, first-serve basis. Bands may register at the Ron-Mel Card Studio at the shopping center.

POSTERS WILL BE distributed to the schools and throughout the business community.

Members of the association will present an award of $50 for first prize, and Jewel Foods will offer a second prize worth $25. "Battle of the Bands" committee chairman, Bill Specker said more prizes will be added.

Three concession stands are already scheduled for the "Roaring West Fest" with more to follow. The Rolling Meadows Jr. Women's Club, sponsored by Gwen-Lor

Catering, will have a bratwurst stand; Jewel Foods will have a watermelon stand, and the Rolling Meadows Fire department will man a beer stand.

A TEEN SODA booth and a rock band will be set up by Armanetti Liquors. "West Fest" Chairman Gwen Murray said there will be rides for teens as well as additional kiddie rides. Two hours of free rides will be donated to the Clearbrook School Attendance at the "West Fest" was very good last year, she said.

In other association business, it was reported that measures were being taken to improve the lighting in back of the shopping center and new striping would be added to the center's parking lot.

Boys Baseball Slate To Begin Tonight

Weather permitting, a full schedule of games will be played by the Rolling Meadows Boys Baseball Association tonight and tomorrow.

Harper Junior College trustees tonight may give some indication of how they plan to answer the suit filed against them this week by two teachers not being rehired next year.

College Atty. Frank Hines has declined to comment on the case pending today's 8 p.m. college board meeting at the Harper campus site at Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

He said he expects to make a recommendation to the board tonight.

THE SUIT WAS filed in federal district court Monday for Edward M. Kalish of Mount Prospect and Dr. Betty Enbysk of Schaumburg. Harper teachers turned down last month on their request for the college to call a public hearing and make known the reasons for their not being rehired.

The suit alleges that "the true reason for their non-retention was the fact that the plaintiffs had chosen to exercise their freedoms of speech and assembly as duly elected members of the faculty senate of the College."

If the teachers win, the case could set precedent for requiring colleges to show cause for not rehiring all teachers — including those without tenure and a right to a continuing contract. The law now says an institution can drop a nontenured teacher at the end of a contract year without giving its reasons for doing so. The National Education Association is reportedly interested in the case because of that possibility.

THE COLLEGE board also faces a long agenda that includes discussion of a grievance policy proposed by the faculty senate and originally suggested by Kalish, approval of college policy on student conduct and guest speakers, and appointment of new faculty for next year.

The board will be asked to approve hiring of a new assistant director of admissions to replace A. Harris Moeller of Barrington, who is leaving to take a new position with the College of Lake County.

Pres. Robert Lahti will also recommend appointment of a dean of guidance to replace Dr. Thomas Seward, director of guidance who resigned in protest over the Kalish-Enbysk case.

Euclid Ave. Is Growing

Nixon Names Burger

WASHINGTON — President Nixon nominated Warren E. Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States last night. Burger is judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The nomination to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren is subject to Senate confirmation. The new Chief Justice would take office when the court convenes its new term next October.

Sirhan Given Death

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan was formally sentenced to death in the California gas chamber for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy despite a letter pleading for clemency from the family of the slain senator.

In sentencing Sirhan's death, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ignored the letter from Kennedy's brother, and denied defense motions for a new trial after a daylong hearing.

Apollo 10 Flawless

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 10 whipped behind the moon last night and then flawlessly settled onto a lunar orbit where the three pilots will spend the next 2 1/2 days testing the machinery to land a man on the moon in July.

He's off the guys in the trench mission control," said Eugene Cernan. "I love them. Say 'thank you' big."

Con-Con Test Suit

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of the constitutional convention filed suit yesterday to test the constitutionality of the recently passed law for Con-Con.

A taxpayers suit filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court by Chicago Attorney James Otis asked the court to declare the law unconstitutional and issue injunctions against state officials to prevent them from preparing for delegate elections.

Delay Vigilante Bill

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to repeal the "vigilante" law had to be postponed in the Senate when it ran into surprising opposition from Republicans.

Several members, citing the "White Hirts" group in Cairo, said there might be a need for the law, which permits citizens to form "companies" to deal with "horse thieves, incendiaries and other felons."

Hill Battle Defended

SAIGON — U.S. commanders have defended the controversial offensive for Hamburger Hill and ordered a fresh battalion of American paratroopers to hold the peak near Laos.

One commander said: "If we wanted to let the enemy stay on the hill, we would have had to call off the whole operation and that would have invited the enemy to stockpile supplies for new offensives."

Defense of Thailand

BANGKOK — Foreign Minister Thanat Panom of Thailand said yesterday he believes the United States is committed by a 1954 treaty to help defend his country not only against open warfare but Communist-led guerrilla attacks.

His statement made at a news conference shortly after the close of the 14th annual ministerial meeting of SEATO, went beyond anything U.S. officials have been willing to acknowledge.

Parade Permit Ruling

CHICAGO — U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker will rule tomorrow on a suit filed by a group of north suburban Evanston Vietnam War protesters challenging the constitutionality of the city's parade permit granting procedures.

The North Shore Coalition against the War in Vietnam has received a permit from the Evanston City Council for a May 24 march, but the group is dissatisfied with the route granted for the parade.

Less Student Aid

CHAMPAIGN — The University of Illinois will not be able to provide financial help for as many undergraduate students as it had expected in next school year, it was reported.

A report read to the university's board of trustees said the school will be about $15 million short of anticipated revenues because of a cutback in federal aid, plus a shortage in the state guaranteed loan fund.

Completion of the Euclid Avenue extension from Route 53 to Plum Grove Road in Rolling Meadows and of the final part of the Euclid-Route 53 cloverleaf is set for early this fall, officials of the Cook County Highway Department said this week.

Work on the final portion of the project — the southbound entry ramp onto Route 53 from eastbound Euclid — moved into full swing this week.

The south entry ramp was only half finished when Route 53 was completed several years ago.

CONSTRUCTION ON THE Euclid-Route 53 project began late last summer. Total cost of the work, which is being done by Milburn Bros., Inc., of Des Plaines, is $669,162.20.

The work includes paving of the seven-tenths of a mile stretch with the construction of two 24-foot concrete pavements separated by a surmountable median strip (cars may pass over the strip).

Also included in the contract is the widening of existing pavement on Plum Grove Road and the channelization of traffic at the Euclid-Plum Grove Road intersection (which means there will be separate lanes for left-and right-turns and for through traffic).

The southbound ramp to Route 53 also includes installation of storm sewers, drainage structures, curbs and gutters.

The contract called for 155 working days. Completion is estimated for October, a highway department official said yesterday.

Improvement of Euclid had been on the Cook County Highway Department's program since 1963.

When it was announced, it disturbed developers of the Plum Grove Countryside subdivision of Rolling Meadows and city officials.

THE COUNTY'S PLANS were in direct conflict with the plat for a winding collector street and resulted in a change in the subdivision plan to include multi-family units instead of an entire subdivision of single-family homes.

Palatine officials have looked to the extension as a probable improvement in the Harper Junior College traffic situation on secondary streets. The college campus on Algonquin and Roselle roads will open this summer.

Euclid extended farther than Plum Grove Road will open up a development of the Palatine Industrial park farther west.

Park's a Mover

The Rolling Meadows Park District's new administrative office was successfully moved from a lot adjacent to city hall to a tentative location north of the shopping center on park district property west of Kimball Hill School yesterday.

The new office was formerly the James Cahill residence, purchased by the city for $25,000.

Present park district office is in a garage shared by the public works department.

The move will allow expansion of parking facilities at city hall and means a new headquarters for the park district. It is not known when the park district will move from its present location, but when it does, the city's public works department will gain full use of the garage.

THE CHANGE ACTUALLY will provide better facilities for everyone, according to Mayor Roland Meyer.

Park district officials are happy with the arrangement since they believe it will be advantageous to have their headquarters in a more central location.

Zone Board Is Against Ridgeway

The County Zoning Board of Appeals yesterday voted to recommend denial of special use zoning for Ridgeway Farm in Palatine Township.

Although board members agreed it was a good cause, they questioned the location, an 11-acre tract on Northwest Highway near Dundee Road.

Existing facilities on the farm owned by Ridgeway Hospital of Chicago would house pre-court and post hospital boys from 12 to 17-years-old.

"IT'S A WORTHWHILE purpose, but it doesn't mean much if it's not a worthwhile location," said Robert Marks, chairman of the county zoning board.

He added, "I feel the county board will give the case the same negative review we have."

However, a spokesman for Ridgeway Hospital, indicated a negative decision from the county board would be challenged.

"We're not going to throw in the sponge already. We've invested a lot in that property and we want to see it put to good use," said Henry Distelhorst, director of public relations and development for the hospital.

He indicated court action in an effort to obtain the necessary zoning of the land was likely.

BRIEF CONSIDERATION of the request for special use zoning was given before the zoning board reached its decision yesterday.

Petitions objecting to the farm signed by 546 Palatine Township residents were cited. Official objections from Palatine and Inverness were also mentioned.

A zoning board member, Homer Fields said, "At the public hearing, the testimony of the petitioner was very vague. When he finished his case, I wasn't even sure what the basic purpose of the farm is."

Because of the objection from Inverness, it will take a three-fourths vote of the county board to approve rezoning.

UP IN THE AIR but soon to be on the ground is the new administrative office of the Rolling Meadows Park District. The house and the garage (back ground at right) were formerly on property adjacent to city hall but were moved on Wednesday to a tentative location north of the shopping center on park district property west of the Kimball Hill School.

Chicago Ridgeway Helps Kids

(This is the first in a series of stories relating to the proposed Ridgeway Farm in Palatine Township, even though the county zoning board yesterday voted to recommend denial of the necessary rezoning. Today's story deals with Ridgeway Hospital, a facility in Chicago, whose board of trustees is proposing the farm and is not to be confused with the program planned in the township.)

by MARTHA KOPER

Ridgeway Hospital in Chicago is not a typical institution for the care of the ill. Almost nine years ago, it was established to treat patients with psychiatric problems, but it's not a typical psychiatric hospital.

Ranked among only a few of its kind, Ridgeway is primarily concerned with emotionally disturbed children and adults.

ALTHOUGH SEVERAL hospitals admit children to their beds, a structured program for their care is not incorporated in the daily routine. At Ridgeway almost everything revolves around the young people.

When the hospital, located at 520 W. Ridgeway, opened its doors in September 1962, there were 23 beds designated for young patients. Today, in the total 90-bed hospital, 73 are devoted to children and adolescents.

In another year or two, it probably will become exclusively a children's hospital, according to Henry Distelhorst, director of public relations and development.

The children come from all over. There's not just one social agency, or church or court which refers them. Sometimes, parents bring them because they know there's a problem they no longer can handle.

All of them are emotionally ill, with behavior and character problems. They are not mentally handicapped or retarded.

Their problems range from insomnia to schizophrenia. Treatments vary from baking to attentive listening.

THE STAFF IS structured to include psychiatrists, psychologists, occupational therapists, child care workers, recreation therapists and teachers and provides one employee for every 2.5 patients.

"It's not much of a trick to keep this place filled," said Distelhorst, who could provide statistics showing that of more than 50,000 young people in need of psychiatric help in the Chicago metropolitan area, only about 18,000 receive treatment.

Ridgeway is a non-profit, private institution headed by a 12-member board of trustees. Some money comes from state and county funds. But most of the cost of caring for a patient is paid by insurance.

"A company such as Blue Cross pays the full cost of care at Ridgeway up to 120 days," Distelhorst said.

The average stay of an adolescent patient during 1968 was 82 days.

WHEN A CHILD IS admitted to the hospital, the first step is diagnosis. Conversations with parents, teachers, case workers and whoever else has been involved with the child might be necessary before a decision is reached.

Then, treatment begins and the patient immediately is put into a 24-hour structured program designed to center on his particular problems.

The top floor of the three-story building provides a large and sunny recreation area for the young people. On a patient's visit to the top, he usually is encouraged to participate only in the games including ping pong, pool and table bowling.

A few days later, occupational therapy in the forms of baking, sewing, arts and crafts project, knitting, painting and dancing begins.

In addition, hospital officials believe it's important to provide patient activities outside the building. In the immediate vicinity is a large patio where outdoor meals are enjoyed on weekends during warm weather.

Field trips both educational and recreational are common too. During a week groups may visit a museum or a ball game or the farm in Palatine Township.

WHILE SOME individual treatment differs, all patients attend school. The need for an education program was readily apparent as soon as the hospital expanded facilities for children.

For the past 5 1/2 years, classes taught by accredited teachers from the Chicago Board of Education have been offered at the hospital. On the staff are six classroom teachers, a physical education instructor and a principal.

It was because of the need to offer education that Ted Hunter went to Ridgeway. He's proposed as the director of Ridgeway Farm and held the idea in the beginning to create such a rehabilitation center.

Warmth...Stark Form at Trinity Lutheran

The recently completed chancel at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Rolling Meadows has won high praise for its design from congregation members, according to Pastor Carl F. Thrun.

Constructed of stone, weathered wood and antiqued copper, the chancel was designed by David Laughlin, of Niles.

It is built on three levels and backed by a polygonal sacristy wall which complements the soaring lines of the church's high-peaked ceiling. It combines warm, traditional components with stark geometric forms to create an effect which is perhaps unique in the contemporary idiom, according to the designer.

The back wall, measuring 14 by 28 feet, is sheathed in random slabs of weathered cypress, pine and oak and stained a muted gray. A colored glass eternal light is set in a cove of antiqued copper rising near the left end of this wall.

AT THE CENTER of the chancel's highest level is a free-standing altar formed by a 12-foot slab of polished granite which "floats" over a base of white plaster embedded with white marble chips in a linear vertical pattern. A large cross of carved oak beams rises asymmetrically from the base of the altar.

Flanking the altar on the right, the pulpit repeats the altar's frieze of white marble patterns. At the left, a lower pedestal of matching design is fronted by three processional candles combining copper and ceramic. This pedestal holds the baptismal font, sculpted in antiqued copper. A communion rail of weathered pine and natural oak defines the perimeter of the lowest level, tying the various elements into a harmonious whole.

LAUGHLIN, ONE OF this area's best known artists, worked with the architectural firm of Cooley & Borre, Park Ridge, designer of the church building. William Rumsey was project architect for Cooley & Borre.

Now that the chancel is completed, Trinity Lutheran's continuing project is the making of a series of 30 banners and hangings for the sanctuary.

These are being hand-made by the Women's Committee of the church from designs created by Laughlin, who is acting as a consultant to the committee during the project.

A stitchery and applique banner, measuring 3½ by 8 feet, will hang permanently over the entrance to the sanctuary. The other banners and hangings will be alternated throughout the year according to the season or service being celebrated.

PULPIT IN Trinity Lutheran Church has a framework of weathered wood and a top of hammered copper antiqued to a war patina. The church, on Meadows Drive in Rolling Meadows, was recently completed.

Trinity Sets 'Understanding'

The second part of "Operation Understanding," a series of five open-house visits to churches of various faiths in the Rolling Meadows area, will be held on Trinity Sunday, June 1, between 2:30 and 5 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran Church, 3203 Meadows Drive.

Rev. Carl F. Thrun said Trinity Lutheran Church will follow a program pattern similar to that set by St. Colette Catholic Church, the first church visited last May 4.

Other Rolling Meadows churches to be visited in September, October and November are Meadows Baptist, Community, and Bethel Lutheran Church.

THE PURPOSE OF "Operation Understanding" is to increase an awareness of what people of various faiths believe and practice, and to foster friendship and understanding among people of diverse religious backgrounds.

The series has two goals: to give an understanding of other church beliefs and to provide a means for people of different faiths to get acquainted.

Not designed to convert anyone, the series only provides the means for one to see why another believes as he does. The goal of "Operation Understanding" is social rather than educational, the clergymen said.

Ball Game Called -Plan Play Today

The scheduled Elk Grove Regional baseball game between Palatine and Wheaton Central was postponed because of rain and cold weather. Palatine and Wheaton played three innings Wednesday and the score was tied 1-1 when the game was called.

Palatine and Wheaton are scheduled to play today at 4 p.m. at Elk Grove though the site may be changed if the field is in unplayable condition. The winner of the Palatine-Wheaton game will play Naperville for the Regional Championship.

Flower Power

Junior Girl Scouts of Troop 876, Palatine, are doing their part to help beautify Palatine this spring.

The 21 girls in the Winston Park area troop have received permission from the village to assume gardening care of the cul-de-sac at 119 S. Belle.

THE GIRLS HAVE already cleared the weeds and other undesirable items from the land and they recently completed planting flowers.

Some of the scouts have lived in Palatine for more than one year.

Bake Sale Saturday

Cadet Girl Scout Troop 46 of Palatine will conduct a bake sale between 2 and 4 p.m. Saturday at 139 David Drive, Palatine.

Proceeds will help finance a trip to Springfield.

Cadet Troop 46 is sponsored by St. Thomas of Villanova School.

Sanborn School Sets Music Man

Students at Gray E. Sanborn School in Palatine will present "The Music Man" June 6 and 7, in Palatine High School.

Cast members include Kevin Doyle (Harold Hill), Maggi Phillippe (Marion Paroo), Lachlan Frew (Mayor Shinn), Paula Jones (Mrs. Shinn), Joe Malambri (Winthrop Paroo), and Julie Ball (Mrs. Paroo).

The play is under the direction of Dawn Holman, vocal music teacher at Sanborn.

In Basic Training

Pvt. Daniel M. Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green of 2618 Rohlwing Road, Rolling Meadows, is undergoing basic training at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Green is a 1967 graduate of Palatine High School.

Amnesty Day At Library

Rolling Meadows Public Library users will have a week of amnesty to return overdue books in honor of the dedication of the new Rolling Meadows city hall.

May 31 to June 7 were approved as amnesty days by the city council this week. The new city hall will be dedicated as part of the city's Memorial Day celebration May 30.

Persons with overdue books will be able to place them in a book bin in the library lobby. No questions will be asked and no fines will be charged.

Bands Will Battle June 20

Preparations and plans for the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Association's "Battle of the Bands" and the "Roaring West Fest," were discussed during the association's meeting Tuesday.

"Battle of the Bands" will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, June 20 and the "Roaring West Fest" will occur Aug. 21, 22 and 23. Both events will take place in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center parking lot.

The association agreed to limit the entries to eight bands on a first-come, first-served basis. Bands may register at the Ron-Mel Card Studio at the shopping center.

POSTERS WILL BE distributed to the schools and throughout the business community.

Members of the association will present an award of $50 for first prize, and Jewel Foods will offer a second prize worth $25. "Battle of the Bands" Committee chairman, Bill Spiecker said more prizes will be added.

Three concession stands are already scheduled for the "Roaring West Fest" with more to follow. The Rolling Meadows Jr. Women's Club, sponsored by Gwen-Lor

Catering, will have a bratwurst stand; Jewel Foods will have a watermelon stand, and the Rolling Meadows Fire department will man a beer stand.

A TEEN SODA booth and a rock band will be set up by Armanetti Liquors.

"West Fest" Chairman Gwen Murray, said there will be rides for teens as well as additional kiddie rides. Two hours of free rides will be donated to the Clearbrook School. Attendance at the "West Fest" was very good last year, she said.

In other association business, it was reported that measures were being taken to improve the lighting in back of the shopping center and new striping would be added to the center's parking lot.

Boys Baseball Slate To Begin Tonight

Weather permitting, a full schedule of games will be played by the Rolling Meadows Boys Baseball Association tonight and tomorrow.

Games begin at 6:20 p.m. at Central Road, Cardinal Drive and Kimball Hill diamonds.

Teacher Talks Tuesday

Nixon Names Burger

WASHINGTON — President Nixon nominated Warren E. Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States last night. Burger is judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The nomination to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren is subject to Senate confirmation. The new Chief Justice would take office when the court convenes its new term next October.

Sirhan Given Death

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan was formally sentenced to death in the California gas chamber for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy despite a letter pleading for clemency from the family of the slain senator.

In ordering Sirhan's death, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ignored the letter from Kennedy's brother, and denied defense motions for a new trial after a day-long hearing.

Apollo 10 Flawless

SPACE CENTER Houston — Apollo 10 whipped behind the moon last night and then flawlessly settled into a lunar orbit where the three pilots will spend the next 2 1/2 days testing the machinery to land a man on the moon in July.

Hats off the guys in the trench mission control," said Eugene Cernan. "I love them. Say 'thank you' to them."

Con-Con Test Suit

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of the Springfield Convention filed suit yesterday to test the constitutionality of the recently passed law for Con-Con.

A taxpayers suit filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court by Chicago Atty. James Otis asked the court to declare the law unconstitutional and issue injunctions against state officials to prevent them from preparing for the election.

Delay Vigilante Bill

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to repeal the "vigilante" law had to be postponed in the Senate when it ran into surprising opposition from Republicans.

Several members citing the White House group in Cairo, said there might be a need for the law, which permits citizens to form "companies" to deal with "horse thieves, incendiaries and other felons."

Hill Battle Defended

SAMON — U.S. commanders have defended the controversial offensive for Hamburger Hill and ordered a fresh battalion of American paratroopers to hold the peak near Laos.

One commander said, "If we wanted to let the enemy stay on the hill, we would have had to call off the whole operation. And that would have invited the enemy to stockpile supplies for new offensives."

Defense of Thailand

BANGKOK — Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand said yesterday he believes the United States is committed by a 1954 treaty to help defend his country not only against open warfare but Communist guerrilla attacks.

His statement made at a news conference shortly after the close of the 14th annual ministerial meeting of SEATO, went beyond anything U.S. officials have been willing to acknowledge.

Parade Permit Ruling

CHICAGO — U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker said he will rule tomorrow on a suit filed by a group of north suburban Evanston Vietnam War protesters challenging the constitutionality of their city's parade permit granting procedures.

The North Shore Coalition against the War in Vietnam has received a permit from the Evanston City Council for a May 31 march, but the group is dissatisfied with the route granted for the parade.

Negotiations between teachers and School Dist. 59 will resume Tuesday, as a result of a letter from Supt. Donald Thomas to leaders of both sides in the deadlocked talks.

It was learned yesterday that representatives of the Teachers Council and the board of education plan to meet behind closed doors at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the district administration center.

Thomas said the meeting will be on the basis of a letter he wrote to board member Richard Hess and teacher Harlan Michels, expressing concern about the deadlocked negotiations and suggesting possibilities for the basis of a settlement.

BARGAINING ended two weeks ago when teachers rejected a firm contract offer from the board of education. Shortly after the 406-1 vote against a contract offering base pay of $6,900 for 10 months, regular sessions ended.

An administration statement said that both sides agreed to meet again when a new proposal was ready for discussion.

On Saturday, the teachers said they were waiting for the board to make a fresh contract offer, and that they would be willing to wait "as long as necessary."

At stake are contracts for nearly 450 district teachers, and as of the moment none of the faculty have signed contracts to teach.

They are primarily demanding more money than is being offered, and an agreement on class sizes which the board refuses to negotiate.

ACCORDING TO Thomas, the Tuesday meeting is specifically geared around the ideas expressed in a May 16 letter, proposing life insurance policies paid for by the district, an additional salary step in the scale, and an increase of proposed extended services contract options.

"We are meeting to specifically discuss the contents of that letter," Thomas said.

But the superintendent did not rule out the chances of renewed discussion in other areas, including the possibility of 12 month contracts at significantly higher pay.

In his May 16 letter, Thomas noted that if more revenue can be obtained, one of the first priorities could be to reduce student teacher ratio to 25 to 1 from the present 29 to 1, boosting extended service contracts to 50 per cent, and "the purchase of capital outlay items."

UNLESS THE Illinois General Assembly passes a state aid bill substantially higher than the proposed $500 level, additional revenue would be found only in an educational tax rate increase.

Even then, smaller classes would require more facilities, and district administrators are not ruling out a building bond issue to meet future growth needs of the district.

Group Has Park Plan

Residents of the Golfhurst subdivision, a landlocked group of 110 homes on the southeast end of Dist. 57, will attend the June 2 school board meeting to present their view on use of a vacant 11-acre site belonging to the district.

Golfhurst homeowners indicated their approval of park development at earlier school board meetings.

A separate project the Civic Association is shepherding through village channels seeks a bridge across Weller Creek at George Street. Indications are that this topic might also be involved in the development of the school site and could be discussed June 2.

GOLFURST IS laid out in a loop design with an opening at the south end of the loop to Golf Road through Golfview. At the north end of the loop George Street is developed for a half block from Golfhurst Avenue to Weller Creek but does not bisect the subdivision. Edward is the west street of the loop and Albert the east, but neither street cuts through to Golf or Weller Creek.

Sunset Road runs east and west through the subdivision but ends at the east side of the school property. Robert Teichert, village president, has suggested a temporary undedicated extension of Sunset through the school land. He said it could be used for emergency vehicles. The village will present its request June 2.

Residents just north of Weller Creek oppose the extension of George Street by a bridge because they say it will bring too much traffic into their area. These homeowners have been very vocal in voicing their opinions and the Golfhurst Civic Association members feel they must counteract this opposition.

The Mount Prospect Park District also has entered a proposal for the 1-acre school site, asking that it be developed with a Little League diamond. Since this is in line with earlier Golfhurst suggestions for a park on the site, the homeowners sent representatives to the school board meetings.

"I HAVE ONLY indicated that we favor a park development on the property, not that we favor Little League development," said Michael O'Brien, 912 S. Louis, the Golfhurst representative.

The park proposal is opposed by residents on Williams Street, which abuts the school land on the west. Williams is a half street that will be improved at the expense of the school district during the summer.

"Everyone is against us," bemoaned one woman at the association meeting yesterday.

The Golfhurst group agreed it would prefer a lot for the school land but felt a ball diamond properly placed on the site would also be acceptable.

Edward Andrus, 909 S. Louis, outgoing president of the association, said, "I think it would be highly selfish of us to ask just for a lot for a prime piece of real estate like that. Personally, I'd like to see the area committed to something. That would make the district more reluctant to sell it in case they don't need it for a school."

O'Brien said, "I think we should go on record supporting anything beneficial in the way of a park, but I think we should insist on planning."

Freight Ticketed

The Chicago and North Western Ry. yesterday was fined $100 plus court costs by Judge Francis Gloacki for obstructing a grade crossing more than two weeks ago, causing a tie-up of traffic in excess of Heights Police.

Police said a North Western freight train pulled into town at 4:48 p.m. on May 5, causing the railroad gates to lower. The engine then made several switches of cars on the siding between Euclid and Vail Streets.

This process included taking the needed cars off the side track and placing them on the main track, putting the cars it brought in on the siding. The engine then hooked up to the new cars.

THE TRAIN TIED up four grade crossings at Vail, Dunton, Evergreen and Arlington Heights Road, police said. Sgt. Harold Hildebrandt said the train blocked the four crossings for more than 27 minutes.

Police said the train moved enough to clear the crossings, but later reblocked Vail and Dunton for an additional five minutes and 53 seconds.

It was reported that traffic was backed up at least eight blocks during the rush hour period. Twelve Arlington Heights policemen were needed to clear up the traffic jam. The conductor of the train, William S. Smith of West Chicago, was issued the citation.

The police department called in off-duty patrolmen to aid with the traffic mop-up. Even Chief L. W. Calderwood was called to the scene.

Police said Smith told them that he was only doing his job and that somebody was supposed to be on duty in the railroad tower near Vail. However, police said no one was in the tower.

We're in the Finals!

Behind the strong right arm of Randy Cordova, Prospect battled its way into the finals of the Maine South Regional Baseball Tournament by topping Glenbrook South last night, 3-1.

Cordova, who went the full seven innings against Glenbrook despite intermittent sleight and marrow-chilling temperatures, hurled three-hit ball at the Titans, not giving up a single hit until the sixth inning and walking none.

The lone Titan tally came about when two hits and a Knight fielding miscue were turned into a run in the sixth inning. The Titans put a man on board again in the seventh, but Cordova knuckled down then and retired the side.

Cordova's teammates, meanwhile, were providing him with a three-run cushion, teeing off on Glenbrook South chucker Pete Barrath for three runs on three hits in the third inning.

PROSPECT FIRST baseman Sandy Quillen led off the third with an infield single to shortstop. He was moved all the way around to third when Dave Lundstedt followed up with a bunt that Barrath fielded and then threw over the first baseman's head.

After Cordova struck out, Knight left fielder Mike Needleman sacrificed both runners up a base, and then both were knocked home with the game's first two runs on Mike Wulbecker's single to left. After Wulbecker stole second, Steve Grant chased him home with a shot down the first base line that sailed just under the first baseman's glove.

Prospect will take on the winner of yesterday's Maine East - Niles West tilt either this afternoon or tomorrow afternoon for the championship. For exact time and day, call 394-1700 after 1:30 p.m. today.

Poppy Day's Today

Mount Prospect will recognize disabled veterans with a Poppy Day fund drive slated for Thursday, according to Mayor Robert Teichert.

Teichert also proclaimed that this week be set aside as E-Hart Girls Week in Mount Prospect.

"YEP, DURING Prohibition I had a license to sell government whiskey for medicinal purposes to anyone who had a doctor's prescription. You just wouldn't believe how many people had the flu in those days," explained Herb Van Driel, the man behind Van Driel's Drugstore in Mount Prospect.

Ham, Pie First

by GERRY DeZONNA

Herb Van Driel built a drugstore on baked ham and apple pie.

"Yep, when I moved my business to Mount Prospect in 1942, there were only two doctors and one drugstore in town. The other druggist was established and he had an agreement with the doctors for their prescriptions."

"So, my wife and I added a lunch counter to our store, a few ham sandwiches and homemade pies, and in those early days, 85 per cent of my business was food."

Van Driel, now retired from business, built Van Driel's Drugstore which is still a business stronghold at the busy intersection of Northwest Highway and Emerson Street in Mount Prospect.

VAN DRIEL IS A mild-mannered, soft-spoken man whose influential hand helped build the Mount Prospect business community and organize the village during the post-World War II population boom.

A pioneer of sorts, Van Driel moved from Chicago to Mount Prospect because "we had two small children and my wife wanted to get away from the streetcar line. Mount Prospect was a lot different in those days, mostly farm land, and I'd bet the population was no larger than 1,800 people."

During the war, Mount Prospect didn't grow much in size. Contractors weren't building houses because there was no market, money was short, and people couldn't afford to pull up their roots and move to the suburbs.

"I encouraged many of my friends who were in business for themselves to move out to Mount Prospect," explained Van Driel. "Some came before the war, but many didn't come until 1945."

"One of the problems during the war

was that housing was so short, and many people in town lost their homes to employment during the war, he had a priority on food and cigarettes. "We were able to buy sugar and meat for the restaurant, when most of the people in town could only have a very limited supply."

"And every Monday morning the cigarette smokers would form a three-block line in front of the drugstore to buy cigarettes. As a business establishment, we could purchase cigarettes. The shipment would come every Monday, and we never had enough for everyone."

He explained that as a private businessman during the war, he had a priority on food and cigarettes. "We were able to buy sugar and meat for the restaurant, when most of the people in town could only have a very limited supply."

"And every Monday morning the cigarette smokers would form a three-block line in front of the drugstore to buy cigarettes. As a business establishment, we could purchase cigarettes. The shipment would come every Monday, and we never had enough for everyone."

"Come noon I'd have sold the lot of them. Sometimes, I would tell the people that the shipment was late and there wouldn't be any smokes until Tuesday. That way some of the people who didn't have a chance to buy cigarettes last Monday could get in line first on Tuesday."

VAN DRIEL HAS been in business during some of the most interesting times in this country's history. He started working as a druggist in 1913 and established his own store in Chicago in 1927.

"The 1920's were wild times. Chicago was a wide-open town with over-crowded taverns and speakeasies. Everyone had money, and they were willing to spend it."

"John Dillinger used to live down the block from the old store in Chicago. He'd come down to buy cigarettes or gum. I

Pick Neuhauser

Through a quirk of fate, the Dist. 59 board of education will lose one of its most recently elected board members next month. George Blanchard, elected last April, will leave the district because of a job transfer.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education should appoint Paul Neuhauser to Blanchard's unexpired term.

Neuhauser was a candidate for the board in the April elections. He was third in the field of candidates, losing the seat to Blanchard by a margin of 28 votes.

BY APPOINTING Neuhauser, other board members will be fulfilling the intent of the voters of the district who obviously saw in Neuhauser the qualities they desire in their elected representatives.

An investigator for the Treasury Department, Neuhauser would bring an inquisitive mind and a strong background in financial matters to the board.

Since the announcement of Blanchard's departure, parents in the school district and most recently a group of teachers have urged the board of education to appoint Neuhauser to the vacant seat.

We believe the case is clear, that the Dist. 59 Board of Education should appoint Neuhauser when Blanchard's formal resignation is submitted.

Gardening by Book

by LAURIE ROSSI

This month many people will begin to plant gardens, and get their lawns in shape. If you're planning on a fresh bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich with two-thirds of it from your backyard, now's the time to start planting.

The Mount Prospect Public Library has all the books you'll need to plant any kind of garden, indoors or out.

To start out with, a good book would be "The Beginning Gardener." This useful reference has a great recipe for compost heap a boon for your garden.

You save grass clippings, egg shells, grapefruit and orange rinds, potato parings, wood ashes, coffee grounds, weeds, and vegetable greens and keep them in a hole (hidden somewhere near the back of the yard) four to five feet deep.

Within about three to six months the contents are ready to be used as a very inexpensive and effective fertilizer.

You should keep adding to the compost heap, so you always have a continuous supply. This book also tells how to make a bird garden, rock garden, and wild-flower garden.

IF YOU SPECIALIZE many of the gardening books can help you with just the type of garden you want. "Vegetable Gardening in Color" has some introductory chapters on the subject of vegetable gardens, and continues with each vegetable and herb in alphabetical order. It also tells about planting berries and grapes.

If you like to cook what you plant you'll enjoy "Gardening and Cooking on Terrace and Patio," which will help you do exactly that.

"Herbs (How to Grow and Use Them)" discusses the use of herbs for seasoning in cooking and for medicinal purposes. For a garden geared to smell good, read "The Scented Garden."

Many people believe in growing vegetables, fruits, and flowers solely by natural methods. "Gardening With Nature" can help you grow a natural vegetable garden for a family of four, teach you to store herbs, grow nut trees, and keep summer crops for winter use.

Gardening can be profitable as well as entertaining. If you don't begin reading and planting now, you're going to be pretty jealous when you see your neighbor's cherry red tomatoes start ripening over the hedge next August.

Year of History

The Mount Prospect Historical Society has completed its first year with a membership of 64 local residents.

New officers for the coming year are Mrs. Victor Bittner, president; Mrs. John Weber, vice president; Mrs. Robert Hauz, recording secretary; Mrs. Rodney Wilson, corresponding secretary and Mrs. C. Franck, treasurer.

The membership has approved changing its meeting date to the fourth Monday of the month for the coming year.

Among the acquisitions of the society during this year were the first books kept by the village of Mount Prospect, a collection of arrowheads from this area donated by Frank Biermann and an antique piano, the gift of Mrs. Angela Wotel.

She Paints To Make You Happy

by EDITH FREUND

I like to paint things that make people happy, said Mrs. Betty Hubbard, chairman of the art department in Dist. 57.

Mrs. Hubbard, who is exhibiting a few of her paintings in a local school, told the work because it makes them feel nostalgic.

With few exceptions her work is representational. "I have a few, perhaps have a dozen, that are really way out. I think they were successful, but they were really hard work for me," she said.

She says that painting is a demanding task because "it takes a long time to do something and do it well. It takes a great deal out of someone to create and for this reason I don't do as much as I would like. I just don't have the time or energy to spare from my school work, which I also enjoy very much."

BETTY HUBBARD believes that anyone can learn to draw or paint.

"There are very few geniuses. Perhaps 10 per cent of those who try might be classed as true masters. But anyone can learn draftsmanship, and to make some Herald that she feels patrons like her

Bad Checks Charged

A 25-year-old Lake Zurich man was arrested in Waukegan by Mount Prospect police Wednesday and charged with passing bad checks.

The man was identified as Clarence Borowski.

Jack Keefer, owner of Keefer's Pharmacy, 5 W. Prospect Ave., told police Borowski had cashed nine checks in his store recently, for a total of $105.50, but said none of them were any good because his account had been closed. The checks were written on the First Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine.

TWO OTHER merchants in Mount Prospect reported similar cases. Julian Pharmacy said Borowski had cashed bad checks totaling $73.75 with them and the Pure Oil service station reported they had cashed a bogus check written by Borowski for $46.

The man was taken to the Cook County House of Correction in lieu of $1,000 bond. His case is scheduled to be heard in District Court at Mount Prospect May 29.

Closed Pay Sessions Please Negotiator

Ralph Walberg, chairman of the salary negotiating committee for the Dist. 57 School Board, told the Herald he was pleased with the ability of teachers and board members to confine their deliberations to the board room.

"Let somebody else make the headlines," Walberg said.

He said a meeting has been scheduled with members of the Mount Prospect Education Association (MPEA) for the coming week, and it is hoped a settlement will be reached at that time.

While active MPEA members have not commented about their request for an upgraded pay schedule, veteran teachers have said they do not approve of some of the demands being made through education associations at the urging of national organizations.

8 Join Commissions

Mayor Robert Teichert appointed four men to serve on the Mount Prospect Architectural Commission Tuesday.

They are William G. Lebsack, Ray Schultz, Ban Hemminger and Ted Erbach.

Named to fill vacancies on the Drainage and Clean Streams Commission are George Anderson, Norman Rud, James Atkinson and William R. Demmert.

Teichert said Henry Szala indicated to him last week that he was going to resign from the Police and Fire Commission. The board agreed that when a letter of resignation was received from Szala, Kenneth O'Callahan will be named to replace him.

DIAGNOSING A CAR'S COMPLAINTS, four officers of Wheeling's Midnight Movers held a daytime session recently in preparation for the free national safety check on automobiles they will conduct June 8. Gary Polony, Mike McGowan and Ed Hawkins discuss the problems while Tony VerPlancke listens to the engine.

Pre-Beautiful People'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Dressed in black jackets with an emblem of a ghost on wheels, motorcycle boots and exotic headgear, members of Wheeling's Midnight Movers begin to congregate in the early evening at the drive-in.

Anywhere from 20 to 40 of them stand around in small groups walking, smoking and arguing loudly.

To the casual observer they look like just another teengang — a group of the undesirable elements in a high school community who have banded together to give the town a bad name.

WHAT THEY ARE, however, is an organized club, with stringent rules, the backing of police and an intense sensitivity about their public image.

The Midnight Movers are so concerned about the image that they are sponsoring a free national safety check June 8 to introduce themselves to local residents. They will check cars for safety features required by the state and put stickers on cars that pass the test.

The club, which started seven weeks ago, is admittedly made up of some of the less desirable members of the community.

At least 15 of the club's 47 members are dropouts, although some attend night school. Most have had some contact with police in a variety of juvenile offenses.

The club members started their group to work on cars and to give them an organized activity. Although they have just begun to organize, they plan a trip to southern Wisconsin next weekend to visit several drag strips and hope to have dances, picnics and baseball games this summer.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most of all is a place to race cars, but members are willing to wait for that until they have gained trust and recognition from the community.

One member suggested that a street could be blocked off for a short time for drag races, but admitted that there might be a problem with the possibility of children around.

What they really would like is to borrow a runway at Palwaukee Airport to race their "grudge races" against each other, until they can get enough support to get a regular drag strip brought to town.

One member talked idealistically about having professional racers come to town and putting Wheeling on the map along with Rockford and U.S. 30 drag strips.

In the meantime, however, the young men have an uphill battle ahead of them.

The 47 members have decided the way to gain public recognition is to police the activities of their members to maintain their "image" and to plan activities which will benefit the community.

THEIR RULES are stringent — and enforced.

Two members who squealed their tires on the pavement, one while wearing his jacket and the other while with a group of club members, were fined $5 and were forced to give up their jackets for a week at a recent meeting.

For any violation a member is "stripped of his colors," articles with the club emblem, and fines are imposed if the violation is serious.

Other rules of the club say that while wearing the colors or with any other club members, a Midnight Mover isn't allowed to speed, drive recklessly, patch his tires or race.

After two violations, the members are out of the club.

Police school liaison officer Ted Homeyer says the club is somewhat exclusive organization and a status symbol.

"SOME KIDS would give their left arm to belong," he says, adding that because membership is valued so highly by the high school group, the rules can be stringently enforced and the members will submit to the policing and fines.

The Midnight Movers, mostly from Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove, pay 50 cents a week in dues to the club and are governed by two spokesmen and a variety of lesser officers.

Current spokesmen, who direct the meetings and tell other members to "shut up" when they talk out of turn, are Ed Hawkins and Gary Polony. Cliff Foraster is an alternate spokesman.

The Midnight Movers admit some of their members would do a lot more drag racing on village streets if it weren't for club rules.

"We're doing the town a public service by keeping some of these off the streets," one boy said last week. "We've got some of the worst kids and worst drivers in Wheeling," another admits.

The group members vary somewhat in appearance. Ranging in age from 18 to 20 with one 16-year-old mascot, some of the members are clean-cut looking while others are what most teens would term "grease."

SOME HAVE carefully lacquered pompadour haircuts resembling heroes of 1950's movies, and others have crewcuts.

Some sit on the backs of their chairs at meetings and yell their suggestions in a mixture of automotive terms and semi-vulgarity. Others stand when called on and logically explain their proposals.

However, all have a common interest in cars, racing, and club activities. And all are adamant that club members must live up to the rules of the organization.

Striving for a good image, the club is sponsoring a free safety check for all cars in the area June 8.

The Midnight Movers collected $56 for materials from merchants in the village and got permission to use the K-Mart's parking lot. The check will include examining cars for adequate lights, brakes, alignment and other safety features.

Cars passing the inspection, as outlined in information bought by the group from the Illinois secretary of state's office, will receive a national safety check sticker.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most is the support of the community and to belong to a famed organization of racing enthusiasts which they know only as the NEPA. Saving acceptance to that organization is limited to "beautiful people," they explain that it would give their club statewide recognition.

In the meantime, they are working on more activities for their members. As one spokesman reminded the group at a Sunday meeting when the arguments get out of hand, "Hey, come on you guys. This is a club, not a gang."

saw quite a bit of him. He was an ordinary sort of fellow who just minded his own business and never seemed to bother anyone.

"I didn't know he was Dillinger until after the FBI shot him in the theatre one day. You know, 'The Lady in Red' squealed on him."

Since Van Driel had his own drugstore during Prohibition, he had a license to sell government whiskey for medicinal purposes. "I could sell as much whiskey to a person a day just as long as they had a doctor's prescription. Didn't matter if they came in every 15 minutes."

"Whiskey was supposed to be a good cure for the flu. You just wouldn't believe how many people suffered from the flu during Prohibition."

DURING THE Depression, Van Driel was still able to keep his business going. "We didn't get hit as hard as some people did by the stock market crash. I would exchange my goods and services with other businessmen, and that's one way we kept our heads above water."

"In a way, the Depression was a wonderful thing because it created a common bond between people. For the first time, many people realized that money wasn't everything in life."

During the post-war years, Mount Prospect's population boomed and many Chicago-operated businesses were moving out of the city. Van Driel then established in the community, organized the first Chamber of Commerce.

"There was a real need to organize the businessmen in the village. The Chamber gave us the opportunity to promote better business and service and to help the man in retail business."

Van Driel served as Chamber president for two terms, and he also helped organize the Lions Club, serving a year as president for the civic organization.

TODAY, THE LINES in his face are a little deeper and more pronounced, but his memory is good and his stories are of rare vintage.

Van Driel will relate some of his experiences as a drugstore pioneer in Mount Prospect at a Historical Society meeting on May 23 at 8 p.m. at the Mount Prospect Country Club.

Harper To Respond to Suit

Harper Junior College trustees tonight may give some indication of how they plan to answer the suit filed against them this week by two teachers not being rehired next year.

College Atty. Frank Hines has declined to comment on the case pending today's 8 p.m. college board meeting at the Harper campus site at Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

He said he expects to make a recommendation to the board tonight.

THE SUIT was filed in federal district court Monday for Edward M. Kalish of Mount Prospect and Dr. Betty Enbysch of Schaumburg. Harper teachers turned down last month on their request for the college to call a public hearing and make known the reasons for their not being rehired.

The suit alleges that "the true reason for their non-retention was the fact that the plaintiff had chosen to exercise their freedoms of speech and assembly as duly elected members of the faculty senate of the College."

If the teachers win, the case could set precedent for requiring colleges to show cause for not rehiring all teachers — including those without tenure and rights to a continuing contract. The law now says an institution can drop a nontenured teacher at the end of a contract year without giving its reasons for doing so. The National Education Association is reportedly interested in the case because of that possibility.

THE COLLEGE board also faces a long agenda that includes discussion of a grievance policy proposed by the faculty senate and originally suggested by Kalish, approval of college policy on student conduct and guest speakers, and appointment of new faculty for next year.

The board will be asked to approve hiring of a new assistant director of admissions to replace A. Harris Moeller of Barrington, who is leaving to take a new position with the College of Lake County.

Pres. Robert Lahti will also recommend appointment of a dean of guidance to replace Dr. Thomas Seward, director of guidance who resigned in protest over the Kalish-Enbysch case.

Oh Well, It's Nourishing

One of the functions of School Dist. 59 participating in the Project Wingspread program is to introduce ghetto youngsters to suburbia — including the food it serves in schools.

In the second of three visits by Chicago children last Friday, the bill of fare included a tour of Elk Grove High School with a stop in the school cafeteria for lunch.

While four straws seemed a good way for some to consume chocolate milk (far left), an encounter with the main course (above) was another story.

HAVING A free choice of all the high school had to offer, one unidentified child went for a fish on bread sandwich, took a big bite and then had second thoughts.

Participation in the program, a result of a controversial decision by the School Dist. 59 board of education, produces "trading" of youngsters on a voluntary basis. A total of 21 area children make periodic visits to Chicago's ghetto, while an equal number of inner-city children visit the suburbs on a field trip basis.

To Keep School Libraries Open in Summer

Members of the board of directors of the Illinois State Board of Education have approved a plan to keep school libraries open during the summer months.

At the time of the plan, libraries will be open for one week and one day each week, from the second week of June through the second week of August.

The program will begin the Monday of the second week of June, and will run for six weeks, ending the Monday of the second week of August. Each school will be open for one week and one day each week, alternating with the children's and adult libraries.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES also will be open during the summer months.

Members of the board of directors of the Illinois State Board of Education have approved a plan to keep school libraries open during the summer months.

ghetto life, ethnic development and new areas of science such as oceanography.

"I feel it is important that our children become comfortable with all types of things and ways of living," Mrs. Gunderson said. "The criteria we have for picking a book is that it must be well-written and fill a need in our curriculum. We like to offer current material that is pertinent to today's living."

Among the new books are some collective biographies on leaders of lost African Americans, books dealing with the problems of inner city living, books dealing with racial friendships between young children and poems, music and sports of many ethnic groups.

"This material can be used during the year as part of a study of musical development in literature or the study of contemporary literature and the people who wrote it," Mr. Gunderson told the Herald.

IN DISCUSSING THE new science publications, she said, "Many of these avenues of discovery didn't exist until recently. The publishers have met our needs and we are able to expose the chil-

Learning Disabilities Talk

Robert J. Scanlon, 316 N. Haddon Ave., Arlington Heights will serve as co-chairman for the Saturday meeting of the Illinois Council for Children with Learning Disabilities.

The 9 a.m. meeting will take place at the Alherton Hotel in Chicago.

Keynote speaker is J. Gerald Minskoff, coordinator of learning disabilities unit of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. His talk will focus on new federal programs concerning children with learning disabilities and their effect in Illinois.

State Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, D-11th Dist., a member of the House Committee on Education and Labor, will report on federal legislation now pending in Congress.

An Illinois bill requiring school districts to provide special education services after July 1 for all children requiring such programs will be the theme for a panel discussion.

Panel members include State Sen. Esther Saperstein, D-10th Dist., a member of the Senate Education Committee; Vernon Frazee, former state director of special education, and Mrs. Gordon Hallstrom, chairman of the Illinois State Advisory Council on Special Education.

The program will conclude with a luncheon address by David W. Donald, Department of Special Education Director in the office of the state superintendent of public instruction.

Historical Society To Install Officers

John G. Woods, former village president, will conduct the Friday installation ceremony for new officers of The Historical Society of Arlington Heights.

The 8 p.m. program will take place in the Williamsburg Room of the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

THE INCOMING slate of officers includes Mrs. Stephen Jurco, president; Mrs. Harold Dotts, vice president; Mrs. Michael Hoggay, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert Hey, recording secretary and Victor Bedingfield, treasurer.

New directors for the society will be Mrs. Walter G. Eissler, Mrs. Frank Sesterhenn and Miss Dorothy Noyes.

Continuing in office are Ralph Clabaugh, Virgil K. Horath, Edward Mills and Herman Redeker. Also Mrs. Irving Crystal, Mrs. Bruce Kelly and Mrs. Z. R. Rogozinski.

NEW U OF I flight hostesses, Cindy Johnson, receive their wings and diplomas.

Earn Flight Hostess Wings

Three Arlington Heights co-eds were recently awarded their wings and diplomas after completing the flight hostess curriculum given by the University of Illinois Institute of Aviation.

Cindy Karkula, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Karkula of 521 S. Reuter, is a sophomore majoring in elementary education.

Jane Barber, daughter of Mrs. M. A.

Barber of 120 N. Lincoln Lane, is a senior majoring in French.

Claudia Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Johnson of 504 S. Pine Ave., is a first semester senior majoring in English and math.

The girls were in the first class of 14 hostesses trained for service on the University of Illinois' new DC-6B and DC-3 flights.

7 Get High Scouting Award

Boy Scouting's highest rank, Eagle Scout, was awarded to seven boys from Troop 166 at St. James Church, Arlington Heights, during a court of honor held Sunday.

Scouts presented with the Eagle emblem were Dan Coha and Larry Coha, 730 E. Hawthorne St.; Mike Nitch, 814 N. Hickory Ave.; and Mike Schroeder, 811 N. Belmont Ave.

More receiving the awards were Tom Ponsot, 730 N. Wilshire Ave.; Mark Tatge, 814 N. Dryden Ave.; and Mark Theiler, formerly of 1602 N. Pine Ave. who now resides in Milwaukee with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Keitel.

ALL SEVEN OF the boys last year received the Ad Altari Dei medal, the highest Catholic award for Boy Scouts.

Scoutmaster of the troop is Ray Nitch and committee chairman is Dr. Frank Schroeder. The troop's sponsor is St. James Holy Name Society.

Each of the seven new Eagle scouts earned the 12 required merit badges over a period ranging from three to four years in various areas including art, science, scholarship, citizenship and nature subjects.

One of the requirements includes the undertaking and completing of a community service project.

Board Not Ready For Custodians

Representatives of a group of Dist. 59 school custodians appeared at the school board meeting this week, seeking discussions with the board about salary schedules.

The custodians were informed by the board that they would be given consideration by the board at the June 2 meeting of the body.

THE CUSTODIANS later entered the board room and were told again that the board would consider their requests in June.

Speaking for the Dist. 59 administration, Supt. Donald Thomas said his office was not prepared to discuss salary negotiations with the custodians at this time.

Named to Council

As Elk Grove Village resident and a Hoffman Estates businessman, David Wells has been appointed director of the Northwest Suburban Council, Boy Scouts of America, for the coming two summer camps.

David Wells of Hoffman Estates will direct Camp Napo, Scout Reservation located near Trigo, Wis., Robert Sasser, council president, and Alan Lindberg of Elk Grove Village will direct Camp Napo, Scout Reservation located near Trigo, Wis.

Wells has served eight years as a camp staff member, two years as a program director and two years as a camp director. He is an active member of the Elk Grove Kiwanis Club and is a professional member of the council staff, serving Elk Grove, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

WELLS HAS THREE years experience as a camp staff and two years experience as a camp director.

Both men are well qualified for their jobs. Each has completed the National Camp School on camp management and has a well rounded background in camp operation," Sasser said.

Both camps open June 22. Camp Napo will operate five two week periods, closing Aug. 30. Camp Napo will operate four two week periods, closing Aug. 16.

DAVID WELLS, left, of 357 Princeton, Hoffman Estates, director of Namekagon Scout Reservation, and Alan Lindberg, 223 Washington Square, Elk Grove Village, director of Camp Napo, wan, review final plans for the opening of the camping season for the Northwest Suburban Council, Boy Scouts.

Reagan Remembers

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California has extended his best wishes to the cast of "My Three Angels," this year's Northwest Community Hospital Players production to be held May 23, 24, 30 and 31 in Forest View High School.

Reagan was the master of ceremonies 13 years ago at the first production for the hospital's benefit. It was directed by Mrs. Martin Bodelson.

In later years Mrs. Bodelson formed the NCH Players and through four productions has earned $20,000 — enough to build and equip two hospital rooms.

REAGAN WASN'T governor at the time he served as emcee; he was host of a television playhouse. The local production was held at the now-defunct Edgewater Beach Hotel.

While the production didn't earn much cash, Mrs. Bodelson said it did generate a great deal of good will for the establishment of a hospital in the Northwest area.

Reagan's evening was chiefly distinguished by the loss of one of his contact lenses. When he stooped to retrieve it he broke his shoe lace. This set the amateur cast at ease, even if it did nothing for Reagan's composure.

In his letter to this year's cast, he said, "It is a fine program to have a little theater composed of doctors, staff members and their families. The group not only has fun and a sense of real accomplishment, but your proceeds go to the hospital dedicated to the health and well-being of your community."

"THE GROUP, THE hospital and Arlington Heights are to be congratulated for their mutual benefit betterment program. My best wishes for a 'standing room only' performance."

He suggested the NCH Players might have a theatrical "first" if they have to announce a neurosurgeon will go on as understudy because the leading man is delivering a baby.

The play will be the first event in celebration of the 10th birthday of Northwest Community Hospital. Stars of the production include Dr. William Zwilling, an orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Frank Peifer, an obstetrician and gynecologist, and Dr. Ronald Hudac, an internist.

Tickets are available at the hospital.

Nixon Names Burger

WASHINGTON — President Nixon nominated Warren E. Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States last night. Burger is judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The nomination to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren is subject to Senate confirmation. The new Chief Justice would take office when the court convenes its new term next October.

Sirhan Given Death

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan was formally sentenced to death in the California gas chamber for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy despite a letter pleading for clemency from the family of the slain senator.

In ordering Sirhan's death, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ignored the letter from Kennedy's brother, and denied defense motions for a new trial after a daylong hearing.

Apollo 10 Flawless

SPACE CENTER Houston — Apollo 10 whipped behind the moon last night and then flawlessly settled into a lunar orbit where the three pilots will spend the next 2 1/2 days testing the machinery to land a man on the moon in July.

Hats off the guys in the moon mission control, said Eugene Cernan. "I love them. Say thank you big."

Con-Con Test Suit

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of the Constitutional Convention filed suit yesterday to test the constitutionality of the recently passed law for Con-Con.

A taxpayers suit filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court by Chicago Atty. James O'Connell asked the court to declare the law unconstitutional and issue injunctions against state officials to prevent them from preparing for delegate elections.

Delay Vigilante Bill

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to repeal the 1965 vigilante law has had to be postponed in the Senate when it ran into surprising opposition from Republicans.

Several members citing the "White Hats" group in Cairo said there might be a need for the law, which permits citizens to form "companies" to deal with "thieves, incendiaries and other felons."

Hill Battle Defended

SARAGON — U.S. commanders have defended the controversial offensive for Hamburger Hill and ordered a fresh battalion of American paratroopers to hold the peak near Laos.

One commander said, "If we wanted to let the enemy stay on the hill, we would have had to call off the whole operation. And that would have invited the enemy to stockpile supplies for new offensives."

Defense of Thailand

BANGKOK — Foreign Minister Thanat K. Man of Thailand said yesterday he believes the United States is committed by a treaty to help defend his country not only against open warfare but Communist guerrilla attacks.

His statement made at a news conference shortly after the close of the 14th annual ministerial meeting of SEATO, went beyond anything U.S. officials have been willing to acknowledge.

Parade Permit Ruling

CHICAGO — U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker said he will rule tomorrow on a suit filed by a group of north suburban Evanston Vietnam War protesters challenging the constitutionality of the city's parade permit granting procedures.

The North Shore Coalition against the war in Vietnam has received a permit from the Evanston City Council for a May 21 march, but the group is dissatisfied with the route granted for the parade.

A Herald Editorial

Pick Neuhauser

Through a quirk of fate, the Dist. 59 board of education will lose one of its most recently elected board members next month George Blanchard, elected last April, will leave the district because of a job transfer.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education should appoint Paul Neuhauser to Blanchard's unexpired term.

Neuhauser was a candidate for the board in the April elections. He was third in the field of candidates, losing the seat to Blanchard by a margin of 26 votes.

BY APPOINTING Neuhauser, other board members will be fulfilling the intent of the voters of the district who obviously saw in Neuhauser the qualities they desire in their elected representatives.

An investigator for the Treasury Department, Neuhauser would bring an inquisitive mind and a strong background in financial matters to the board.

Since the announcement of Blanchard's departure, parents in the school district and most recently a group of teachers have urged the board of education to appoint Neuhauser to the vacant seat.

We believe the case is clear, that the Dist. 59 Board of Education should appoint Neuhauser when Blanchard's formal resignation is submitted.

Bad Checks Charged

A 25-year-old Lake Zurich man was arrested in Waukegan by Mount Prospect police Wednesday and charged with passing bad checks.

The man was identified as Clarence Borowski.

Jack Keefer, owner of Keefer's Pharmacy, 5 W. Prospect Ave., told police Borowski had cashed nine checks in his store recently, for a total of $105.50, but said none of them were any good because his account had been closed. The checks were written on the First Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine.

TWO OTHER merchants in Mount Prospect reported similar cases. Julian Pharmacy said Borowski had cashed bad checks totaling $73.75 with them and the Pure Oil service station reported they had cashed a bogus check written by Borowski for $45.

The man was taken to the Cook County House of Correction in lieu of $1,000 bond. His case is scheduled to be heard in District Court at Mount Prospect May 29.

Closed Pay Sessions
Please Negotiator

Ralph Walberg, chairman of the salary negotiating committee for the Dist. 57 School Board, told the Herald he was pleased with the ability of teachers and board members to confine their deliberations to the board room.

"Let somebody else make the headlines," Walberg said.

He said a meeting has been scheduled with members of the Mount Prospect Education Association (MPEA) for the coming week, and it is hoped a settlement will be reached at that time.

While active MPEA members have not commented about their request for an upgraded pay schedule, veteran teachers have said they do not approve of some of the demands being made through education associations at the urging of national organizations.

8 Join Commissions

Mayor Robert Teichert appointed four men to serve on the Mount Prospect Architectural Commission Tuesday.

They are William G. Lebsack, Ray Schultz, Ban Hemminger and Ted Erbach.

Named to fill vacancies on the Drainage and Clean Streams Commission are George Anderson, Norman Rud, James Atkinson and William R. Demmert.

Teichert said Henry Szala indicated to him last week that he was going to resign from the Police and Fire Commission. The board agreed that when a letter of resignation was received from Szala, Kenneth O'Callahan will be named to replace him.

thing that pleases them," she said.

Most of Mrs. Hubbard's paintings are water colors and deal with familiar subjects. She has several of Turkey Run State Park and other landscapes. An off-beat use of color distinguishes her work — sometimes featuring lavender in different tones.

The Hubbards lived in Mount Prospect for many years and now live in Palatine. Their three children, now grown, are all "artistic" and two paint, while one son is a music teacher in Saukemin, Ill.

PAINTINGS BY BETTY Hubbard travel almost as much as she does. Some have gone to California, southern Illinois, and Canada.

Mrs. Hubbard studied at the Evanston Academy of Fine Arts under Carl Scheffler and then took her education courses from Northwestern University. She has taught in Dist. 57 for about 15 years.

Gardening by Book

by LAURIE ROSSI

This month many people will begin to plant gardens, and get their lawns in shape. If you're planning on a fresh lawn, lettuce and tomato sandwich with two-thirds of it from your backyard, now's the time to start planting.

The Mount Prospect Public Library has all the books you'll need to plant any kind of garden, indoors or out.

To start out with, a good book would be "The Beginning Gardener." This useful reference has a great recipe for compost heap, a boon for your garden.

You save grass clippings, egg shells, grapefruit and orange rinds, potato parings, wood ashes, coffee grounds, weeds, and vegetable greens and keep them in a hole (hidden somewhere near the back of the yard) four to five feet deep.

Within about three to six months the contents are ready to be used as a very inexpensive and effective fertilizer.

You should keep adding to the compost heap, so you always have a continuous supply. This book also tells how to make a bird garden, rock garden, and wild-flower garden.

IF YOU SPECIALIZE many of the gardening books can help you with just the type of garden you want. "Vegetable Gardening in Color" has some introductory chapters on the subject of vegetable gardens, and continues with each vegetable and herb in alphabetical order. It also tells about planting berries and grapes.

If you like to cook what you plant you'll enjoy "Gardening and Cooking on Terrace and Patio," which will help you do exactly that.

"Herbs (How to Grow and Use Them)" discusses the use of herbs for seasoning in cooking and for medicinal purposes. For a garden geared to smell good, read "The Scented Garden."

Many people believe in growing vegetables, fruits, and flowers solely by natural methods. "Gardening With Nature" can help you grow a natural vegetable garden for a family of four, teach you to store herbs, grow nut trees, and keep summer crops for winter use.

Gardening can be profitable as well as entertaining. If you don't begin reading and planning now, you're going to be pretty jealous when you see your neighbor's cherry red tomatoes start ripening over the hedge next August.

Year of History

The Mount Prospect Historical Society has completed its first year with a membership of 64 local residents.

New officers for the coming year are Mrs. Victor Bittner, president, Mrs. John Weber, vice president, Mrs. Robert Haugh, recording secretary, Mrs. Rodney Wilson, corresponding secretary and Mrs. C. Franck, treasurer.

The membership has approved changing its meeting date to the fourth Monday of the month for the coming year.

Among the acquisitions of the society during this year were the first books kept by the village of Mount Prospect, a collection of arrowheads from this area donated by Frank Biermann and an antique piano, the gift of Mrs. Angela Wotel.

She Paints To Make You Happy

by EDITH FREUND

"I like to paint things that make people happy," said Mrs. Betty Hubbard, chairman of the art department in Dist. 57.

Mrs. Hubbard, who is exhibiting a few of her paintings in a local school, told the work because it makes them feel nostalgic.

With few exceptions her work is representational. "I have a few, perhaps have a dozen, that are really way out. I think they were successful, but they were really hard work for me," she said.

She says that painting is a demanding task because "it takes a long time to do something and do it well. It takes a great deal out of someone to create and for this reason I don't do as much as I would like. I just don't have the time or energy to spare from my school work, which I also enjoy very much."

BETTY HUBBARD believes that anyone can learn to draw or paint.

DIAGNOSING A CAR'S COMPLAINTS, four officers of Wheeling's Midnight Movers held a daytime session recently in preparation for the free national safety check on automobiles they will conduct June 8. Gary Polony, Mike McGowan and Ed Hawkins discuss the problems while Tony VerPlancke listens to the engine.

Pre-'Beautiful People'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Dressed in black jackets with an emblem of a ghost on wheels, motorcycle boots and exotic headgear, members of Wheeling's Midnight Movers begin to congregate in the early evening at the drive-in.

Anywhere from 20 to 40 of them stand around in small groups walking, smoking and arguing loudly.

To the casual observer they look like just another teengang — a group of the undesirable elements in a high school community who have banded together to give the town a bad name.

WHAT THEY ARE, however, is an organized club, with stringent rules, the backing of police and an intense sensitivity about their public image.

The Midnight Movers are so concerned about the image that they are sponsoring a free national safety check June 8 to introduce themselves to local residents. They will check cars for safety features required by the state and put stickers on cars that pass the test.

The club, which started seven weeks ago, is admittedly made up of some of the less desirable members of the community.

At least 15 of the club's 47 members are dropouts, although some attend night school. Most have had some contact with police in a variety of juvenile offenses.

The club members started their group to work on cars and to give them an organized activity. Although they have just begun to organize, they plan a trip to southern Wisconsin next weekend to visit several drag strips and hope to have dances, picnics and baseball games this summer.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most of all is a place to race cars, but members are willing to wait for that until they have gained trust and recognition from the community.

One member suggested that a street could be blocked off for a short time for drag races, but admitted that there might be a problem with the possibility of children around.

What they really would like is to borrow a runway at Palwaukee Airport to race their "grudge races" against each other, until they can get enough support to get a regular drag strip brought to town.

One member talked idealistically about having professional racers come to town and putting Wheeling on the map along with Rockford and U.S. 30 drag strips.

In the meantime, however, the young men have an uphill battle ahead of them.

The 47 members have decided the way to gain public recognition is to police the activities of their members to maintain their "image" and to plan activities which will benefit the community.

THEIR RULES are stringent — and enforced.

Two members who squealed their tires on the pavement, one while wearing his jacket and the other while with a group of club members, were fined $5 and were forced to give up their jackets for a week at a recent meeting.

For any violation a member is "stripped of his colors," articles with the club emblem, and fines are imposed if the violation is serious.

Other rules of the club say that while wearing the colors or with any other club members, a Midnight Mover isn't allowed to speed, drive recklessly, patch his tires or race.

After two violations, the members are out of the club.

Police school liaison officer Ted Homeyer says the club is somewhat exclusive organization and a status symbol.

"SOME KIDS would give their left arm to belong," he says, adding that because membership is valued so highly by the high school group, the rules can be stringently enforced and the members will submit to the policing and fines.

The Midnight Movers, mostly from Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove, pay 50 cents a week in dues to the club and are governed by two spokesmen and a variety of lesser officers.

Current spokesmen, who direct the meetings and tell other members to "shut up" when they talk out of turn, are Ed Hawkins and Gary Polony. Cliff Forster is an alternate spokesman.

The Midnight Movers admit some of their members would do a lot more drag racing on village streets if it weren't for club rules.

"We're doing the town a public service by keeping some of these off the streets," one boy said last week. "We've got some of the worst kids and worst drivers in Wheeling," another admits.

The group members vary somewhat in appearance. Ranging in age from 18 to 20 with one 16-year-old mascot, some of the members are clean-cut looking while others are what most teens would term "grease."

SOME HAVE carefully lacquered pompadour haircuts resembling heroes of 1950's movies, and others have crewcuts.

Some sit on the backs of their chairs at meetings and yell their suggestions in a mixture of automotive terms and semivulgarity. Others stand when called on and logically explain their proposals.

However, all have a common interest in cars, racing, and club activities. And all are adamant that club members must live up to the rules of the organization.

Striving for a good image, the club is sponsoring a free safety check for all cars in the area June 8.

The Midnight Movers collected $56 for materials from merchants in the village and got permission to use the K-Mart's parking lot. The check will include examining cars for adequate lights, brakes, alignment and other safety features.

Cars passing the inspection, as outlined in information bought by the group from the Illinois secretary of state's office, will receive a national safety check sticker.

WHAT THE GROUP wants most is the support of the community and to belong to a famed organization of racing enthusiasts which they know only as the NEPA. Saying acceptance to that organization is limited to "beautiful people," they explain that it would give their club statewide recognition.

In the meantime, they are working on more activities for their members. As one spokesman reminded the group at a Sunday meeting when the arguments get out of hand, "Hey, come on you guys. This is a club, not a gang."

Radar Suffers a Blow

Nixon Names Burger

WASHINGTON — President Nixon nominated Warren E. Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States last night. Burger is judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The nomination to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren is subject to Senate confirmation. The new Chief Justice would take office when the court convenes its new term next October.

Sirhan Given Death

LOS ANGELES — Sirhan B. Sirhan was formally sentenced to death in the California gas chamber for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy despite a letter pleading for clemency from the family of the slain senator.

In ordering Sirhan's death, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ignored the letter from Kennedy's brother, and denied defense motions for a new trial after a daylong hearing.

Apollo 10 Flawless

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 10 whopped behind the moon last night and then flawlessly settled into a lunar orbit where the three pilots will spend the next 2 1/2 days testing the machinery to land a man on the moon in July.

Hats off the guys in the trench mission control," said Eugene Cernan. "I love them. Say 'thank you' big."

Con-Con Test Suit

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of the Constitutional Convention filed suit yesterday to test the constitutionality of the recently passed law for Con-Con.

A taxpayers suit filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court by Chicago Atty. James Otis asked the court to declare the law unconstitutional and issue injunctions against state officials to prevent them from preparing for delegate elections.

Delay Vigilante Bill

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to repeal the 1965 "vigilante" law had to be postponed in the Senate when it ran into surprising opposition from Republicans.

Several members, citing the "White Hats" group in Cairo, said there might be a need for the law, which permits citizens to form "companies" to deal with "horse thieves, incendiaries and other felons."

Hill Battle Defended

SAIGON — U.S. commanders have defended the controversial offensive for Hamburger Hill and ordered a fresh battalion of American paratroopers to hold the peak near Laos.

One commander said, "If we wanted to let the enemy stay on the hill, we would have had to call off the whole operation. And that would have invited the enemy to stockpile supplies for new offensives."

Defense of Thailand

BANGKOK — Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand said yesterday he believes the United States is committed by a 1962 treaty to help defend his country not only against open warfare but Communist guerrilla attacks.

His statement, made at a news conference shortly after the close of the 14th annual ministerial meeting of SEATO, went beyond anything U.S. officials have been willing to acknowledge.

Parade Permit Ruling

CHICAGO — U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker said he will rule tomorrow on a suit filed by a group of north suburban Evanston Vietnam War protesters challenging the constitutionality of their city's parade permit granting procedures.

The North Shore Coalition against the War in Vietnam has received a permit from the Evanston City Council for a May 21 march, but the group is dissatisfied with the route granted for the parade.

Less Student Aid

CHAMPAIGN — The University of Illinois will not be able to provide financial help for as many undergraduate students as it had expected in the next school year, it was revealed.

A report read to the university's board of trustees said the school will be about $1.15 million short of anticipated revenues because of a cutback in federal aid, plus a shortage in the state guaranteed loan fund.

The public safety committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board last night rejected, by a two-to-one vote, the installation of weather radar in the village to spot approaching tornadoes and severe weather.

The decision of the committee, after 2 1/2 hours of debate, will go to the full village board in two weeks for a final decision.

In other words, the committee's recommendation last night does not kill the possible use of radar. In two weeks, the full seven-member board will mull over the problem once again.

Trustee George Burlingame, a United Air Lines pilot who arranged for the purchase of two radar sets from discontinued aircraft, was the primary proponent of installation of the equipment to serve as backup for areawide information.

Burlingame, stressing that weather radar would be only a "tool" for charting, not predicting, violent weather and tornadoes, argued that the equipment, which could be mounted on the roof of the municipal building, could provide warnings for the immediate area not covered by pin-point county weather forecasting.

He argued that maintenance could be easily and cheaply obtained from a firm in Elk Grove Village, that training of personnel to watch the radar screens was not difficult, and that it could provide a warning to residents for tornadoes approaching within a 50-mile radius.

Burlingame's case was also argued by Arlington Heights Civil Defense director Lt. Jack Benson and WBBM-TV weatherman Jerry Peterson.

Benson said any information received by radar would supplement weather material received from police and county offices.

Peterson, who had to leave early to drive to Chicago for his nightly weather forecast, explained that a lag could occur in the release of weather information to towns in the path of bad weather.

He said his station is equipped to supply weather information from its own sources. However, television regulations prohibit immediate release of a station's own information; he also said that in a large area like Chicago, it is difficult for the Weather Bureau to provide exact information.

Planners' Yes Causes Anger

A group of about 25 angry homeowners left the Arlington Heights Plan Commission meeting last night disappointed.

The homeowners were present to protest rezoning of property located on the northwest corner of Arlington Heights Road and Oakton. Developers proposed construction of an office building on the property adjacent to the present Oakton Executive House.

Plan commission members recommended approval of the rezoning request to the village board. The property is presently zoned residential, and, if approved by the village board, will be zoned for business and parking use. The village board will hear the request at its June 2 meeting.

PLANS FOR THE proposed development included adding 92 parking spaces to the present parking facilities for the existing building. Office buildings presently exist on land to both the north and south.

The new parking lot as presented would have three driveways on Arlington Heights Road and one on Oakton. The new office building would contain about 2,800 square feet.

Residents cited safety and growth of "asphalt cancer" as reasons for protesting the rezoning request. The homeowners were emotional, interrupting testimony by Nelson Real Estate which requested the rezoning.

The general complaints were mainly aimed at how the new proposed building and parking area would look. Homeowners in the area also said they felt if this rezoning were approved, other vacant property in the area would be rezoned for business use.

Plan commissioner Alice Harms proposed denial of the request, but her motion died for lack of a second.

The second motion to recommend approval of rezoning was passed with five members voting yes, two voting no and one passing.

I THINK I'LL LIKE IT. Joseph Elbow, 722 S. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights, accompanied his mother to kindergarten registration at Park School, School Dist. 25 will hold a special meeting in August for kindergarten mothers and teachers. The kids are also invited to this session to further smooth the transition from pre-schooler to student.

Ford Wins Okay

Arlington Heights Plan Commission recommended approval for rezoning for Ford Motor Co. dealership at its meeting last night.

The rezoning request will go to the village board for final approval. The approval was granted on the condition that Ford will change its mind and dedicate 50 feet for Dundee Road instead of the 33 feet it originally proposed.

The plan commission's consideration of the Ford development, planned for the south side of Dundee Road on the north side of the village, followed a dispute last week over the amount of land to be dedicated to the state for the widening of Dundee Road.

Representatives of Ford had argued that a full 50-foot dedication would be too much. They said they would prefer to dedicate only 33 feet.

The commissioners balked and said they preferred 33 feet. They left the matter in the hands of Village Atty. Jack Siegel to determine if a dedication of 50 or 33 feet were preferable.

Siegel replied that the decision would have to come from the commission. In effect, that means the commission can demand 50 feet if it chooses.

Pick Neuhauser

Through a quirk of fate, the Dist. 59 board of education will lose one of its most recently elected board members next month. George Blanchard, elected last April, will leave the district because of a job transfer.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education should appoint Paul Neuhauser to Blanchard's unexpired term.

Neuhauser was a candidate for the board in the April elections. He was third in the field of candidates, losing the seat to Blanchard by a margin of 26 votes.

BY APPOINTING Neuhauser, other board members will be fulfilling the intent of the voters of the district who obviously saw in Neuhauser the qualities they desire in their elected representatives.

An investigator for the Treasury Department, Neuhauser would bring an inquisitive mind and a strong background in financial matters to the board.

Since the announcement of Blanchard's departure, parents in the school district and most recently a group of teachers have urged the board of education to appoint Neuhauser to the vacant seat.

We believe the case is clear, that the Dist. 59 Board of Education should appoint Neuhauser when Blanchard's formal resignation is submitted.

tion for a specific community.

However, Trustee Charles Bennett, who voted along with William Griffin to reject the radar proposal, questioned whether the radar could be maintained easily or if capable men could be found to interpret the data on the radar screens.

Burlingame conceded later that the radar purchased by the village is not perfect, but that it would provide more immediate information than any other agency can supply.

Finally, Griffin, who had not spoken out against the equipment as strongly as Bennett had, said he felt it is still more "than we can handle." He cautioned that approval could lull Arlington Heights into a "false sense of security."

Bennett, after the vote, said that, if the board agrees with the committee's rejection, the equipment could be stored in the basement and considered at a later date once again.

Freight Ticketed

The Chicago and North Western Ry. yesterday was fined $900 plus court costs by Judge Francis Gloncki for obstructing a grade crossing more than two weeks ago, causing a tie-up of traffic in excess of eight blocks, according to Arlington Heights Police.

Police said a North Western freight train pulled into town at 4:48 p.m. on May 3, causing the railroad gates to lower. The engine then made several switches of cars on the siding between Euclid and Vail Street.

This process included taking the needed cars off the side track and placing them on the main track, putting the cars it brought in on the siding. The engine then hooked up to the new cars.

THE TRAIN TIED up four grade crossings at Vail, Dunton, Evergreen and Arlington Heights Road, police said. Sgt. Harold Hildebrandt said the train blocked the four crossings for more than 27 minutes.

Police said the train moved enough to clear the crossings, but later reblocked Vail and Dunton for an additional five minutes and 33 seconds.

It was reported that traffic was backed up at least eight blocks during the rush hour period. Twelve Arlington Heights policemen were needed to clear up the traffic jam. The conductor of the train, William S. Smith of West Chicago, was issued the citation.

The police department called in off-duty patrolmen to aid with the traffic mop-up. Even Chief L. W. Calderwood was called to the scene.

Police said Smith told them that he was only doing his job and that somebody was supposed to be on duty in the railroad tower near Vail. However, police said no one was in the tower.

To Hear Paving Report

Members of Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements will hear a report on the Douglas and Belmont paving project at the meeting tonight at 8 p.m.

The project consists of the improvement of Douglas and Belmont Avenues between Olive Street and Thomas Avenue.

Members will discuss a selection of officers for the year. When the topic came up at a recent meeting, the election was postponed for lack of any nominees who would serve as president of the board.

A DATE FOR a formal hearing on the Greenbrier trunk sewer will be set. The board placed the project high on its list of priorities for the year because the present sewer is being used to capacity and more development is expected in that area of the village.

Also included on the agenda is a report on the Northwest Highway street lighting project and discussion of the proposed grade crossing of the railroad tracks to link Ridge and Walnut.

Members will also attempt to set a date for a joint meeting with the village board of trustees.

Library Smoking on Tap

Official policy on smoking in the Arlington Heights Memorial Library is slated for discussion at tonight's meeting of the library's board of trustees.

Executive Librarian Harold Ard banned smoking on the premises last week and

"no smoking" signs were posted in the building.

Before the library opened its doors last spring the board decided to stock the building with ash trays. Reasoning behind the decision was that individuals would no longer use carpeting and books to crush out cigarettes.

The policy was reviewed in July and the "smoking permitted" order continued.

ALSO ON THE agenda is the use of excess construction funds for books. When the library was completed a surplus of $150,000 remained, and trustees said that approval of the May 17 referendum might serve as informal resident endorsement of the switch in funds. The referendum authorized the library to sell bonds for $500,000 for book acquisitions and to raise the maximum tax rate for operating expenses from 12 cents to 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Trustees estimate that it will take four years and over $650,000 to bring the library to the "two-book per capita" standard recommended by the American Library Association.

"YEP, DURING Prohibition I had a license to sell government whiskey for medicinal purposes to anyone who had a doctor's prescription. You just wouldn't believe how many people had the flu in those days," explained Herb Van Driel, the man behind Van Driel's Drugstore in Mount Prospect.

Pay Talks Resume Tuesday

Negotiations between teachers and School Dist. 59 will resume Tuesday, as a result of a letter from Supt. Donald Thomas to leaders of both sides in the deadlocked talks.

It was learned yesterday that representatives of the Teachers Council and the board of education plan to meet behind closed doors at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the district administration center.

Thomas said the meeting will be on the basis of a letter he wrote to board member Richard Hess and teacher Harlan Michels, expressing concern about the deadlocked negotiations and suggesting possibilities for the basis of a settlement.

BARGAINING ended two weeks ago when teachers rejected a firm contract offer from the board of education. Shortly after the 406-1 vote against a contract offering base pay of $6,900 for 10 months, regular sessions ended.

An administration statement said that both sides agreed to meet again when a new proposal was ready for discussion.

On Saturday, the teachers said they were waiting for the board to make a fresh contract offer, and that they would be willing to wait "as long as necessary."

At stake are contracts for nearly 450 district teachers, and as of the moment none of the faculty have signed contracts to teach.

They are primarily demanding more money than is being offered, and an agreement on class sizes which the board refuses to negotiate.

ACCORDING TO Thomas, the Tuesday meeting is specifically geared around the ideas expressed in a May 16 letter, proposing life insurance policies paid for by the district, an additional salary step in the scale, and an increase of proposed extended services contract options.

"We are meeting to specifically discuss the contents of that letter," Thomas said. But the superintendent did not rule out the chances of renewed discussion in other areas, including the possibility of 12 month contracts at significantly higher pay.

In his May 16 letter, Thomas noted that

Ham, Pie First

by GERRY DeZONNA

Herb Van Driel built a drugstore on baked ham and apple pie.

"Yep, when I moved my business to Mount Prospect in 1942, there were only two doctors and one drugstore in town. The other druggist was established and he had an agreement with the doctors for their prescriptions.

"So, my wife and I added a lunch counter to our store, a few ham sandwiches and homemade pies, and in those early days, 85 per cent of my business was food."

Van Driel, now retired from business, built Van Driel's Drugstore which is still a business stronghold at the busy intersection of Northwest Highway and Emerson Street in Mount Prospect.

VAN DRIEL IS A mild-mannered, soft-spoken man whose influential hand helped build the Mount Prospect business community and organize the village during the post-World War II population boom.

A pioneer of sorts, Van Driel moved from Chicago to Mount Prospect because "we had two small children and my wife wanted to get away from the streetcar line. Mount Prospect was a lot different in those days, mostly farm land, and I'd bet the population was no larger than 1,800 people."

During the war, Mount Prospect didn't grow much in size. Contractors weren't building houses because there was no market, money was short, and people couldn't afford to pull up their roots and move to the suburbs.

"I encouraged many of my friends who were in business for themselves to move out to Mount Prospect," explained Van Driel. "Some came before the war, but many didn't come until 1945."

"One of the problems during the war was that housing was so short, and many people in town lost their homes to employees from Douglas Aircraft who had government contracts.

"THOSE WERE THE days when Douglas owned a manufacturing plant where O'Hare airport is now located. The employees had priority on living quarters because they were part of the war effort, working on national defense."

He explained that as a private businessman during the war, he had a priority on food and cigarettes. "We were able to buy sugar and meat for the restaurant, when most of the people in town could only have a very limited supply."

"And every Monday morning the cigarette smokers would form a three-block line in front of the drugstore to buy cigarettes. As a business establishment, we could purchase cigarettes. The shipment would come every Monday, and we never had enough for everyone."

"Come noon I'd have sold the lot of them. Sometimes, I would tell the people that the shipment was late and there wouldn't be any smokes until Tuesday. That way some of the people who didn't have a chance to buy cigarettes last Monday could get in line first on Tuesday."

VAN DRIEL'S HAS been in business during some of the most interesting times in this country's history. He started working as a druggist in 1913 and established his own store in Chicago in 1927.

"The 1920's were wild times. Chicago was a wide-open town with over-crowded taverns and speakeasies. Everyone had money, and they were willing to spend it."

"John Dillinger used to live down the block from the old store in Chicago. He'd come down to buy cigarettes or gum. I

$55 in Coins Stolen

Vandals Tuesday broke into two apartments at 315 N. Salem Street, Arlington Heights, taking $55 in coins from one resident and a set of diamond wedding rings from another.

Mrs. Elizabeth Buurma told Arlington Heights police that someone entered her apartment between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. The apartment is located on the fourth floor of the building.

Police said the thieves gained entry by prying the front door loose and breaking the lock. They said the dresser drawers in the bedroom had been broken into. Missing was $45 in half-dollars, $5 in dimes and five $1 bills.

A CHECK OF THE rest of the building revealed that another apartment, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin O. Ray, was forcibly entered.

When informed by police, Mrs. Ray discovered that someone had gone through her dresser and taken the two wedding rings.

The superintendent of the building told police he had seen two male subjects sitting in an auto behind the building earlier in the morning.

Theology Degree

Dr. Manfred Kwan, formerly of 910 Marine Road, Arlington Heights, and a 1957 graduate of Arlington High School, was recently granted the doctor of theology degree with honors Insigni Cum Laude.

After receiving a bachelor of arts degree in sociology, religion, and German literature at Valparaiso University in 1962, Dr. Kwan attended Concordia Theological Seminary, Springfield, graduating in 1966 with a bachelor of divinity degree.

A graduate fellowship from the Institute of International Education took him to Basel, Switzerland, where he studied as a Basel and IIE Fellow.

Same Old Crimes

Spring fever may have hit Arlington Heights during April, but the last month's crime report does not reflect it.

The report shows no definable trends. Eighty larceny cases were reported during the month of April this year while the total last April was seven fewer. However, this year's total is 12 less than last year's for the first four months.

Arlington Heights Police Department conducted 48 investigations during April, bringing the total to 254 for the year. Last year's total for the first four months was 249.

Two narcotics offences were reported in April of this year. This brings the year's total to 13 as compared with five offenses for the first four months of last year.

RESIDENCE, APARTMENT, garage and commercial burglaries reported for this April numbered 20. Last year the April figure was 28. Total for the first four months showed a decrease of 40 this year as compared with last year.

Two narcotics offences were reported in April of this year. This brings the year's total to 13 as compared with five offenses for the first four months of last year.

Two Arlington Heights residents, Linda Schmidt, 18, and Cindy Schmidt, 15, were both awarded junior bars and bronze medals for roller skating.

The two sisters received their awards after competing in the United States of America Roller Skating Association dance test held recently in Glenview. They were judged on timing, appearance and poise.

The girls are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schmidt, 606 E. Ivy Lane.

THIRTY-THREE NUISANCE complaints were reported during this April as compared with last April's total of 63.

Reports of criminal damage to property increased by five during April of this year. Thirteen more reports have been made on this offense during the first four months of 1969 than were made during the same period last year.

In other categories, one aggravated assault was reported in April of this year while none were reported last April. The total for this offense is four for the year while last year two were reported at this time.
